'THANK GOD . . . I'M SAFE'

Farm Boy Shoots Killer; Terrified Victim Unharmed

SHADE GAP, Pa. (UPI) — Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, kidnapped and held in chains for seven terrifying days by a long-sought deranged sniper who turned killer, was rescued unharmed today. The kidnapper was shot to death by a 15-year-old farm boy.

"Thank God . . . thank God . . . I'm safe . . . I'm safe," the pretty, blue-eyed, brown-haired high school junior cried over and over as she ran into the arms of a reporter who pushed her to the ground to avoid being hit by bullets.

The kidnapper, William D. Hollenbaugh, 44, was shot through the neck. State police said he was hit by the farm boy Larry Rubeck, who fired a .22 calibre rifle through a closed window of his home at nearby Fort Littleton. State police Cpl. Grant H. Mixell also was firing outside the house.

DEPUTY WOUNDED

A short while before he was killed, Hollenbaugh shot and critically wounded a deputy sheriff.

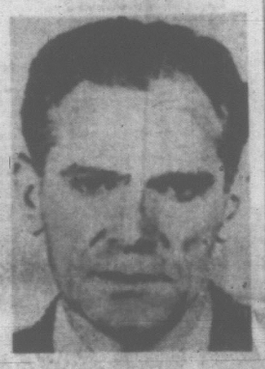

The dramatic events outside the Rubeck home took place only a few minutes after a heavily armed force of 675 men began an assault on nearby twin-peaked Tuscarora Mountain where the kidnapper was trapped with the girl Tuesday night.

Almost unbelievably, the wily, crazed kidnapper — who killed FBI agent Terry Anderson from ambush on the mountain Tuesday — slipped through the large posse, which had maintained an all-night vigil.

At about 9 a.m., PDT today the kidnapper surprised deputy sheriff Francis Sharpe at a roadblock. He forced Sharpe at gunpoint into the driver's seat of the deputy's car, got in beside him and made Peggy Ann lie on the floor in the rear. He then ordered Sharpe to drive to the Rubeck home.

BONNER TAKES OVER

Labor Chiefs To Be Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner has taken over the contempt proceedings in the Lenkurt Electric Co. dispute and will issue summonses against certain labor figures, it was announced in court here today.

George L. Murray, representing the attorney-general, told Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins that the attorney-general had decided to intervene in the contempt actions because of the great public importance.

Murray said that the attorney-general made his decision after he (Murray) had conveyed a message from the judge following Tuesday's hearing in which Mr. Justice Aikins said that contempt proceedings must be initiated and that the matter was of great public importance.

Murray said after the hearing that the number of persons to be proceeded against had not been decided but he told the judge that he proposed to issue show cause summonses — orders for certain persons to appear and show why they should not be cited for contempt.

WILL BE ARRESTS

Murray said he would proceed by summons rather than by writs of attachment, which would mean the arrests of the individuals concerned.

But he said he reserved the right to proceed by attachment if anyone should ignore the show cause summonses.

In court Tuesday Murray named six labor leaders and 69 other persons against whom he said there was evidence of disobedience of two court orders.

The orders were injunctions restraining any persons from picketing, obstructing or creating a nuisance at the Lenkurt plant in Burnaby, scene of two days of violent demonstrations.

The injunctions named as defendants, the B.C. Federation of Labor, Vancouver and District Labor Council and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC) the union leaders who appeared to be guilty of contempt were International Woodworkers of America Vancouver local vice-president Tom Clarke; IBEW business agent Arthur O'Keeffe and his assistant Tom Constable; Charles P. Neale, Vancouver and District Labor Council, secretary; William Stewart of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union; and William Wells, business agent of the Retail Food and Drug Clerks Union.

He also named another person, a Brian Johnstone, as a man who handed out scurrilous pamphlets saying the courts were allied with management and scabs.

CYPRUS PEACE TALKS SET

ATHENS (Reuters)—Greece and Turkey have agreed to start bilateral talks for a peaceful solution to the Cyprus problem, Foreign Minister Admiral Ioannis Toumbas announced today.

Persecution Charge

PEKING (Reuters) — China said today it will send ships to Indonesia to bring home "thousands of persecuted Chinese nationals" now living there.

But it repeated a demand that Indonesia itself should ship home those wishing to return.

FIRST TV PICTURES OF EARTH

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Russian communications satellite has taken the first television pictures of the earth and successfully transmitted them back to ground stations, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

Tass said the pictures were taken by Russia's Molniya (Lightning) I in orbit around the earth at altitudes ranging from 18,600 to 24,800 miles. Molniya I, the third Soviet communications satellite to be orbited by the Russians, was launched April 25.

Bennett Silent On Plan

The B.C. government continued mum today on its reaction to Tuesday's announcement that Ottawa will institute a national medicare plan next year regardless of how many provinces agree to it.

Health Minister Eric Martin declined comment because: "The premier will have the first opportunity to make any announcement on this. It is an important policy issue and it will be up to him."

But requests for a comment from Premier Bennett this morning were fruitless. He was said to be tied up with work.

B.C. is among several provinces that have not committed themselves to participate or "opt out" of a national medicare scheme in which the federal government proposes to pay half the cost.

ROYALTY WAS LAMPOONED by satirist Gerald Scarfe in today's edition of the London Daily Mirror. The drawing, appearing in the five-million circulation publication, shows Queen Elizabeth wearing a sign, "Britain for Sale," and grinning toothily while astride a moth-eaten horse. The nag's hide was split open to show a stuffing of a miniature of Prime Minister Wilson. Prince Philip, holding a polo mallet, hangs on to the horse's tail. (AP Wirephoto.)

September Vote Pledged by Ky

SAIGON (UPI)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was reported tonight to be preparing to hold elections in September for a constituent assembly in face of growing anti-government feeling in which rebel forces shot down an American plane in Da Nang and Buddhist students marched in Saigon.

Informed sources said he had pledged privately in talks with friends and associates and presumably American officials to hold the elections Sunday, Sept. 11, four days before his promised deadline.

There were still no details on the election.

In Da Nang today cheering anti-government troops shot down an American observation plane as it flew low while government troops were showering leaflets on rebel troops urging them to support Ky.

In Saigon, 1,000 to 2,000 Buddhist students led by a pretty girl surged through the streets demanding that the United States withdraw its support of the Ky regime.

Ky made a dramatic flight to Da Nang today to install a new military commander of the five rebellious northern provinces but the ousted commander flew to Hue to plot further anti-Ky strategy with Buddhist and military leaders. He said Americans rescued him from Ky's wrath.

Some archaeologist a thousand years from now will bless them Vancouver garbage strikers.

Bomb Rocks House

OTTAWA (CP)—An unidentified man was reported killed when an explosion rocked a washroom near the offices of Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin in the Parliament Buildings today.

Dr. P. B. Rynard, a medical doctor and Conservative MP for Simcoe East, examined the victim and told reporters the man had died.

Acrid smoke filled hallways of the third floor of the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

The men's washroom where the blast occurred is just across a hall from the main public gallery of the Commons.

The Commons recessed at 3:05 p.m. for 55 minutes.

Dr. Hugh Horner (PC—Jasper - Edson) also entered the washroom minutes after the blast. He told a reporter afterward that the victim appeared to be an older man and that death probably was instantaneous.

He said the explosive smelled like black gunpowder or dynamite.

It was not known whether the man carried the bomb, or whether it already had been planted in the washroom.

But a Commons security guard, Rene Soulieres, told newsmen a man sitting in the public gallery behind the Speaker asked him where a men's washroom was about 15 minutes before the explosion rocked the centre block.

Soulieres said he took the man to the washroom. He said the man asked him if he could get his seat back when he returned.

"The man was English-speaking," Soulieres said. "He smelled highly of liquor. He had very little hair."

BOOMS THROUGH CHAMBER

The blast came about 2:50 p.m., just a few minutes after the start of the Commons afternoon sitting. The boom echoed loudly through the Commons chamber.

The blast was strong enough to blow the glass out of the washroom window and to send clouds of acrid fumes rolling down the corridors of the Centre Block.

Reporters, visitors and Commons protective staff rushed to the scene as dense smoke spread rapidly at the west end of the third floor.

The protective staff struggled frantically to cordon off the blast area.

The floor of the Commons and the galleries buzzed with talk and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux was obliged to call the House to

PROTEST RELEASE OF DOCUMENT

Dief, Fulton Quit Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker today withdrew from the Munsinger inquiry, charging that it is an instrument of political assassination.

Mr. Diefenbaker announced his boycott just prior to the inquiry's mid - morning hearing, and explained his reasons at noon before a crowded press conference in his Commons office.

He said publication by the inquiry of a "handy document" on the Gerda Munsinger affair violated fundamental rights.

He called the statement "a sordid, libellous document" and "a McCarthy smear." The statement was obviously intended to destroy his reputation and was not in evidence. Many points in it were contradicted by the evidence.

Mr. Diefenbaker was joined in his boycott by Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister.

The Opposition leader said he cannot understand the conduct of the inquiry commissioner, Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

Counsel Attacked

He also criticized commission counsel John O'Brien, a Montreal lawyer.

From the day Mr. O'Brien had been named commission counsel, he had boasted publicly in Montreal of "what he was going to do with a former prime minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that when the Conservatives were in office Mr. O'Brien was counsel for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada when the firm applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for a rate increase.

The cabinet had taken strong objection to the basis for the application.

'Nursed Resentment'

"He (O'Brien) apparently nursed his resentment and now he has stated over and over again that he was going to get even."

Mr. Diefenbaker said this boast was made widely but the Opposition leader declined to name his sources.

Asked to comment on Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that Mr. O'Brien was out to get him, the commission council said:

"I have never said it and I have no reason to get him. Apart from that I'm not very interested."

The Conservative leader said the statement prepared and released by commission counsel was based on hearsay and "could not have been issued except with the purpose of creating a derogatory climate."

It was Mr. Justice Spence who called it a "handy document."

Asked whether he plans any legal action, Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

"That is a good question. I will consult my counsel about that."

Mr. Diefenbaker took exception to two allegations in particular in the inquiry document.

The first allegation was by Mrs. Munsinger, who claimed to have met Mr. Diefenbaker when he was prime minister and that he had told her she was doing a great thing for Canada.

"The publication of this sordid, libellous statement clearly revealed what the commission was set up to do," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He recalled that Mrs. Munsinger herself said in a CBC interview last spring that she had never met him.

Flat Denial

The second allegation that Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned specifically was an unattributed allegation that political interference was attempted to have the police withdraw cheque-passing charges against Mrs. Munsinger in February of 1961.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied this allegation flatly.

He said the inquiry was told by RCMP witnesses that the RCMP requested the withdrawal of the charges "without reference to any minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker took up most of the press conference reading a prepared statement and cut off questions from about 30 reporters after 15 minutes.

He said he and Mr. Fulton were withdrawing from the inquiry because of a succession of incidents culminating in the publication of the summary of the RCMP Munsinger file a week ago.

'Assassination'

"The purpose for which the commission was set up was political assassination of opponents," he said.

Even common criminals were not libelled in statements that were outside of the evidence.

Mr Fulton, who sat in at the press conference, said the correct procedure would have been to admit the RCMP file as evidence and question witnesses under oath about allegations contained in it.

He said his counsel at the inquiry repeatedly opposed the publication of a summary of the RCMP file.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton issued a joint statement on their withdrawal and when the hearing began their lawyer, C. F. H. Carson, advised Mr. Justice Spence of the decision, Mr. Carson and his colleagues left the inquiry room.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson, who had ordered the inquiry, said the Liberal leader had no comment on the surprise move. The boycott was announced in a prepared statement.

Mr. Fulton later issued a statement criticizing point by point the manner in which the Munsinger inquiry has been conducted.

He said he has no apologies to make for his handling of the Munsinger affair when he was justice minister.

His statement recalled that he had objected from the outset to the terms of reference of the inquiry, to secret sessions held without notice to the persons involved, to his difficulty in getting access to exhibits and official files, and to the publication of parts of a secret RCMP file.

"Our counsel had to undertake a virtual blasting operation before we were finally shown all the relevant police files.

Not Seen Before

"When we finally got them they were found to contain documents sugesting important divergencies from the case as it was then being developed by commission counsel."

Mr. Fulton said when he testified May 9 he was confronted with an alleged memorandum

. . . INQUIRY

from an immigration file that he had never seen before and was cross-examined about it.

Since then he had been informed that a second alleged memorandum which he had never seen would be produced as evidence before the inquiry.

"This careful concealment and calculated timing in prodence is given s an obvious viodence is given is an obviou sviolation of the principles of justice."

When the hearing opened today, Mr. Carson rose and said he wanted to make a brief statement.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton had decided not to participate further and had instructed him to withdraw.

Mr Carson added he felt it was right as a matter of a courtesy to attend the opening of the hearing and inform the judge of his decision.

Mr. Justice Spence said Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton were entitled to make any decision they deemed fit.

He said he had decided before the inquiry opened not to require any privy councillors to testify. Some had come voluntarily to testify and some had not.

The judge expressed gratitude to Mr. Carson and his colleagues for "their kind co-operation and courtesy."

Mr. Carson, Charles Dubin, another Conservative lawyer, and an assistant then trooped from the courtroom.

Official Testifies

Dr. George F. Davidson, secretary of the treasury board, who was deputy immigration minister in 1960, testified that after a visit from RCMP security officers late in 1960 he concluded the department could not legally refuse to readmit Mrs. Munsinger to Canada if she went abroad.

He said the two RCMP officers had discussed sending the German-blonde a letter while she was on a European visit notifying her she would not be readmitted or telling her that qaestions might be raised as to her eligibility for readmission if she tried to return.

Dr. Davidson said that under the law the immigration department could not support the first alternative. Mrs. Munsinger had by that time lived five years in Canada and thereby had acquired "Canadian domicile."

It was not possible torefuse such a person readmission except under specified conditions which either did not apply to her or could not be established with respect to her.

He also testified about a memorandum in Mrs. Munsinger's citizenship file stating that he had advised the then-citizenship registrar, J. E. Duggan, that the minister of citizenship and immigration had decided no ertiflcate of citizenship should be issued to Mrs. Munsinger until the matter was brought to her attention.

RCMP Inquiries

The minister at that time was Mrs. Ellen Fairclough. The memo was dated Dec. 12, 1960. It also said that RCMP inquiries about the application still were under way and that care must be taken not to grant Mrs. Munsinger a certificate.

Dr. Davidson said in reply to questions from the assistant commission counsel, J. J. Urie that he does not recall receiving such instructions from Mrs. Fairclough and passing them along to Mr. Duggan, but he said he has no doubt that the memo, initialled by Mr. Duggan, records a conversation with him.

Dr. Davidson went through the Munsinger immigration and citizenship files letter by letter, testifying that Mrs. Munsinger wrote a letter Nov. 26, 1960, edged in gold and with her initials in gold at the top, asking the citizenship department to check on the status of her citizenship application because her German passport was out of date and she was planning to visit Europe Dec. 10.

Letter from Aid

He testified that the file included a letter Sept. 9, 1960, signed Gaston Levesque, executive assistant to the associate defence minister, asking J. B. Bissette, administrative assistant to the citizenship minister, to look into Mrs. Munsinger's citizenship application and advise him of the situation.

A reply dated Sept. 15 and initialled J.B.B. said the three-month waiting period since Mrs. Munsinger's June 28 application had not been completed She would be advised when she could appear before the citizenship court.

Another note in the file Oct. 5, 1960, recorded that Mr. Levesque had made inquiries about the application.

A further letter, dated Oct. 5, recorded that an inquiry about the status of the application had been made from Montreal by lawyer Samuel Greenblatt.

. . . LABOR

The individuals named in court were identified from pictures taken during the demonstrations, where picketers blocked the driveways to the plant and attempted to stop employees from entering.

In court today Murray told Mr. Justice Aikins: "You asked me (at the conclusion of Tuesday's hearing) to advise the attorney-general of Your Lordship's decision. I conveyed the message and am instructed to advise Your Lordship that the attorney-general has decided to intervene and I am instructed to initiate proceedings for contempt against certain individuals named before Your Lordship.

"The proceedings will be launched as rapidly as physically possible," Murray stated.

The judge then said he would allow certain time for the paper work to be prepared and no further date was fixed.

Meanwhile, battle lines stiffened in a civic labor dispute as city council rejected new mediation moves and the striking outside workers union called for intensified picketing.

Council unanimously tabled for two weeks a proposal that would have referred the dispute to a mediator if the men returned to work immediately.

Council agreed the city had gone far enough, and several aldermen said Jack Phillips, secretary of the Civic Outside Workers, is personally responsible for the continuation of the strike.

Mr. Phillips said picket lines will be tightened around city establishments, particularly at the city garbage dump. He said the union wants to stop people crossing the picket line at the dump to deposit their garbage.

He also said the union would like a mediator appointed in the dispute "but with no strings attached."

Earlier, the workers — who collect the garbage, repair roads and sewers and mantain parks—voted not to return to work as a condition for applying to the provincial government for an industrial inquiry commissioner.

Mr. Phillips, meanwhile, warned the Junior Chamber of Commerce against plans for a citizen's fleet of garbage collectors.

He said violence could erupt at the city dump if the Jaycees go ahead with the plan. They would be "playing the role of strike-breakers and the union will treat them as such," he said.

The Jaycees decided Monday to delay the citizens' fleet until after a meeting on Thursday with volunteer drivers, most of whom are not Jaycee members.

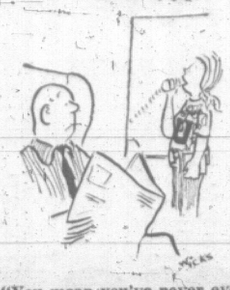

North Vancouver's 700 municipal and school board workers today served strike notice on their employers.

The action was a quick follow-up to a government-supervised strike vote taken Tuesday in which the workers voted by an 80 per cent majority in favor of North Vancouver's first municipal walkout since 1958.

The 48-hour notice means the civic employees union could order a strike to start Friday morning.

The union Monday rejected a new offer which would have given workers a 5.65 per cent increase in 1966 and an additional 5.65 per cent in 1967. The union's original demand was for 12 per cent in a one year contract.

Artificial Heart Put In Navy Man

HOUSTON (UPI) — A retired navy chief petty officer in whom surgeon Michael Debakey Tuesday installed an artificial heart, was awake today, "doing quite well."

The retired chief petty officer was Walter L. McCans, 61; from the Seattle area. He was the second person within a month in whom Debakey and a medical team had installed an artificial heart. The first patient died of a lung collapse.

A bulletin issued today at Methodist Hospital said McCans "continues to progress satisfactorily and his vital signs are good."

Physicians and engineers who maintain the artificial heart — technically a "left ventricular bypass" — remained in the hospital all night.

"The patient is still doing quite well," the bulletin said. "It will be a matter of 48 to 72 hours before full judgment can be rendered. Mrs. Marian McCans visited with her husband this morning at which time he was awake and responsive."

Youth Admits Farm Gas Theft From Open Pump

A Victoria youth admitted today, in magistrate's court, to stealing 20 gallons of farm gas from an open pump.

John Andrew, 3184 Millgrove was one of four young people who took the gas, worth about $5, from a pump on the property of William Mattick, 5273 Cordova Bay Road, near midnight Monday.

Saanich detective, Charles Trueit told court a crowbar had been found under a seat in the group's car.

He said members of the group told him the tool was to be used if they had difficulty in opening the pump.

Andrew was remanded to May 26 for a pre-sentence report.

Surfers Head For Long Beach This Weekend

A big turn-out of spectators and competitors is expected at Long Beach on the west coast of Vancouver Island this weekend for the Canadian surfing championships.

The competition was arranged by the Reef Rovers Club of Victoria. Local and mainland surfers have entered the heats.

A total of 18 events have been planned including men's and women's open board and mattress surfing.

The championships begin Saturday and end Monday.

Meets Saturday

The provincial conference of the Socialist Party in Canada will be held Saturday at the Italian Hall, 804 Kings Rd.

Up-Island and mainland delegates are expected at the meeting, which starts at 9 a.m.

Opening address will be given by Gilbert McLatchie, formerly on the editorial board of the Socialist Standard in Britain.

He will be introduced by two national executive members of the Socialist Party from Winnipeg, Jim and Greta Milne.

Trained Specialists Combat Faceless Horde of Cranks

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP)—Every day a faceless horde of cranks is using the telephone to gain access to homes across the United States.

The anonymous caller uses the telephone to harass, threaten, frighten, malign, annoy and mouth obscenities.

Some cranks pick on families that have just suffered a death.

Law enforcement officials work with telephone security agents to track down the persistent anonymous caller.

Telephone companies are training specialists to combat crank calls. In New York City, where reported obscene calls increased 30 per cent in 1965 compared with the previous year, the New York Telephone Co. has established an annoyance call bureau.

In the development stage is equipment that will make tracing a call easier.

HANG UP

What should you do if you get a crank call? Hang up.

If you slam down the phone the anonymous caller is frustrated because he doesn't have an opportunity to do any more than just annoy you.

The pervert gets his kicks from the shock he creates with his lewd remarks. If he's denied an audience he'll soon quit calling.

If the calls persist the victim should report them to the telephone company and police.

One of the best means to solve the cases is for the victim to keep a log for seven days, noting the frequency, date, time and duration of the calls, a record of the conversation, and a description of the caller's voice.

This fact sheet often provides a clue to the identity of the anonymous caller. Sometimes it jogs the subconscious of the victim enough to come up with the name of a likely suspect.

U.S. TROOPS BOMBED BY OWN JETS

SAIGON (Reuters)— American jets last week accidentally bombed a United States infantry group, killing two U.S. soldiers and wounding 58 more, a U.S. spokesman revealed today.

He said a flight of F-100 Super-Sabre jets was called in to attack retreating Viet Cong guerrillas last Thursday. But they were misled by wrongly-placed smoke signals on the ground and dropped their bombs on a battalion of American troops some 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

TIGHT MONEY POLICY

Grits Survive Closest Vote

By GERARD MCNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government survived the closest non-confidence vote of the session Tuesday night.

The count was 118 to 112 on a Conservative motion charging the government with a negative approach in imposing a "tight money policy" and denying home builders mortgage funds.

The 115 Liberals present would have carried the vote without the three Social Credit MPs who supported them.

The two-day money supply debate revolved around the non-confidence motion but little tension was generated.

The vote was the closest since the minority Liberal government weathered a Conservative non-confidence motion by eight votes during the throne speech debate.

Eighty-five Conservatives, 15 New Democrats, all nine Creditistes and the two independents voted against the government.

The Commons returns to legislation today with extension of an $8,000,000 annual grant to Newfoundland the first subject.

Labor Minister Nicholson, who reports to Parliament on housing, said a government that believes in the free enterprise system could hardly be expected "to bail out house builders" when they were feeling a little pressure in the summer months for the first time since 1953.

He suggested they "try their luck" with insurance companies, mortgage companies and others who poured $1,500,000,000 into housing last year.

"When the billion-dollar expansion programs we are now engaged in are completed," there will be plenty of housing, Mr. Nicholson said.

"However, there may be some inconvenience to some people during the next year."

He suggested figures for 1966 would be within 10 per cent of the record 153,000 houses built in 1965.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said when the National Housing Act was brought into effect in 1945, a house cost $6,000 and mortgages were issued for $4,800 and carried for $30 a month.

"Today the houses built under the act are selling for $23,000, with average mortgages of $18,000, hopelessly beyond the reach of the ordinary person."

Statistics indicated the minimum salary to quality for NHA housing was $6,500 a year.

Mr. Scott said this left 7,637,000 Canadian wage-earners out in the cold.

'Great Pride In Achieving Their Goals'

MONTREAL (CP) — Three men who have spent time in China told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Tuesday that the mood of the Chinese people is nationalist rather than Communist.

Participating in a panel discussion at the group's convention were Roy Faibish of the CBC; James S. Duncan, former chairman and president of Massey-Harris Co. and author of "A Businessman Looks at Red China," and Charles Taylor, former Peking correspondent of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Mr. Faibish, as an official of the agriculture department, took part in negotiations which led to Canada's first long-term wha: deal with China. He also made a CBC film on China in 1964.

He said his impression was that there is a tremendous nationalistic pride in China, which takes priority above Marxism.

"They have a fierce pride in what they have achieved since 1949. It is a militant pride. The peasants feel they are the government."

KNOW THEIR PROBLEMS

Mr. Taylor, a correspondent in China for 18 months, said his main impression of the Chinese was that they have a sober realization of their problems.

"It will take China 30 to 50 years to become an industrial power and they are very realistic about it. They say it will take five to 10, or more, generations, to create a truly Communist society in China."

Mr. Duncan said the Chinese are intelligent, hard-working and have a dedication to personal sacrifice.

He said no great change can be expected in China when Mao Tse-Tung, Communist party chairman, departs from the scene.

The government probably would be taken over by one of the seven members of "the inner cabinet," with Premier Chou En-lai having a good chance.

U.K. Stalls Bid to Kill Que. Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Tuesday he has been informed there is no prospect of action by the British Parliament in the immediate future on a Quebec bid to abolish its legislative council.

The Quebec legislative council, similar to the Senate, is appointed. It is the last provincial upper house in Canada.

Quebec's Liberal government seeks a constitutional amendment to reduce the veto power of the council.

A petition to this effect is awaiting approval in the British Commons.

Premier Lesage said Sunday Prime Minister Wilson is awaiting the outcome of Quebec's June 5 provincial elections before taking action.

Stanley Knowles NDP — Winnipeg North Centre asked whether the federal government plans to take similar steps to abolish the Senate.

He said Premier Lesage has a formula that could be used to abolish the Senate of Canada. "If it can be done that way in Quebec it can be done here."

The federal government should follow this course or reassess its execution action in passing Quebec's request to Britain without giving the Commons a chance to debate the matter.

John R. Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said that at a time when governments are making more and more decisions affecting individuals, the Senate becomes a great safeguard of individual rights.

SHARP BOOST IN GUN SALES

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Gun sales to white Rhodesians were reported today to have increased sharply since Monday's killing by armed Negroes of a couple at their lonely tobacco farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Joannes Viljoen, both 30, were shot to death at their farm outside Hartley, a European farming centre 60 miles southwest of here.

It was the first known incident of political violence involving the death of whites in Rhodesia since Premier Ian Smith's white - minority regime proclaimed independence from Britain in November.

The attack was believed to be the work of terrorists, probably remnants of an African nationalist guerrilla group which fought a running battle with Rhodesian security forces April 29

Seven members of the Zimbabwe African National Union, one of Rhodesia's banned African nationalist parties, were killed in the battle.

ZANU claimed in Lusaka Tuesday night that the Hartley killings were part of its countrywide activities in Rhodesia and said:

"For every one of our sons and daughters killed by the settlers, we shall kill settlers with compound interest."

However, observers do not expect that incidents such as that at Hartley will bring Rhodesia face to face with a major terrorist uprising. They note a general lack of support for the nationalist cause by the mass of the Negro population.

Chinese 'Produce Evidence'

PEKING (Reuters) — China today published "irrefutable evidence" to support its claim that United States jets intruded into Chinese airspace Thursday and shot down a Chinese plane over Yunnan province.

Newspapers splashed on their front pages photographs which they said showed the remains of a Sidewinder-air-to-air guided missile that downed the Chinese plane and fuel tanks jettisoned by the U.S. "pirate aircraft."

One photograph showed parts of the missile with the tail fin section almost undamaged.

Another showed a fuel tank lying in open country while two more gave closeups of parts of the fuel tank showing the American manufacturer's plate and technical instructions.

'PAPA DOC' NEEDS MONEY TO HOLD GRIP ON HAITI

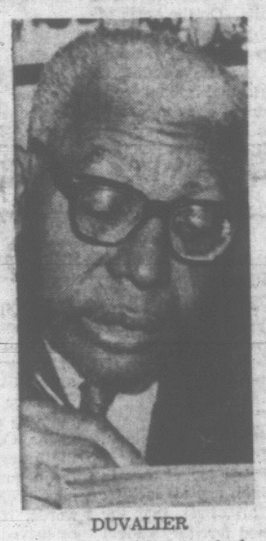

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Papa Doc is putting financial teeth into what he calls his "revolution"—the better to tighten his grip on this backward fiefdom.

Papa Doc, as he is known to all, is Dr. Francois Duvalier, president for life of what poses as a 20th-century nation.

He has destroyed his opposition at home and now feels he must consolidate his position so that he can, if nothing else, last out his term.

This means money is needed to pay for the security that keeps him in power. Every ounce is being tapped—and new sources created. Quietly, in the last eight months, the 59-year-old dictator has created an export-import monopoly that milks revenue out of every product coming in and going out of the country, from nails to fish.

DUVALIER
. . . opposition crushed

To attract tourist dollars, Papa Doc is trying to give Haiti the look of a scenic spot at peace and at work. This isn't hard to do where all political reistance has been crushed.

CITY HAS CHANGED

Port au Prince and environs have undergone a dramatic change from the eerie days of the 1963 crisis. Gone from the streets are the military checkpoints and the nervous sight of armed Ton Ton Macoutes (the hogeymen). The bustle in the business district hasn't slackened.

The atmosphere is thick with resignation to the fact of Papa Doc's control. Exile radio broadcasts, originating in New York, seem to provide more conversation material than hope.

The exile broadcasts sometimes are accurate about what is going on inside the country. The speed with which some information gets to the New York station has made some Haitian officials suspicious that U.S. government agencies may be involved.

Prices are half here of what they are in the Dominican capital. The inflow of tourism is increasing, especially from French Canada.

CAN RELAX

With unchallenged control, Duvalier can afford to relax the repressive measures that gave his dictatorship a bad name abroad.

Economists here discount chances of an economic collapse. The country has been more or less bankrupt ever since Duvalier took over in 1957.

It really doesn't take much to run this country of 4,500,000 people, the most densely populated area of the Western Hemisphere. The per capita national product is some $77 a year, one of the world's lowest.

The problem of paying for Duvalier's private army and his political support is another thing. This is where the import-export monopoly comes in.

16-YEAR-OLD BOY IN COURT

Glue Sniffer Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Glue-sniffing was compared with the "sniff of death" by Special Prosecutor Bruce Thomas at the juvenile court trial Tuesday of a 16-year-old boy charged with self-administering a poison "or any other noxious thing."

George Cimbura of the attorney-general's laboratory compared the effects of glue-sniffing with those induced by drinking alcohol. The chemicals toluene and acetone found in the plastic cement used in model building could damage kidneys and blood-making apparatus in the body, Mr. Cimbura said.

Judge T. L. Moore said the interest of the community justified the admission of reporters to a trial, which ordinarily would be held in camera. Reporters cannot name the boy.

A 14-year-old said he had sniffed glue with the accused and experienced hallucinations, including seeing monsters.

He said he, the accused and others would gather at a home, garage or in a ravine and sniff glue deposited in paper bags. They would tell each other what they saw while under its influence.

U.S. Aims Three Slaps At French

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported Sunday to favor moving both the political and military headquarters of the North Atlantic Alliance from Paris to Brussels.

Washington also was said recommending replacing the present U.S.-British-French standing group which guides NATO's military activities with a six-nation committee comprised of the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy and two rotating members.

In addition, the U.S. is reported prepared to support a German officer as commander of Allied forces in Central Europe—a position now held by a French officer.

A Basic Challenge

IN A RECENT SPEECH, PRIME Minister Harold Wilson laid down some of the principles on which he bases his policy of full employment. The first of these was that "we do not allow incomes to rise at a rate higher than productivity because if they did it would be self-defeating in terms of what the incomes would buy".

We may expect that principle to be a pertinent one in the government's handling of the serious strike of British seamen which has tied up the country's shipping. If followed, it implies that the strikers will not get their full demand for reduced working hours without decreased pay, for the whole intent of the government—as it was of its Conservative predecessor—is to hold the line on inflation.

Higher wages push up prices, which means higher living costs and a demand for still higher wages. The only escape from a spiralling cost of living index in such a situation is when the higher wages are matched by higher productivity. In the latter case, the supply of goods and the demand for them will remain in balance and no price increase should occur.

In the case of the seamen, it is, of course, difficult to determine the exact level of productivity. There are no units of production to count, no tons of coal or steel to tally. And to this extent the argument must be much more open to partisan interpretation. But the fact remains that rising wages, as part of the cost of production, cause rising prices, and transportation is as much a factor in cost as fuel or fabrication.

The seamen's strike is thus only partly a strike against the ship owners and operators. It is equally a challenge to the government and its current financial and economic policies. And since those policies are meant to save the economy of the nation from deterioration and the pound from devaluation, it is obvious that the government will offer strong opposition to the strikers. If the wage-prices line is seriously broken in this instance, where else can it be held?

It appears at this point that Labor intends to have no mercy on a Labor government; it is equally obvious that the government cannot afford to have its policy smashed by one segment of the labor force to the detriment of the whole country.

The Conservative opposition may well watch the situation with inward thankfulness that the problem is Mr. Wilson's and not theirs. For Mr. Wilson it is as stern a test as could be imposed. An acceptable solution to this one would put his stock sky-high.

To Encourage Investment

WRITING FROM CALGARY on this page yesterday, Mr. James Gray pointed out some parallels between the proposed Canada Development Corporation and the Alberta Development Fund in his province.

The two schemes, of course, have somewhat different aims but there are enough similarities to give broad interest to Mr. Gray's comments on the failure of Alberta investors to support the provincial venture.

The Alberta fund was designed to sell shares to the citizens of that province to develop industry and enterprise which could not easily be financed from conventional sources. The Canada Development Corporation will attempt to raise money from Canadians — just in what form of security has not yet been announced—for a similar purpose but with the additional target of conserving Canadian control over companies which might otherwise fall into the hands of foreign owners.

The potential weakness in the CDC—and what scuppered the Alberta fund—is that the investor is urged to put his money into the plan in large measure as an act of patriotism. And the hard fact is that most Canadian investors are more interested in putting idle funds to work in enterprises which will give them a large return. In the Alberta case, the proposition would not attract capital, because of the potentially poor risks which the fund proposed to support. The federal plan is to sweeten the pot by putting in a couple of profitable crown corporations, such as Polymer Corp. But after that there would be no guarantee that investments would be made on the basis of good returns, growth prospects and reasonable security — the normal criteria by which an investor judges a situation.

There seems to be a great need in this country for a well-capitalized organization which can support promising enterprises and also mitigate the pace of foreign take-overs. But if Canadians are to be expected to invest their money in a government fund of this kind the incorporation papers will have to be drawn up very carefully indeed. The insulation from political pressures will have to be complete and the management will have to be chosen with great care.

Many Canadians will doubtless feel that the Canada Development Corporation is a good idea. Many others will wonder if perhaps the government has exhausted all the other possibilities of encouraging Canadians to invest directly in Canadian enterprises—measures such as more flexible tax laws, and greater protection from fraud for the small investor.

Bang, for Peaceful Purposes

UNDERGROUND NUCLEAR device testing, even with the best of safeguards, is not without its hazards. A report the other day told of accidental contamination of the air in five states as a result of a Nevada blast. A little over a year ago a Russian underground test in central Asia put radioactive debris into the air where it floated over Japan.

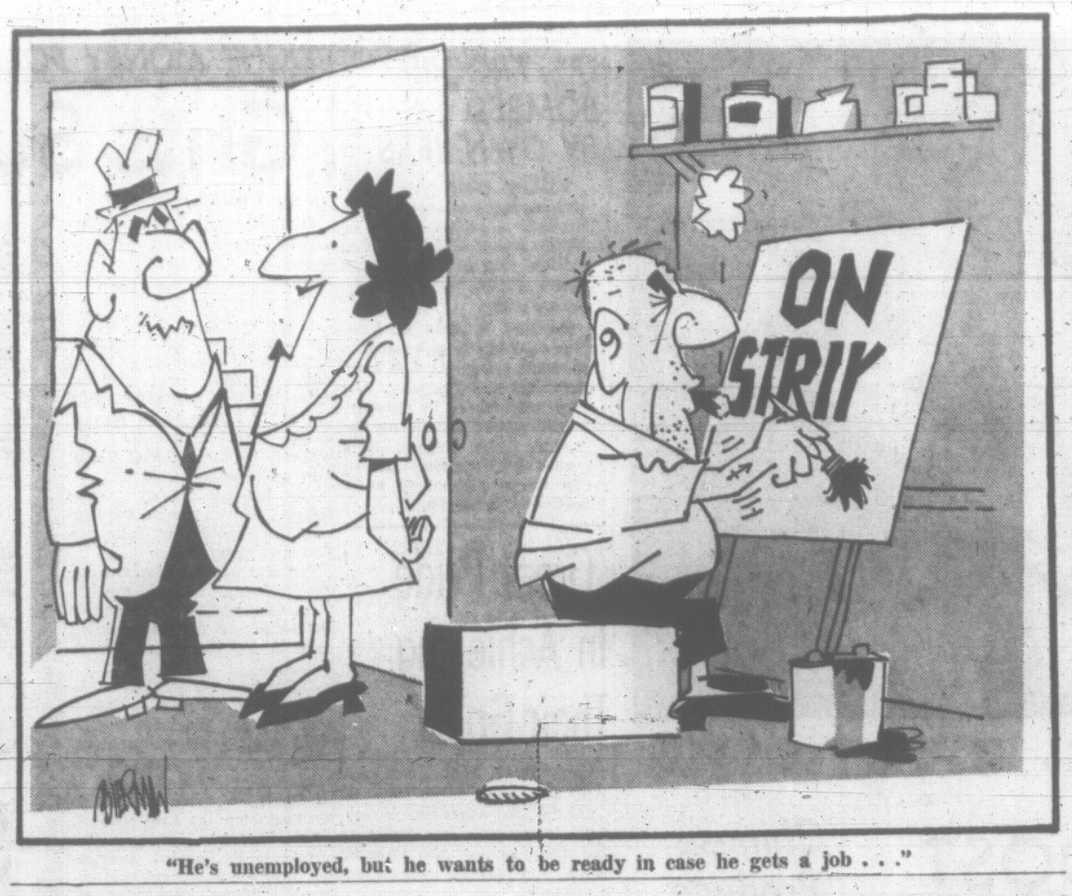

Fortunately, in neither case, apparently, was the radioactivity heavy enough to cause immediate damage. Many scientists, of course, are suspicious of any test which adds even a minute amount of radioactivity to the atmosphere on the grounds that the cumulative effect could be dangerous.

Officials of both the Soviet Union and the United States claim that the main purpose of their underground testing is to determine the usefulness of nuclear devices for massive construction projects—canals, tunnels and the like. And there is now evidence that both countries have been stepping up the frequency of this type of testing.

Since the limited test ban treaty was signed in August of 1963 the Russians have set off nine underground blasts. The United States has exploded 84 devices in the same time, but the American Atomic Energy Commission claims that they have evidence to prove that the Russians are setting off vastly more powerful explosions than is the United States.

Carefully controlled use of nuclear explosions could be a boon where they were used to rearrange great areas of the landscape to man's advantage. But the hazards must be great as well. The Nevada accident, for instance, resulted from unexpected fissuring of the ground which the geologists had been unable to anticipate. The Soviet accident, the Americans believe, happened during a "cratering" experiment and could have resulted from underestimating the force of the explosion. The Americans, incidentally, plan to conduct a number of "cratering" experiments this year and next, along with what AEC officials describe as more ambitious blasts directly related to the problem of gouging out a new Panama canal.

The question to answer is whether the risks of contamination merit the use of nuclear explosives for such a job. It may be that a "clean" bomb can be achieved, in which case the problem will be solved.

A Look at Canada's Immigration Record

THE immigration branch of the department of citizenship and immigration has now published detailed statistics, indicating that Canada received 146,758 immigrants last year. This is an improvement of 30 per cent over 1964, the "upsurge" being attributed primarily to an intensification of recruitment activities and to an expansion of examination facilities. It is interesting to read that almost all countries are represented in the increase, which reflects the "global concept of Canada's immigration policies and regulations."

Western

In view of the sorry record of recent years, an increase is scarcely surprising. How adventurous is this "global concept" and how satisfactory are the actual results?

There are almost 20 million people in Canada and our labor force in March totalled 7,162,000. On examining the departmental statistics we find that only 74,195 of the immigrants (50.5 per cent) were destined for the labor force. The rest were wives and children (about 66,000) and appproximately 6,400 described as other dependants or retired persons.

From this net addition to the labor force, we must subtract our losses in emigration, mainly to the United States. Statistics on emigration are not published but the outflow is substantial and it is reasonble to assume that most of them go south in search of better economic opportunities; in other words, they are people lost to the Canadian labor force.

Whatever the concept, it must be apparent from the department's own figures that we still have a cautious policy of minimal immigration. There are, of course, difficulties in obtaining immigrants ibecause of general prosperity overseas and because some countries such as France, discourage an outward movement. But there is a very strong suggestion in these latest statistics that the basic difficulty is the department's own managerial policy.

Urgent Need

It is obvious that our most urgent need in immigration is for skilled workers and these are the people most difficult to attract because the shortage of skills is apparent in most industrial countries. But a policy that emphasizes skills can very easily become a no risk policy. (This may be the more likely now that manpower and immigration are being combined in a single department). No obvious job opportunity, no immigrant.

How much risk did the department run in 1965? Of the 74,195 persons destined for the labor market who were admitted to Canada, we find that 1,728 were owners, managers or officials. We find that another 16,654 were professional people. Gilt-edged investments — no risk here.

But we then find that the great majority of the others listed are people with specific trade qualifications; plumbers, electricians, machinists and so on. This nation of 20 millions, which was built by not very specialized immigrants, dared last year to admit 7,112 general laborers. How adventurous can the department get?

Let it be said, in fairness, that we also admitted 2,362 farmers and farm workers. Space was found in Saskatchewan for exactly 43. No charge of recklessness can be brought against the department of immigration. We find, in consequence, that it is now necessary to admit some Jamaicans for the summer months with strict safeguards to ensure that they go home at the proper time.

Nor is this all, Mr. Robarts only last week complained rather bitterly that: "Ontario is suffering from a severe shortage of labor, especially skilled labor. Our seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for the month of January was 2.4 per cent. This means that unemployment is down to a hard core, made up very largely of seasonal workers and unemployables. Current output is being held down by shortages, not only of skilled workers . . . even semi-skilled and unskilled."

Would the economy be seriously threatened if the department relaxed its regulations sufficiently to consider not merely skills but also aptitude for acquiring skills?

It does seem, in any event, that some recent warnings about immigration are unduly alarmist. In his second report on immigration. Mr. Joseph Sedgwick included this passage: "From some areas at least immigration has become almost totally sponsored to the exxclusion of immigration based on selection having regard to the immigrant's skill, ability etc. To put it another way, immigration ceases to be a matter of selection by the government in relation to Canada's needs and absorptive capacity but becomes largely selection by sponsors based on some family relationship."

If this danger exists, it is odd that the department does not give a breakdown of sponsored and unsponsored immigration so that the problem would be apparent to the public. From its own statistics any threat to our absorptive capacity seems to be highly remote. Apart from unauthorized immigration, probably encouraged by the over-selectivity of our officials, it would appear that the department has the situation under the tighest of tight controls.

Unfortunately we have had three ministers of immigration, a reorganization and various inquiries in a very brief period. All the ministers were able but none had an adequate opportunity to master his job. It is now up to Mr. Marchand, not merely to say the right things (which his predecessors have been saying at intervals for a long time) but also to get some results. On the basis of the department's publication, the results last year were almost nil and certainly do not justify a glowing recital of percentages, upsurges and global concepts. What the country seems to need is less official fussiness and more people.

Can the U.S. Reverse Its War Objectives?

IT is curious that criticism of American policy in Viet Nam is much less respectable in Britain than in the United States. Senator Fulbright, Robert Kennedy, Professor Galbraith and George Kennan do not belong to the extreme Left and are all forthright critics of their country's Vietnamese policy. No one of comparable type and standing has echoed their criticisms in Britain.

The government has put itself in a position where it cannot offer frank advice to the Americans. Its tongue is tied partly by financial weakness, which makes it dependent on the U.S. Treasury to save sterling from devaluation, and partly by what Christopher Mayhew described when he resigned as navy minister last February as the "dangerous dependence" of British defence policy on American support, especially in the Far East.

What would the government say to America if it were free to speak frankly? Nobody knows. But I would like to suggest what it ought to be saying—and I emphasize that I am speaking purely from a pragmatic standpoint. I criticize only the means which the Americans are adopting to achieve their ends and that chiefly because they have mistaken their real ends.

There is no prospect of winning the war in Viet Nam. True, the Americans are seeking only a military stalemate followed by a political settlement. But that is not enough for two reasons. The first, to which I shall return, is that such a settlement would create more problems than it solved. The second is that even a military stalemate cannot be achieved without measures going far beyond those at present authorized.

Mr. Woodhouse was MP for Oxford and a junior minister in Britain's last Conservative government. He is a former director-general of the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Past experience—in Greece, Malaya, Korea and French Indo-China itself — points to three conditions for victory in such a war, all of which are all lacking in Viet Nam. These are, first, that the people of the threatened territory should unreservedly support their government in its determination not to succumb (as in Greece); second, that the allied power supporting them should have unrestricted freedom of military operation over the whole territory at stake (as in Malaya); third, that the hostile forces should not have an open frontier behind them across which men and supplies can freely move —the Communist rebellion in Greece was crushed only when Tito closed the Graeco-Yugoslav frontier after his quarrel with Stalin.

The Americans can do nothing about the first condition. To create a will to resist among the people of South Viet Nam is a task which only a Vietnamese Government can carry out. No prospect of it exists.

Third Condition

The third condition also lies beyond the Americans' power. At least, they could fulfil it only by also fulfilling the second condition — that is, by overrunning North Viet Nam up to the Chinese frontier. But this runs contrary to the declared objectives of the U.S. Government. It would at best destroy any hope of a negotiated settlement, and at worst — which is more probable — entail war with Communist China.

So the Americans cannot achieve a negotiated settlement by their present methods. Even if they could, what would be the consequence? Such a settlement would mean, in intention, a continuation of the partition of Viet Nam: in other words, a return to 1954. Partition would either be temporary — and who can doubt that if reunification eventually followed, it would be under Communist control? — or permanent. A permanent partition could be maintained only by a permanent military occupation — and neither American nor international public opinion would stand for such a reversion to "Colonialism."

There seems, then, no practical alternative to the eventual take-over of South Viet Nam by the Vietnamese Communists, by whatever route the result is reached. It would entail great suffering and hardship for hundreds of thousands of people who have pinned their hopes to the Americans. (To this it can only be replied that there is no future for them which does not entail great suffering and hardship). It would also be an unexampled humiliation for the Americans.

But these very damaging consequences have to be set against the consequences of the alternative. To carry on the war as at present must lead to one of two things: either an interminable commitment at the present level, or an extension culminating in a major conflagration, if not a third world war. It may fairly be asked whether the price of peace is too high to set against these alternatives.

There is another important consideration. To allow Viet Nam to be reunited under Communist control might serve the Americans' real interests better than the negotiated settlement at which they now profess to be aiming — in other words, it may be that they have misconceived their real interests in Southeast Asia.

What is the fundamental interest of the U.S. and indeed of the West as a whole? It is to contain the expansion of Chinese Communist imperialism. How is that best done? The only precedent is the containment of Soviet imperialism in south-east Europe, which was achieved not by NATO (except as a factor in the background) but by the defection of Tito.

If the Yugoslav precedent is anything to go by — and there is nothing else to go by — then the best buffer against Chinese expansion would be a united, nationalist, Communist Viet Nam. Is it too late to attempt such a policy?

There are formidable difficulties. Ho Chi Minh is an old man now: he once had the makings of a Tito, but it is to his successor that we must now look, and nobody knows who he will be. But there is good reason to believe that no Vietnamese leader, Communist or otherwise, wants to be subservient to China. To this extent Titoism is bred in the bone of the Vietnamese Communists.

Admit the Facts

No American Government could simply announce its conversion to a policy of surrendering South Viet Nam to the Communists. But is it impossible for the government to admit inescapable facts to itself?

These are, first, that such a surrender is the only alternative to permanent occupation or interminable war; and secondly, that America's real interests would be better served in this than in any other way. Such a recognition of reality, without an open admission, could then inform the approach to the stalemate and negotiated settlement which are an accepted part of American policy. There is a great difference between pursuing the same policy with the wrong object in view and pursuing the same policy with a more realistic object in view.

Such an undeclared change of heart can be brought about only by the Americans themselves. But they are always open to sincere and even critical advice from their proven friends. No other government is better placed than the British, by reason of loyalty, sympathy and experience, to give such advice. But no British government can do so while it is itself committed to unmanageable policies which debar it from speaking its mind frankly and independently in Washington.

Letters

Needless

In reference to the above articles in your issue of May 3, I was more than pleased to note that the Capital Planning Association of Canada is opposed to the Needle.

Yes, "Why copy Seattle!" Let us be original and creative and make use of our natural beauty. We as citizens of Victoria should be very proud of the transformation being carried on by the city.

Victoria is a lesson in creative design in stone, brick and wood, equal if not better, than many cities in Canada. The blending of the old with the new from which we could learn a lesson in this our centennial year, to respect our heritage, and make Canada an example to the world.—Alex MacLeod Baird.

Prediction

Affluent, great and dynamic societies are the stars to attract and delude the thoughtless. British Columbians must be wondering about their part in the great play of "dynamics" and the financing of same, with the assumed need for a bank just to put the "borrowed" money in. For without a doubt the bookkeeping will be accredited to the electorate whichever color—black or red. Nor all the smiles of any premier obscure the writing or delay the day of reckoning when the stage lights fade.—Ellen Hart, Chesterfield, East Sooke.

Battle of Vimy Ridge, 1917

In reading the article in your issue of May 13 about Lt.-Col. Walter Bapty and the 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Scottish, I note there is a reference to the battle of Vimy Ridge as being in 1916. This is completely wrong. As one who took part in it with the Victoria Rifles of Canada—24th Battalion—I well remember that Easter Monday on April 9, 1917.

Regarding the barrage prior to our jumping off from our trenches, without a doubt it was one of the fiercest ever used in an attack in modern warfare. Whilst with the Canadian Army in Europe on April 9, 1945, it was my privilege to escort a party of Canadian infantry officers over the Vimy battlefront and they agreed that from what they saw of the indentations made by the barrage of April 1917, it was a wonder that anyone on both sides survived. We did, however, and took the Ridge within a matter of hours.

The Vimy Memorial situated on this spot is a splendid tribute to those who fell on that momentous occasion and many of the actual trenches and dugouts are still visible and maintained in perpetuity for those to see who visit that far-off field. We may have lost the Red Ensign but we won the battle of Vimy Ridge, which should always be in our memory.—A. D. McCrindle (MBE), 24th Battalion, Victoria Rifles of Canada, 628 Dallas Road.

Armed Forces

Were our soldiers who fought under unit numbers any less brave? Unit numbers were about the last thing on their minds.

It seems to this writer that the word tradition (ancient customs) has been not only over-worked in relation to our country, but misplaced. It is selfish to deny us the right to form our own for the future.—Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Road.

Communication the Key To World Understanding

By LESTER B. PEARSON

(Extracts from the address given by the Prime Minister at the Appreciation Dinner of the School of International Affairs of Columbia University in New York last week.)

There is no greater or more frustrating problem facing us than that of meaningful and creative communication between peoples.

Today, we can keep in touch with a satellite a million miles away in space but our contact with a man a few miles away behind an iron or bamboo curtain is too often either non-existent or merely a "dialogue of the deaf."

The conduct of successful diplomacy has always depended on clear communication in language — oral or written — where plans, intentions, and decisions are expressed in accurate and understandable terms. Too often today the danger of such dependence has been exposed by the complete breakdown of communication, or by communication which deceives, either by calculation or by the use of ambiguous language which leads to later accusations of bad faith.

Diplomatic negotiation also requires perception and skill in the analysis of motives; of the forces, the aspirations and fears that determine the actions of men, and governments. In the absence of meaningful communication this aspect of diplomacy, of course, is made difficult and at times impossible.

Unhappy Evidence In Viet Nam

We have unhappy evidence of this in the current and tragic situation in Viet Nam where the danger is increased by the absence of any direct, meaningful contact or communication between the main protagonists.

I would not wish to be too pessimistic. I know that progress to peace and better understanding between peoples is being made. The clash of ideology between Moscow and the West is not as bitter or as brittle as it was even 15 years ago. The re-evaluation of interest based on the suicidal folly of war is going on between the two worlds.

Peaceful co-existence is coming to mean something more than living side by side while moving inexorably toward a fatal collision. In some contexts, at least, international situations are now being faced and discussed in terms that visualize the possibility of co-operative solutions rather than the inevitability of conflict. There is less of polemic in debate, less distortion of motive, and a calmer consideration of the cause and effect of differences between Communist and non-Communist societies, than there was 10 years ago.

Must Exclude Red Chinese

From this improvement I have to exclude Communist China. I admit that this is a considerable exclusion and it sensibly modifies the optimism one can get from the views I have just expressed.

Even though there has been improvement, the difficulties in bringing about the kind of international communication that can help, rather than hurt, international understanding, remain.

Take the case of Communist China. The manifestos issuing from Peking insist on the inevitability and the permanence of bitter struggle between the "Communist" and the "bourgeois" world; on a permanent revolutionary confrontation until Communism triumphs, whatever the price may be in human destruction.

This dangerous ideological rigidity may be genuine and deep-rooted. But even more likely to be genuine and deep-rooted is the conviction on which it is based, that the capitalist world is determined on every possible occasion to take every possible form of hostile action against the Communist world, on every possible occasion; a conviction based on Communism's own ideological teaching of what is bound to happen in the circumstances which they believe now exist.

Fear of U.S. Staying On

A contemporary and concrete expression of this conviction, this fear — political and ideological — is that the U.S.A. is bound to remain in Viet Nam, whatever assurances it may give to the contrary; to remain there with massive power and in effective occupation, without any intention of withdrawing, whatever settlement may be negotiated, so that it may use Viet Nam as a base to destroy the Communist regime in China.

Such a fear on the part of China's Communist leaders may be a merely tactical move to strengthen their own position with the Chinese people — fear is a great cement — or it may be based on a genuine, but dangerous miscalculation that could mean all-out war.

How are we going to put ourselves in a better position to analyze and understand such fears and suspicions?

By bringing about better communication.

But how can we do this? It takes two to communicate — even if it takes only one to disagree and defy.

I reject, of course, the Chinese Communist analysis that all the evils the world suffers are due to capitalist imperialism centred in Washington. I am not prepared to accept at face value most of their pronouncements on political, economic or social questions.

But I ask myself whether it would not assist in trying to understand why they make these analyses and say these things if the government of Peking were subjected to the influences that come from greater world involvement; to the contacts and exchanges of views that come from fuller participation in the international community; and especially in the United Nations.

I know the difficulties; especially the difficulties that the Peking government itself has created in laying down terms that others cannot accept.

But the whole question remains urgent and we cannot continue to shelve it much longer.

Situation Not Unchangeable

I believe that there are forces in Peking which make for aggression and war. But I refuse to contemplate this situation as permanently unchangeable. There is no hope for peace and for the world in that conclusion.

Therefore, we should not base our policy toward Communist China on the conviction that that regime has now developed an ideology — as the basis for its policies — with immutable rules and a perpetual fanatical force which is not now, and will not ever be, liable to the same internal and external forces that have led to changes in the policies and attitudes of European Communist governments.

I know that diplomacy between Peking and the West has become virtually paralyzed; that communication has been largely cut off, entirely so with the U.S.A.; that language — as well as thought — has been distorted to become an instrument of conflict; that any calm examination of the realities of a particular international situation seems impossible.

But I do not accept the permanence of such a situation. For one reason, people in all countries — whoever they may be — are moving closer together in the things they actually want for themselves, in the kind of life they seek.

People's Wants Not So Different

An inquiry recently conducted covering many countries, into this matter of human aspiration and desires, showed that most politically conscious people in other parts of the world seem to want something not very different from what Americans want. I don't know how much comfort you get from that!

The fact is that there is growing evidence of a coming-together among all people—if not among all governments—in terms of material objectives and—at the same time—a growing tendency toward political and economic diversity in how most effectively to achieve them. This makes it quite unrealistic any longer to think of the world in terms of solid and unbreakable blocs: Communist, anti-Communist or uncommitted.

Communism is clearly not now—as our fears thought it to be some years back, and with justification—a solid, cohesive, daemonic political force driving toward world conquest even at the risk of world destruction. Communist theory is now being interpreted to an increasing extent by individual Communist nations to mean what they consider it expedient to mean in terms of their own interests. Often those interests dictate increasing contact and co-operation with the west.

New Chances For Relations

Today there are new opportunities to develop relations with communist countries on a more rational basis and with greater freedom from ideological interference by the head office; or acceptance of such interference by the "branch factory."

This offers the promise of better relations and greater understanding in a growing number of fields. I share in the hope that the beginning of exchanges in the scientific, cultural and communication fields might lead to political and economic contact to the general advantage.

I don't exclude—I can't exclude — Communist China from this for improved relations; however great the obstacles in the way may now seem to be.

That is why I welcome recent expressions by the United States government that they do not wish to see Communist China isolated; that they are concerned with the desirability of creating a climate of greater understanding which could lead to more promising political contacts. I am sure that this is one of the main reasons why your government has, time and again, stated its desire to bring about, without delay or preconditions, a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam conflict.

Behind the most immediate fears and current animosities and political misunderstanding, however, there is an even more disturbing danger that racial and cultural hostility, unrelieved by any fruitful contact, will persist and become deeply rooted.

The Tragedy Of Isolation

This would be the supreme tragedy; that so many hundreds of millions of people, representing one of the world's great civilizations, should isolate themselves from others, in perpetual fear and hostility.

Every country has its own responsibility to try to prevent such a result—however discouraging the reaction from Peking may be at this time. To this end we must take advantage of every opportunity to bring about contact and communication in the interest of better relations.

In the case of continental China—as of every country in the world, especially those in emerging continents—there must be more, not less of direct involvement on our part. And we must become involved before, not after, trouble breaks out. . . .

Perhaps such total involvement, and deepened awareness could be called "escalation of positive participation." That word "escalation" doesn't have to be associated only with conflict. . . .

In earlier post-war years, we, in North America, were to some extent shielded from some of the realities and the necessities of this kind of universal and direct involvement by our fixation with Western Europe and the Atlantic; by our efforts to secure goodwill and support elsewhere with aid and technical assistance; by our reluctance to admit that the national interest was as much involved in what went on in Beira as in Berlin.

U.S. Must Bear Largest Share

The U.S., of course, must continue to bear the biggest share of the burden that comes from greater involvement and extended participation. That is the price of power—and not the result of conscious policy. Moreover, you have to bear this international burden without hope of material gain or expectation of popular gratitude. You can acqure respect but not affection. You are too big, too strong, and too rich to be loved.

My own country—a much smaller one—is as deeply involved in the world's affairs as any country of its size. We accept this because we have learned over 50 years that isolation from the policies that determine war does not give us immunity from the bloody, sacrificial consequences of their failure. We learned that in 1914 and again in 1939.

That is why we are proud to work with the U.S.A., our great friend and good neighbor in the search for security and the promotion of peace and progress in the world.

That is why we have been proud to send our men to take part in every peace-keeping operation of the United Nations, in Korea, and Kashmir, and the Suez, and the Congo and Cyprus.

THE GREAT POWER OF LANGUAGE

Scala International
Frankfurt-am-Main

What an abundance of power language possesses! The written or printed word can get mountains on the move, the spoken word can even move them from one place to another; for, like arrows shot from a bow, the impact of the spoken word can be even greater than that of the written word.

However, this only appears to be a value judgment. Admittedly, the speed with which the spoken word can be disseminated cannot be achieved by the printed word, except insofar as it makes use of television, but, as is so often the case, there is justification in regarding this speed with some scepticism, since it is fond of making use of emotions which spread outwards like the rings formed when a pebble is dropped in a pool of water.

An Exception

If there existed a textbook of demagogism a lot of room for expansion would be assured for these emotions that are constantly self-propagating through the word. However, this effect can, fortunately, be regarded as an exception compared with the beneficial use we all make of the gift of speech every day, every hour for minutes whose number cannot be estimated — although there are certainly people who abuse this gift.

We all would be helpless, if this blessing of nature were suddenly taken from us, if we were all as mute as fishes are proverbially supposed to be, if all the things we say in our daily lives had to remain unsaid — if that moment no longer existed in our lives in which we say "I love you."

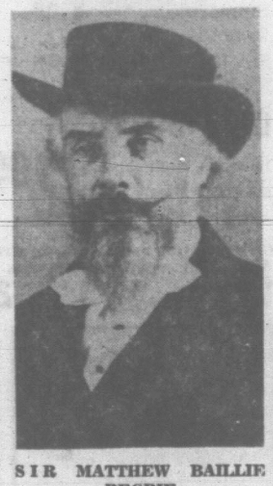

Unrealistic

Admittedly, it would be foolish and unrealistic to claim a priori an agreement in political maxims simply because they were formulated in the same language, as though the difference between freedom and its opposite existed only in variations of pronunciation and grammar.

But no one could seriously doubt that it is a good thing to be able to speak to one's neighbor in his own language. Reduced to sign language, one may well be able to get off an unmistakeable "yes" or "no," but between these two words lies the whole gamut of human life, including politics.

The understanding of foreign languages may not represent a guarantee for a better world, but it goes a long way towards avoiding misunderstandings and deepening friendships.

Founders Of B.C.

SIR MATTHEW BAILLIE BEGBIE

The Fraser gold rush of 1858 brought 30,000 gold-hungry trail pounders to the mainland and Island colonies from all parts of the world. Boisterous, often devoid of scruples and lacking allegiance to any flag, they had to be kept in check. The man who tamed them was Matthew Baillie Begbie, first judge in this wilderness and later first chief justice of the province of British Columbia.

A struggling, young London barrister with a trim Van Dyke and luminous eyes, he had been a top student at Cambridge and an all-round athlete, and a singer of repute. But he was firm in the law and fierce in his application of it.

His life, holding circuit court, became colored with legends of the bully he flattened with one blow, of the plotters he quelled with a bucket of dirty water, of the floggings and hangings he ordered. In truth, he had a horror of taking a human life, contemporaries wrote. But he kept the peace by his very presence on his horse-back circuit.

He was less respected in calmer days for his handling of mining disputes and 600 miners once sought his removal. In 1870 however, he was made chief justice of the united colonies, first man to hold that office. Given a knighthood he died in office in 1894 at age 75.

'Emergency Powers' Legislation Makes Some West Germans Nervous

THE ECOMOMIST

BONN — After all that has happened within living memory it is understandable that Germans are inclined to be suspicious of each other.

"We have here a very nervous political climate," is how the editor of Der Spiegel and his deputy mildly put it last week in an interview with the west German minister of the interior.

The minister agreed. And delegates to the trade union congress in Berlin proved the point all week. They booed, hissed and groaned at President Lubke at Monday's inaugural ceremony.

The did so because the president was appealing to them, as good democrats, to support the search for legislation that would empower the government to take radical measures to preserve law, order and thereby democracy in time of war or some vast natural disaster.

Most of the trade unionists — there are some six million of them in west Germany — see these plans chiefly as a plot to deprive them of their right to choose their own job, to work where they want to and to strike should grievances go unheeded.

Social Critic

One of their more distinguished witnesses is the philosopher and social critic Professor Karl Jaspers. In his book "Whither the Federal Republic?," which came out in Germany this month, Professor Jaspers asserts that the emergency powers which the federal government has in mind would make it easy for any resolute group to set up a dictatorship on the pretext that catastrophe, if it had not actually struck, was gathering round the corner.

In today's circumstances such a coup, the professor submits, would probably take the form of a concealed military dictatorship, operating through pliable professional politicians and civil servants.

It is a dark thought. Listening to the sound and fury of this intricate controversy, the foreign observer is favorably impressed by the participants. healthy curiosity. But there are also moments when he begins to wonder whether there may not be an unhealthy state of political hypochondria in west Germany. There are so many vociferous critics who proclaim that German democracy is already doomed, and seem to resent any sign to the contrary.

Reservation

When the Allies gave "sovereignty" to west Germany on May 5, 1955, the three occupying powers made an important reservation. They retained the right to protect the security of their forces stationed in the country until "the responsible German authorities have received corresponding powers through German legislation and are consequently in a position to protect the security of these forces, which would entail capability to deal with a serious disturbance of public security and order."

The three powers, slipping quickly into the costume of allies, promised that should they feel compelled in the meantime to exercise their prerogative they would properly consult the federal government before doing so.

That was eleven years ago. The Bundestag is still at loggerheads with itself over the legislation required to consummate the federal government's sovereignty.

Two successive ministers of the interior, first Herr Schroder and then Herr Hocherl, failed between 1957 and 1965 to muster enough support — a two-thirds majority — for draft laws whose acceptance would have equipped the government with the tools for the job.

Despite the obvious prosperity of West Germany, reflected in the bright lights of West Berlin's Kurfurstendamm, many Germans are uneasy over what the future holds for democracy in their country.

But last summer Herr Hocherl did persuade the Bundestag, in spite of deep misgivings among the Social Democrats, to pass seven laws authorizing the government to direct much of the country's life in the event of a "state of emergency" or — and this sounds extremely sinister to the trade unions — "within the framework of preparation for defence."

Four of these laws would empower the government more or less to run the whole of industry and commerce, the transport system and the country's food and water supplies. Pessimists anticipate conscription of workers, requisitioning of factories, farms, private cars and like deprivations of freedom, even in time of peace.)

Civil Defence

The other three concern civil defence. One, for instance, envisages the raising of a civil defence corps of over 200,000. What the Bundestag still has to do is to agree by a majority of two-thirds who whould be empowered to pronounce that a state of emergency had arrived. Naturally this would be the Bundestag itself, if possible. But in the event of, say, a nuclear attack, would parliament be able to assemble?

The present minister of the interior, Herr Paul Lucke, is engaged in political manoeuvres intended to carry with him two-thirds of the Bundestag over this last hurdle on the road to sovereignty. Herr Erhard singled him out last autumn for the job partly because he is on good terms with the Social Democrats.

The kernel of Herr Lucke's solution to the dilemma of reconciling resort to government by decree with parliamentary control is to establish an all-party "general committee" composed of 22 members of the Bundestag and eleven of the Bundesrat (the upper house, composed of representatives of the eleven Lander). This general committee would make the fateful decision in the name of parliament.

By arranging for each member to have a deputy it would be possible, Herr Lucke reckons, for the committee to be on call in Bonn day and night throughout the year.

Herr Lucke hopes that within the next few weeks he will be able to extract sufficient promise of support from the party leaders in the Bundestag to justify him in initiating the last stage of the emergency powers legislation. He expects it will take two years to finish the labyrinthine course. Skeptical parliamentarians apart, Herr Lucke is also hoping to persuade incredulous trade unionists and professors of the innocence and necessity of the government's plans.

In every modern state, he has pointed out, the government has immense powers in reserve.

What is unique to Germany is the magnitude of its citizens' suspicion of each other.

THE GALLUP POLL

U.S. TV Slight Favorite With Canadian Viewers

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

By a narrow margin, the average citizen in this country feels that United States television is better than Canadian TV.

Just more than four in ten adults (41%) root for U.S. television and just less than four in ten (36%) say Canadian programs are better.

Not unexpectedly, in French Quebec the viewers (66%) are far more partial to Canadian programs than American. In Ontario and the West, on the other hand, where U.S. stations are available, more than half the population likes American programs best.

When asked to name their favorite program a wide range was included. But it was two Canadian programs that headed the list as equal favorites—hockey and This Hour Has Seven Days.

Other programs to draw enthusiastic viewers are the Don Messer show, Bonanza, movies, Peyton Place, The Fugitive, Man From Uncle, and many others.

The question: "You have probably watched a lot of United States and Canadian programs on TV; which, speaking generally, do you think are better—Canadian or U.S.?"

	Total	Quebec	Ontario	West
Canadian better	36%	66%	24%	23%
U.S. better	41	15	52	51
No difference	14	12	16	15
No opinion	9	7	8	11
	100%	100%	100%	100%

Economic Laws Suffer Change

Corporations Play Major Role In U.S. Foreign Policy – Kierans

MONTREAL (CP)—Eric Kierans, Quebec health minister, told members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors today that U.S. foreign investment is coming under a cloud and becoming synonymous with political interference and economic imperialism.

Mr. Kierans, Quebec revenue minister until last year, sparked a controversy a few months ago when he criticized U.S. guidelines on the reinvestment of earnings, repatriation of funds and purchasing policies of Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms.

Mr. Kierans told the U.S. editors that many who believe firmly in the basic laws of economics have the uncomfortable feeling that they are becoming more irrelevant with each passing day.

Mr. Kierans said that as a result "foreign investment comes under a cloud and becomes synonymous with political interference and economic imperialism."

U.S. economic power was based on the hundreds of huge international corporations operating in all corners of the world. Of the 300 largest world corporations, two of every three, were American and the book value of their foreign assets was close to $50,000,000,000.

Mr. Kierans continued:

"Mr. Fowler (secretary of the U.S. council of the International Chamber of Commerce) calls these corporations 'mighty engines of enlightened capitalism and then goes on to say 'for this nation (the U.S.) they have not only a commercial importance but a highly significant role in U.S. foreign policy.

"Could any statement be clearer and more blunt? Your large corporations are expected to serve the interests of American foreign policy and, as Mr. Fowler states, 'much more is involved than economic advantages of investors of capital and the return of profits.' Forgive us if most of us thought that the essence of your enterprise system was the pursuit of profits and a return of the capital invested.

RESENTED BY CANADA

"What do you expect our reaction to be when you order Canadian subsidiaries to import more from their American parents, to return idle cash balances to the United States and to declare larger dividends?

"Canadian subsidiaries should have the right to buy in the best market, to reinvest funds and to declare such dividends as their directors deem to be in the best interests of the company."

Mr. Kierans said that if any nation's interests or economic objectives are to be considered, they should be the national interests of the country in which the subsidiaries are located. Otherwise the guidelines were an infringement of political sovereignty.

If there is a resentment in Canada, he said, it is because the United States, owning tremendous segments of Canada's manufacturing, mining, smelting and petroleum industries, is using its privileged position in a manner which threatens the attainment of Canada's own economic objectives, accentuates structural distortions in Canada's economy and weakens the country's competitive position.

Brave Sailor Bound Up By Red Tape

ROSYTH, Scotland (Reuters) — A young Royal Navy officer who risked his life to destroy a wartime mine has been court martialled for forgetting to lock up secret documents before embarking on his mission.

Lieut. John Baker, 20, swam in darkness with explosives strapped to his back to destroy the mine in the Firth of Clyde in March.

Tuesday he was sentenced to be reprimanded for failing to lock up three bags of secret papers in his ship before plunging into the water.

He fixed a detonator to the mine but it failed to explode. He swam to the mine again, not knowing if it would suddenly explode, and attached another detonator which did the job.

Baker's defence lawyer said the secret papers were out of date and were due to be disposed of.

The sentence was subject to confirmation.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A 750-ton Japanese vessel has been chartered by the federal government to survey stocks of whales off Canada's east coast and experiment with new catch methods.

Wyse Elected Nanaimo Chief

NANAIMO — Bill Rice Wyse Tuesday was elected chief of the Nanaimo Indian band.

He defeated incumbent Chief Douglas White, who has held the post for four years.

Councilors elected were William Seward, Don White, Mrs. Clara Wilson and Mrs. Florence Thomas.

'UN Should Own High Seas'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A private commission proposed Tuesday night that the United Nations take over ownership of the high seas and outer space and use them as independent sources of income.

In its 17th annual report, the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace also said UN Secretary-General U Thant should recruit and pay his own permanent, trouble-shooting force of 2,000 soldiers.

The same body also suggested that while the 117-nation General Assembly should keep its rule of one vote to each country, it should have year-round working committes of limited membership weighed in favor of the countries with the greatest power, interest or responsibility.

The commission is part of the United Nations Association of the U.S.

TOWN BACKS FIJIAN

Magistrate Praises, Fines Logger

VANCOUVER (CP) — Phillip Shankar, 21, who says he prefers working here to "sleeping under a banana tree" in his native Fiji, was fined $200 Tuesday for entering Canada illegally.

He immediately filed an appeal against his deportation.

Magistrate Gerald Levey praised Shankar for his attitiude and bearing throughout the long court proceedings. The magistrate also said he was impressed with the numerous testimonials supplied by the RCMP, Shankar's employer and friends.

The Fijian, who jumped ship in Victoria in the summer of 1963, had been working continuously in Gold River as a rigger for the Tahsis Logging Company. He was arrested last October.

"I am confident his (Shankar) excellent work record and the friends he has gained since coming here will go a long way in his favor," said lawyer Gordon Dowding, who filed the appeal against deportation.

PETITION SIGNED

Dowding told the magistrate that almost the entire population of Gold River had signed a petition asking the federal government to allow Shankar to stay in Canada.

When he appeared in court after being arrested last October, Shankar said: "I came here because I wanted to go to a vigorous country. I was fed up sleeping under a banana tree doing nothing.

"I want to be in a country where I can work and have a future."

DOG DOPING CHEATS JAILED

LONDDON (CP) — Two men, who allegedly refused to pay a Canadian woman the money they promised for feeding doped meat to racing greyhounds, each were sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison for conspipracy to cheat and defraud.

Margaret Murray, 26, who came here from Canada to work and then returned home after her experience with the dopers, was flown back to England to testify.

PLEA BY PETERSON

Trim All School Projects

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Education Minister Leslie Peterson appealed to school secretary-treasurers here Tuesday to trim all but the most essential school building projects because of the tight money situation.

Mr. Peterson was speaking to the annual conference of the British Columbia School District Secretary - Treasurers Association.

Asked later how seriously the borrowing problem will hit B.C. school construction, he said: "It would mean that some projects not urgent or essential would not be proceeded with at this particular time."

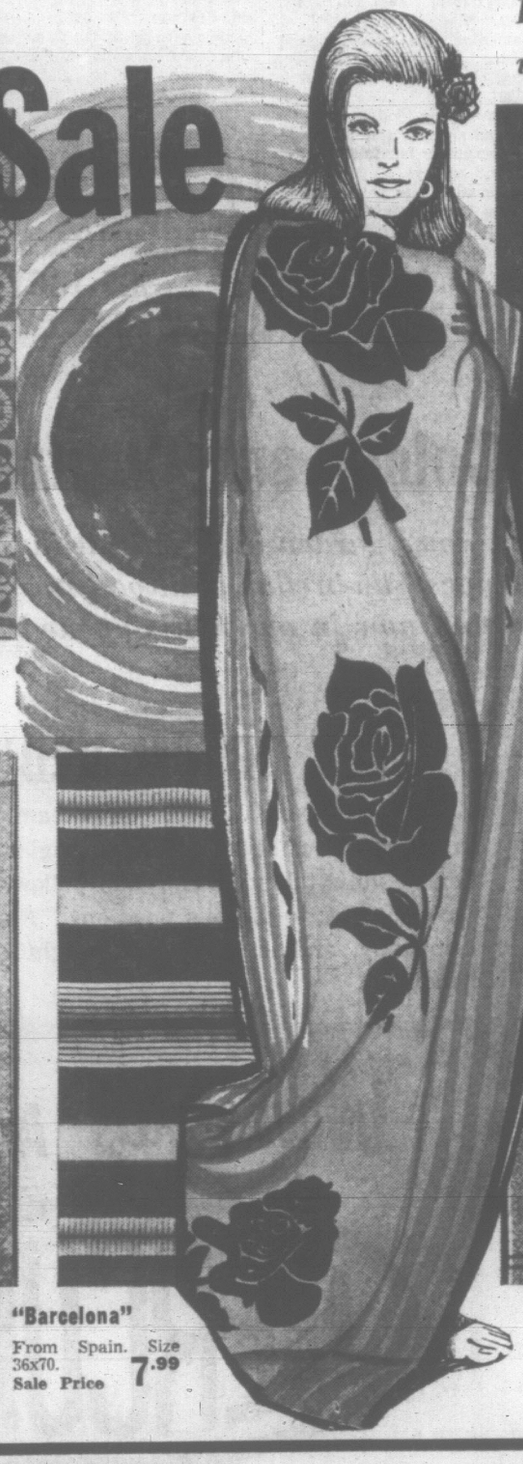

"I ask each of you in your own areas to scrutinize your building programs so that for the duration of this tight money situation only the most essential projects are advanced," he said.

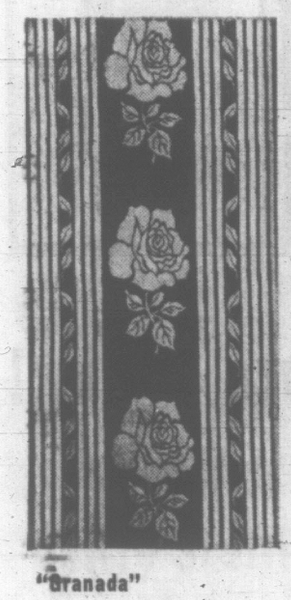

He criticized school trustees and professional educators for occasionally tending "to take the position that as long as something is good and desirable for education, we must have it regardless of cost."

"If all rapidly developing facets of education are to be adequately financed then we must all be concerned with getting the maximum for every dollar we spend."

16,000 ATTEND TUESDAY

Record Attendance Eyed By Exhibition Sponsors

Near dusk Tuesday Victoria Exhibition director Don Mathison looked down on the fair from the rock by the arena and said he couldn't believe it.

"If this keeps up," he said, "we'll have 15,000. It's just like a Friday night."

But the final attendance figure for Tuesday fair was well over 16,000.

Making the final count at their offices, the Jaycees, fair conveners, said the only trouble the big numbers brought them was lost children.

"But we usually find their parents without any fuss," said a Jaycee.

BIGGEST YET

Exhibition organizers have been preparing for what looks like their biggest carnival yet for a full year.

Since the week before last they've been working on 1967's spectacular.

Tuesday had its champions (a pretty little Hereford named Miss Golden Lass) and its goats. One of the fair's few sour notes is a strange unbeatable game involving a bottle and a fork. At 50 cents a try, not a soul has won the stuffed animal of his choice.

Tuesday had great numbers of children, square dancers from South Malahat conference 4-H clubs, and a shortage of hot dogs.

A man who knows, said Victoria's fair would "surprise us this year."

Len Ambler of Vancouver, who takes a booth at most of southern B.C. fairs to sell balloons and novelty T-shirts, says this year's fair packs more "punch" than other years' fairs.

His products, helium-filled balloons, and the shirts on which he stamps sick-joke messages (THE NEXT TRAIN LEAVES IN AN HOUR — BE UNDER IT, or I LOVE MY JOB IT'S THE WORK I HATE) are bought mostly by teen-agers and children.

DRIVES TRAIN

In the winter Len drives a department store kiddies' Christmas train in Vancouver.

A family vocation, his brother Ed has the same job for the same store in Victoria.

"But I like summers better. Maybe I only sell these things for a quarter, but I get a million dollars worth of conversation," he said.

Thursday's program is weighted to 4-H events and judging. Agricultural director George Nairn expects some strong competitors in sheep and dairy cow classes.

"I hope the square dancers draw the crowds up here Thursday like they did tonight," said George.

Preliminary judging of centennial beards will be held in the Curling Rink at 9 p.m. A whole host of hairy faces is vying for Thursday's sexiest n' scratchiest honors.

Actor a Cannibal

LIMA, Peru (Reuters) — Carlos Cordoba, a young Peruvian actor arrested on a murder charge, was described by police psychiatrists Wednesday as a cannibal who ate his victim's left foot. The body of the victim, a man, was cut up, the parts wrapped in newspaper and left scattered around Lima.

FELLOWSHIP has been awarded by University of Victoria to Mrs. Norma Mickelson, supervisor of elementary instruction in School Distr ct 63 (Saanich), for study towards a master's degree in education in the graduate school at Uvic.

Planetarium Imported

BERLIN (AP)—A planetarium ordered by the city of Toronto from the state-owned Carl Zeiss factory of East Germany will be completed and delivered by the end of June, the official East German news agency ADN reported Saturday.

BEST OF EVERYTHING

Big, Black, Arrogant Orpington Has Something to Crow About

By GLEN ALLEN

There are chickens and there are chickens.

The best chicken at the Victoria Exhibition is a rooster.

"I couldn't help giving him the whole shot," said fowl judge J. L. Lang. "Best Cock. Best Bird in Show, the best of everything."

Object of Mr. Lang's adulation was a shiny black, very big, arrogant, Australian Orpington owned by Willi Christensen.

You could hardly see him for the ribbons.

"I haven't seen better in Vancouver," said Mr. Lang who has done a lot of breeding showing and judging since his first exhibition (which he won) as a lad in 1904.

Mr. Lang judges on the Island and the near mainland. "Everything but fancy pheasants," he says.

He admits to having prejudices ("my favorite is a good Barred Plymouth Rock) but any good bird pleases him.

Mr. Lang, after all this time, can't say he's ever become what you'd call "close" to chickens.

But," he explains, "that's because they're not really at all affectionate.

"The good ones don't mind being handled, but you never make pets of them. We don't give them names. Even a champion is just known by his number."

Mr. Lang as judge has lots to look for.

"Each breed has its own body conformation. And there are other signs. I like to educate breeders when I judge. I tell them if I can why their bird doesn't deserve a ribbon.

"It's funny, you can see some real ugly chickens," he said.

Hereford: Junior champion — Miss Golden Lass, owned by Wes Swan.

Reserve Junior champion — Name unavailable, owned by T. J. Hereford Farm.

Female Grand champion—Miss Golden Lass, owned by Wes Swan.

Reserve Grand champion—Miss Golden Lass, owned by Wes Swan.

Holstein: Grand champion — Wayne Ianthe, owned by Stanhope Farms.

NON-SMOKERS DAY SLATED

The provincial cabinet Tuesday designated May 31 as Non-Smokers Day in British Columbia.

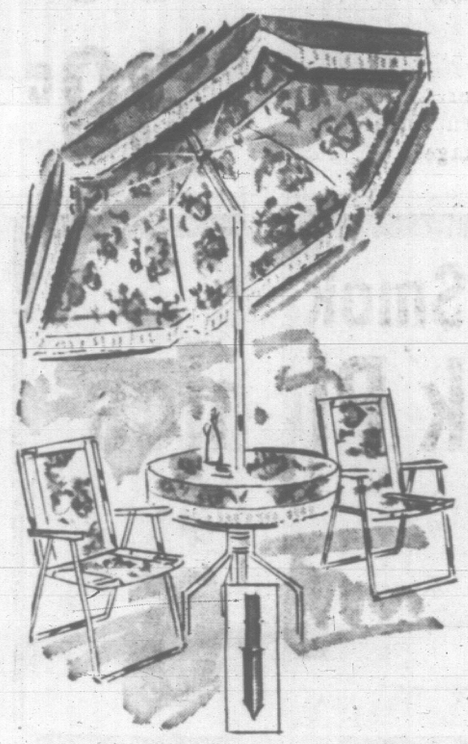

The proclamation noted that 408 British Columbians died of lung cancer last year.

LOUVAIN, Belgium (Reuters) —Police arrested 30 Flemish students here early today after riots against an ecclesiastical decree retaining equal status for Flemings and Walloons at the city's ancient Roman Catholic university.

23 SCHOLARSHIPS

Business Students Aided By Bronfman Foundation

Announcement of a graduate fellowship program for Canadian business administration students was made here Tuesday by Charles R. Bronfman, president of the House of Seagrams Ltd.

Mr. Bronfman told a combined meeting of Victoria Kiwanis and Chamber of Commerce at Empress Hotel:

"Canadian business should do everything to encourage better businessmen."

He said Canada has every resource needed for competition in the markets of the world but the nation has a problem of technological development compared to the United States and Russia.

The program involves 12 $1,000 scholarships, six $1,500 scholarships and five $4,500 fellowships and is sponsored by the Samuel Bronfman Foundation.

Applicants may come from any part of Canada and winners may use their scholarship at any of 12 universities, including University of British Columbia, but excluding University of Victoria which has no graduate business school.

THOSE ELIGIBLE

Students in both first and second years of graduate business programs leading to a masters degree; or students in any year of a doctorate, in any university, will be eligible.

Mr. Bronfman, in a pre-speech press conference, sketched an outline of the Seagram's business empire which has distilleries in Canada and Scotland; interests in Mumm's Champagnes in France, controls Jordan Wines in Canada and other wineries in the United States.

The firm operates the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel, a shopping centre in Ontario, a sugar plantation and cattle holdings in Jamaica, cattle in Ontario, two grain elevators and other extensive holdings.

Through an associated firm, Kemp Investments, Seagrams also is linked with T. Eaton Company in a mammoth store-hotel development proposed for downtown Vancouver which would create the tallest building west of Toronto.

Social and economic foment in Quebec got the blessing of Mr Bronfman.

He said the emergence of French-speaking partnership in business and professional life is good for Canada. He lauded the provincial rights discussion going on throughout the nation.

The Montrealer said:

"I happen to think what is going on in Quebec today is very good. Sure, there are problems, but most can be overcome."

He felt school and language problems could be encountered anywhere.

HELD IN CHECK

The discussion about local, provincial and federal rights that has emanated represents an evolutionary problem which is all right if it can be kept in check, "and believe me, it is being held in check in Quebec."

The unrest he described as being the swinging of a pendulum, and as long as there are no great, disruptive swings, Canadians will "emerge as stronger and more capable people."

He said the "French-speaking segment is very important to all of us, taking his place in the totality of Canada in business and professional life."

He had a word, too, for Expo:

"There is only one thing I can say about Expo and that that it is going to be absolutely great . . . absolutely sensational . . . so far ahead of what has been done anywhere that it's almost laughable."

By the time it is over, he felt, "Canada will be looked upon by the world in a very favorable light, not as a hewer of wood, but a producer of manufactured goods."

Imported Car Makes Gains

At least one line of imported cars is enjoying the effect of an American reaction to domestic car sales.

As American car sales slumped last month with U.S. senate investigation of auto safety, Jaguar reports a 32 per cent increase in exports to the U.S. and Canada compared with 1965.

The period covered is from August 1 to April 30.

At the New York auto show last month orders for the new XK-E 2+2 sports roadster alone totalled 1,000, added to the orders already placed for the XK-E two-seater numbering 1,200.

Value of this single item is reckoned at $13.2 million.

Overall exports of Jaguar cars in the current year are up 21 per cent, or 8.5 per cent better than any other period in the firm's history. Common Market sales are up 20 per cent.

Premier Hails Action

Designation of Yorkshire and Canadian Trust Ltd. Vancouver branch as the head office for the recently reorganized company was hailed today by Premier Bennett as a "very important financial development."

The premier took special pleasure from the move because it showed that "the dynamic society has made a friend out of one of its enemies."

He was referring to the fact that the power corporation — which bitterly attacked the premier when he took over its main subsidiary B.C. Electric — recently bought the widely-known Yorkshire Trust from British interests and decided to base its headquarters in this province.

"This is part of my long-time plan to bring more financial houses here and I'm very happy with this development," said Mr. Bennett.

"The Power Corporation of Canada has many interests — they own Laurentide and half a dozen other companies — and they're making B.C. their main operations area.

World Wheat Price Boost Supported

LONDON (CP) — A call for higher world wheat prices — exactly in line with Canadian views — was formally endorsed by the International Federation of Agricultural Producers in its closing session today.

Jim Bentley, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and an Alberta farmer, said the international federation's policy statement on wheat "reflects our views and is one with which we can live."

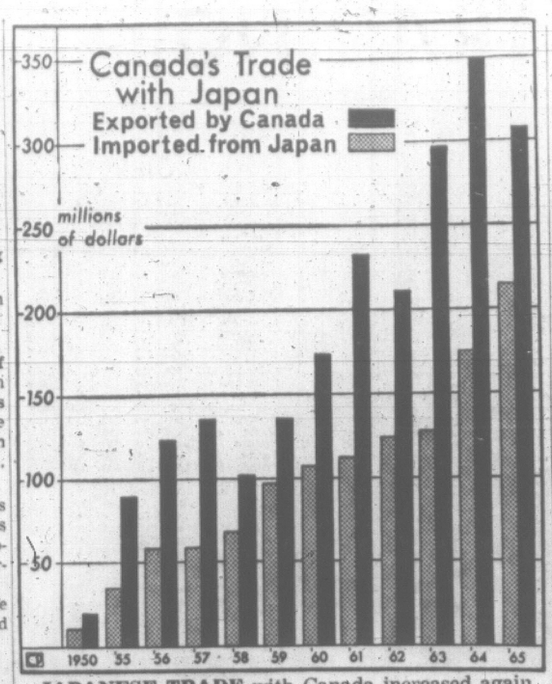

Bill Parker, president of the Manitoba wheat pool and a member of the Canadian delegation, said higher world prices are essential in view of mounting production costs and a greater need to encourage a moderate increase in wheat output.

Current world wheat prices are for the most part stabilized through the International Wheat Agreement, which has been extended until 1967 while negotiators attempt to work out a new world pact under the Kennedy round of tariff bargaining at Geneva.

Parker said that he personally doesn't hold out too much hope for success of the Kennedy round though he notes that some of his European colleagues still are optimistic.

The current wheat agreement calls for a minimum of about $1.65 and a maximum of $2.02½ a bushel in U.S. funds, basis No. 1 northern at the Lakehead.

Parker said Canadian farmers feel the prices should be increased to 20 or 25 cents a bushel.

JAPANESE TRADE with Canada increased again in 1965. Imports from Japan jumped to $230,204,466 from $174,388,169 the previous year. The trade gap between Canada and Japan shrunk as Canadian exports to Japan dropped to $317,233,272 from $332,193,531. (CP Newsmap.)

Drives for Workers Draws Sharp Protest

Recruitment drives for skilled workers outside the country were attacked Tuesday by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council.

The group sent a telegram to Jean Marchand, federal minister of immigration and manpower, protesting his department's action in seeking 30,000 skilled persons from the United States.

"The council bases the protest on the fact that all trades in this area and throughout the province have a considerable number of skilled workers unemployed and no apparent effort has been made to recruit these people," said the council.

The telegram pointed out that Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company of Seattle has been recruiting unemployed skilled workers in Victoria and the lower mainland.

'Canadian Ownership Must Be Desirable, Worthwhile'

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Canadian ownership of Canadian business should be made both desirable and worthwhile for Canadian investors, Trade Minister Robert Winters said here Tuesday night.

The federal minister, returning to his native province to speak at a Maritimes area annual conference of Rotary Clubs, said Canada's attitude towards foreign investment should not be one of hostility.

"Rather, we must increase Canadian ownership by making it both desirable and worthwhile for Canadians to purchase more stock in our own enterprises.

"Part of the solution will be found in the growth of the country itself."

Mr. Winters, now MP for York West but formerly MP for the Nova Scotia riding of Queen's-Lunenburg, did not refer directly to the recent book, A Choice For Canada, by former finance minister Walter Gordon, advocating a strong line against continued American ownership of important segments of Canadian industry.

But Mr. Winters said the problem of foreign control of Canadian industry "has touched the national nerve centres," and "we must endeavor when encouraging foreign investment to ensure that, to the greatest extent possible, it is in the form of debt money and that every reasonable encouragement is given to Canadians to participate in the ownership and operation of Canadian enterprises."

"To date, there has simply not been the investable money in this country that has been required, but pools of funds are now being accumulated and if we are wise enough in developing appropriate policies we may be confident that more of them, together with the resources of private citizens will result in increasing Canadian ownership of more of our enterprises."

Mr. Winters said the industrial growth of the Atlantic provinces is potentially large, with Newfoundland able to outstrip the others in the next few years. Formerly president of British Newfoundland Corp. Ltd., BRINCO, the minister said he hopes that before 1966 ends, an announcement will be made that the 6,000,000-horsepower Churchill Falls power development in Labrador will proceed.

Stock Split Set

NEW YORK (AP)—Stockholders of the Socony Mobil Oil Corp., have authorized a two-for-one stock split and voted to change the company's name.

Effective immediately the company will be known as Mobil Oil Corp. A company spokesman said the new name was adopted to reflect the broadened scope of the organization.

Labor Unionists On Board Backed

Retail merchant and ex-alderman M. Aubrey Kent got support Tuesday for the suggestion that the chamber of commerce have labor unionists sit in on directors' meetings.

He was commenting at a chamber merchant's group meeting that welcomed labor support in a campaign to cut and control shopping hours.

"I favor going a step further," he said. "Get them on the board of directors or perhaps have a sub-committee of both Victoria Labor Council and retail merchants to study the hours problem."

Mr. Kent said mutual distrust between the two organizations should be broken down.

"Some think the chamber members do nothing but sit and think of clinking dollars in their pockets," Mr. Kent said.

Chamber manager Earl Dicknoether reported an executive overture to having ex-officio labor delegates on the board had been welcomed by the VLC but most were not able to leave their jobs to attend daytime meetings.

He said the chamber has a "hot-line" with the executive of VLC "to clear the air before we start swinging at each other," and that this was working out.

Show Big Gain

MONTREAL (CP) — Alcan Aluminium Ltd. has announced consolidated sales and operating revenues were $233,000,000 in the first quarter of 1966 compared with $196,000,000 in the same period of 1965.

In a statement to shareholders the company said net earnings were $17,700,000 or 55 cents a share in 1966 against $7,500,000 or 22 cents a share in 1965.

RACQUET CLUB PLANS FOR THE 'GOOD LIFE'

Elaborate layout for new Victoria Racquet Club headquarters, prepared by Dominion Construction, will be presented to the membership for approval next Tuesday. First phase plans include regulation hockey rink providing six sheets of curling and ice skating, nine hard tennis courts, three squash courts, five badminton courts and space for indoor tennis, lounge and social facilities. Plans also call for swimming pool and, later, separate curling and skating areas. Land is also available on the 6.5-acre site at Ruby and Gordon Head Roads for further tennis facilities. If approved, construction would start this summer and be completed by fall. Estimated cost of the first phase of club is about $750,000.

Lone Crack In Play Plan Kills Rocks

VANCOUVER—The firepower was there, but the defence wasn't. Not for one quarter, that is.

You don't give Vancouver a five-goal quarter and survive, as Victoria Shamrocks learned here Tuesday night. Vancouver's third-quarter splurge turned the tempo of the game and led to Shamrocks' 11-8 downfall.

The loss kept Rocks in the Inter-City Lacrosse League cellars tied with New Westminster.

DEFENCE FALTERS

Rocks exceeded by two goals their output when they defeated Adanacs 6-4 for their first victory last week. But their strength then — defence — was their Achilles Heel Tuesday.

Shamrocks started out in grand style, taking a 5-2 lead in the first 17 minutes. Vancouver pressure reduced the margin to 5-4 at the half. But Rocks still seemed to be in good shape.

Vancouver had other ideas. In 15 frightful (for Victoria) minutes, they poured five goals past Barry Forbes. Victoria's answer was a singleton behind Skip Chapman, their custodian in '65.

The teams split four goals in the last quarter.

THREE FOR LON

Lon Restall, improving every game, was Rocks' main gunner with three goals.

Ranjit Dillon added a pair. Singles went to Nirmal Dillon, Tom Collett and Don McNeill.

Forbes was sharp throughout, stopping 30 shots.

Japan to Play United States For Uber Cup

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Japan Tuesday earned the right to challenge the United States for the Uber Cup, emblematic of women's international team badminton supremacy.

The agile Japanese team defeated England, long a badminton power, 4-3 in the inter-zone final. The challenge round between Japan and the U.S. will be played in Wellington, N.Z., Saturday.

Meanwhile, in an unofficial consolation round, Indonesia's women defeated Canada, 6-2.

The Uber Cup series, begun in 1957, never has had a playoff for positions behind the cup holder and the challenger. But representation is expected to be made to the International Badminton Federation for such playoffs on an official basis in future.

All five teams that are in New Zealand for the current Uber Cup championship have agreed to such playoffs. They are the cup-holding U.S. team, Japan, England, Indonesia and Canada.

Dog Dopers Broke Word To Canadian

LONDON (CP) — Two men, who allegedly refused to pay a Canadian woman the money they promised for feeding doped meat to racing greyhounds, each were sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison for conspiracy to cheat and defraud.

Margaret Murray, 26, who came here from Canada to work and then returned home after her experiences with the dopers, was flown back to England to testify against the men. Her address in Canada was kept secret under orders from the judge trying the case.

Sentenced were Peter George Hubbard, 31, and Ronald Maxwell, 42.

Miss Murray testified that she doped between 15 and 20 dogs at a track in Walthamstow, using meat balls supplied by Hubbard, and followed instructions given her by Maxwell. Later, at Ramsgate, she doped more greyhounds.

She was given £100 ($300) for her work at Walthamstow, she said, but her promised payment at Ramsgate was refused. She swore out an affidavit about her activities to a Sunday newspaper and the men were arrested.

HOCKEY NOTES . . .

Leafs Attract 138,084 Fans

By ERNIE FEDORUK

In mid-May, a couple of late, late toots on the hockey whistle . . .

Victoria Maple Leafs, the champions, just missed the 3,000 mark for average attendance during the past Western Hockey League season.

Leafs lured a total of 107,260 fans to their 36 home games at Memorial Arena for an average turnout of 2,979.

The playoff count, as can be expected, soared considerably. Attendance for Victoria's seven playoff games was 30,824 or an average of 4,403.

The total was 138,084.

★ ★ ★

Overall, the league just missed topping the million mark. That, possibly, is due to "disappointments"—in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Total paid attendance for 216 regular season games was 860,679. The 21 playoff games lured an additional 109,914 customers for an overall total of 970,593.

The league drew 1,023,462 fans during the 1964-65 season, including 935,462 to 210 regular league games.

★ ★ ★

The league's annual meeting will be held in San Diego on May 23 and 24.

Staff Smythe, president of the Leafs; general manager Punch Imlach of the Toronto Leafs, and general manager A. J. (Buck) Houle of the Victoria Leafs, will represent the champs at the two-day sessions.

The meetings will mark the first official participation in WHL business by San Diego Gulls, the team which will join the league for the 1966-67 season.

★ ★ ★

Fresno and Phoenix are rumored ready to apply for franchises at the annual meeting. Phoehix has a year-old arena with a seating capacity of 10,000 while Fresno, if admitted, is prepared to enlarge an existing auditorium to a seating capacity of 6,000.

★ ★ ★

Overlooked but not forgotten was this oddity that occurred during the Victoria-Portland squabble for the WHL championship and the Lester Patrick Trophy.

The series went seven games, remember?

It may or may not be a matter of coincidence, but Willie Papp refereed each of four games which Victoria won. Lloyd Gilmour was the official in charge when Portland won its three games.

★ ★ ★

ICE CHIPS: Winning the WHL championship was worth $1,525 to each Leaf player . . . Portland's Art Jones scored 19 points to step ahead of Seattle's Guyle Fielder as the league's top point-getter in the playoffs . . . In the only game they were out-shot, Leafs defeated Portland 5-1 to wrap up the league crown . . . Leafs' title triumph marked only the fifth time in the 18-year history of the WHL that a second-place finisher went all the way in the playoffs . . .

Ten-Team Tournament At Heywood

Ten teams will vie for the Stuffy McGinnis trophy in the second annual Victoria Senior "A" Men's Softball League tournament at Heywood Park on the holiday weekend.

The entire league complement of six teams is entered plus two from Vancouver, one from Nanaimo and one from the IAA League.

The double-knockout competition starts with single games Thursday and Friday at 6:45 p.m.

Five games will be played Saturday, starting at 11 a.m. and five Sunday, starting at 10. Six pressure games are scheduled for Monday, starting at 10 a.m. with the final scheduled for 6 p.m.

Roller Derby Visits Arena

Roller-Derby, that spectacle of flashing skates, elbow-pumping, rib-punishing delirium, returns to Memorial Arena May 23 and 30.

Northwest Cardinals and New York Chiefs will be the participating teams.

Bob "Bald Eagle" Hein will lead the Cardinals. Buddy Atkinson Sr. will direct the Chiefs.

Tickets are on sale at the Arena box office.

Softball's Parade A Traffic Problem

If tight pennant races fetch crowds, the Senior A Men's Softball League should soon have more people thans pews at Heywood Park.

A mere half game separates the first five teams. The basement-dwelling Sooke club is a mere one and a half games out of the lead.

Red Lion, though in fifth place, kept the heat on the leader Tuesday by edging Luckies 7-6.

A single by Red Savoie in the fifth inning scored Roy St. Dennis with the winning run.

Don Lyon went all the way for the winners to collect his second victory of the season.

TWO HOMERS

Olivia's Power Slays Stanky

By Associated Press

Tony Olivia won't need a travel agent if he ever decides to roam. Eddie Stanky has volunteered for the job and there's a line forming behind the Chicago White Sox pilot.

Oliva crashed a pair of long home runs Tuesday night, powering Minnesota to an 8-3 victory over the White Sox and prompting Stanky to divulge his travel plans for the Twins' slugger.

"He should be playing in Japan," Stanky said. "He could make a $1,000,000 over there, and I'd pay his way over there. In fact, I know about eight other managers in this league that will pay, too."

Oliva, the two-time American League batting champion, has hit nine homers while lifting his average to .407, tops in the league.

His three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the third helped southpaw Jim Kaat go the distance for his fourth victory as the Twins climbed into the first division for the first time since the opening week of the season.

MAULED THE YANKEES

Elsewhere, Detroit mauled New York Yankees 7-2 behind Dennis McLain's two-hitter and three homers, Cleveland Indians edged Washington Senators 3-2 on Max Alvis' two-run homer and Baltimore Orioles topped Boston Red Sox 8-6 with a four-run rally in the sixth inning. California was rained out at Kansas City.

The Twins, defending AL champions, moved into fifth place one-half game ahead of Chicago, with their fifth victory in the last six games.

Oliva's home runs, which travelled 405 and 440 feet, offset Chicago homers by John Romano and Floyd Robinson. Kaat, 4-3, and Zoilo Versalles also homered for Minnesota.

CAN'T BEAT JUAN

Los Angeles Dodgers are still trying to beat Juan Marichal in the National League.

The Dodgers, who haven't beaten the San Francisco ace in more than a year, edged the Giants, 2-1, in 13 innings Tuesday night after holding Marichal to a tie in 10 innings.

The last time they beat him was April 29, 1965, when they squeaked by, 2-1. He has four straight victories and an 18-8 lifetime mark against the Dodgers.

The Dodgers, who managed just five hits in the first eight innings, tied the game, 1-1, in the ninth. Maury Wills beat out a bunt, raced to third as Jim Gilliam singled and came home on Willie Davis' fly to Willie Mays in centre field.

Marichal, 7-0, stopped the Dodgers in the 10th, then left for a pinch hitter in the 11th, his earned run average only slightly higher at 0.78.

Marichal was making his first appearance in Dodger Stadium since he hit John Roseboro on the head with a bat there last August.

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds blanked New York Mets, 4-0; Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Atlanta Braves, 5-2, and Philadelphia Phillies trimmed St. Louis Cardinals, 5-3. Rain washed out Houston at Chicago.

Arnett, Adams To Head Leafs

NELSON (CP) — Frank Arnett and Gus Adams were returned to the helm of the Nelson Maple Leafs hockey club for another season.

Arnett will continue as playing coach following a rookie year as coach of the Western International Hockey League club and Adams will remain as manager following his first season in that post.

Sadler and Stothard Side With All-Stars

MORE SPORT PAGES 17, 18

There will be a distinct Victoria United flavor to the B.C soccer all-star team scheduled to play Tottenham Hotspur at Vancouver's Empire Stadium June 8.

Two United players, goalkeeper Barry Sadler and Dave Stothard, have been selected to play for the all-stars.

This is the first time in B.C. soccer history that Victoria has placed two men on the select side

Sadler will replace Firefighters' Ken Pears, sidelined with a fractured wrist.

Stothard was Victoria's first all-star last year.

With New Westminster in 1957 Stothard is the only veteran of B.C.'s 2-0 win over Tottenham in an exhibition that year.

The all-stars are dominated by Firefighter representatives.

Fullbacks Ed Bak and Gary Stevens, wing half Greg Arnett and forwards Tom Millar and Lou Trischuk are on the dream team.

Columbus placed Bob Hazeldine and Gino Vazzoler, Burnaby Villa placed Allan McLeod and Kinnes Christie, UBC placed Jim Cherry and North Burnaby Merchants of the Mainland League placed Don Wilson on the all-stars.

Millar and McLeod will be making their first appearances. Coach is Firefighters' Doug Greig.

Back-to-Work Signals from Sonny Liston

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sonny Liston, former heavyweight boxing champion, has scheduled his first fight since Cassius Clay knocked him out a year ago in Lewiston, Maine.

Liston's new trainer, Paul Kurlytias of Las Vegas, said Monday Liston will meet Gerhardt Zech, Germany's heavyweight champion, June 9 in Copenhagen.

Kurlytias said Liston will also meet Brian London of Britain and Dave Bailey of Philadelphia, both in Copenhagen, at a later date to be announced.

He said all the fights will be promoted by Ingemar Johansson, former world heavyweight champion.

Argos Sign End

TORONTO (CP) — Barry Mitchelson, 230-pound offensive end traded to Toronto Agronauts by the Edmonton Eskimos in February, signed a contract with the Eastern Football Conference team today.

RANDY TURPIN

FORMER WORLD CHAMP . . . . . DIES IN CAFE

Tragic Ending for Turpin

LEAMINGTON, England (AP) —The sad riches-to-rags story of Randolph Turpin, former world middleweight champion, ended with a gunshot blast in a dingy back street cafe Tuesday.

Although police maintained a traditional silence on who did the shooting, friends said the 38-year-old Turpin had been depressed lately.

In the same incident Turpin's 17-month-old daughter, Carmen, was seriously injured with two gunshot wounds and taken to a hospital.

Turpin was found dead with a gun near the body in his wife's transport cafe in Leamington Spa, about 150 miles north of London.

The spot was not far away from the town's main street, where the whole community turned out to give Turpin a hero's reception in July, 1951.

Turpin had just beaten Sugar Ray Robinson for the world middleweight title and was on top of the world.

Just 64 days later Turpin went to New York and lost the title to Robinson on a knockout.

Turpin kept on boxing but never reached the top again.

During his fight career he is believed to have made $560,000. But by 1965 Turpin was bankrupt.

The saddest sight of all in recent years was to see an overweight Turpin performing as a wrestler at $56 a match.

Turpin told friends recently he was worried about a $560 income tax demand which he couldn't pay. There were also fears that the local government council, as part of a development scheme, was going to demolish his wife's cafe, Turpin's main source of livelihood.

Roller Stays Order Pending an Appeal

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The court order directing the National League to guarantee Milwaukee an expansion team next year or return the Braves from Atlanta was stayed Tuesday pending an appeal to the Wisconsin's Supreme Codrt.

Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller, who found that baseball violated Wisconsin's anti-trust law by stripping Milwaukee of its only major league franchise, stayed the order which had set Wednesday as the deadline for the Braves' return, but he rejected a motion for a new trial.

He ordered the defendant senior circuit and its members to post a $100,000 surety bond to cover interim costs if the state Supreme Court upholds his decision against baseball.

Ray. T. McCann, an attorney representing the Braves, said the appeal would be filed as soon as possible, probably within a few days. The High Court already has set June 9 for oral arguments and has directed both sides to file written briefs.

Earl Jinkinson, one of baseball's attorneys, presented the motion for a new trial, citing 36 separate grounds, including all rulings by Judge Roller that were adverse to the defence.

DENIES JURISDICTION

"Baseball is an interstate business and at this time all of baseball is outside the jurisdiction of this court," he said.

Jinkinson levelled sharp criticism at what he called "that kooky, nutty idea of the attorney-general and his staff that baseball when played in Milwaukee does not violate the anti-trust laws but when played outside Wisconsin it does."

McCann told Judge Roller that the acts which the state claimed constituted an unlawful abuse of baseball's monopoly—the National League's vote approving the Braves transfer and the denial of an application for a Milwaukee expansion club—occurred outside the state of Wisconsin.

Judge Roller said that he intended to prepare a short memorandum on his denial of the retrial motion.

The way was cleared Monday for an early review of the case when justices of the state Supreme Court agreed to place it on the June calendar. Judge Roller had initially turned down a plea for a stay because the appeal would not normally have been heard until September. He agreed to reconsider the ruling when the date was advanced.

Daring Greaves Run Over Kings

By TONY COSIER

Greaves Moving and Storage, last year's champions, are once again setting the pace in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball league.

Greaves boosted their record to a league-leading four wins against one loss by beating King's Hotel 8-6 Tuesday night at Hampton park.

Greaves pounced on Kings' starting pitcher Wayne Stewart for nine solid hits. Bob Lumley, Bill James and Bob Bowles did most of the damage for the victors. Lumley poked a single and a home run. James and Bowles each collected a double and a single.

Greaves are running the bases with the daring of champions. Three times the victors scored a man from third base on ground balls to the infield.

Greaves also displayed the champions' instinct for coming from behind. Trailing 4-2 in the top of the fourth, they promptly pounded out four hits for three runs and a 5-4 lead. They never gave up.

Gordy Aalhus, who went two for three and drove in three runs for the losers, sparked a late bid by Kings with a two-run triple in the bottom of the sixth with nobody out.

Greaves' starter Stan Thame walked two batters and retired two before leaving the scene to relief pitcher Steve Dunc, who forced Gary Robertson to pop out to third to end the inning. Dunc then coasted through the seventh frame to assure Greaves of the win.

CAPOZZI SEEKS . . . . . . FULLBACK CHEEKS

Lions Know Name But Not His Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — Who is 240-pound fullback B. W. Cheeks going to play for this year? And where is he?

The questions were raised by British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League Tuesday following an announcement by Baltimore Colts of the U.S. National League that they've signed Cheeks.

Cheeks, a free agent, was signed by the Lions earlier this year from a small football club in Mobile, Ala.

The Lions gave Cheeks a "substantial" cash advance when he signed with them, and the B.C. club says Cheeks has been "difficult" to contact since.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of the Lions, said that if Baltimore had signed Cheeks "they would have done so without knowledge of his contract with us."

The NFL and CFL have a standing agreement calling on both leagues to honor owners' contractual agreements.

Record-breakers were in good form Tuesday.

A total of 20 new standards were set Tuesday at the Colquitz Junior Secondary School's intra-mural track and field meet.

Les Hudson led the assault with two records, covering the 100-yard dash in 11.5 seconds and puting the shot 41 feet, four inches.

Other individual records were set by D. Sigler, G. Gray, L. Bannerman, L. Barkley, L. Peden, L. Cameron, Bruce Twamley, D. Dyson, J. Baker, T. Ryan, B. Walker, R. Davies, J. Clarkson and C. More.

Sioux House captured team honors with 125 points, six more than Apache House. Crees were third with 102½ and Blackfeet fourth with 87½.

ITALIAN CHAMPIONS

ROME (AP) — Internazionale of Milan won the Italian major league soccer championship this week by beating Lazio of Rome 4-1.

Marylebone Side Settles for Draw

LONDON (Reuters) — The Marylebone Cricket Club, set to make 213 to win in 115 minutes, did not attempt the difficult task against the West Indian bowling at Lord's Tuesday and the match ended in a draw.

The West Indians batted unevenly in the second innings, which was mainly sustained by a fifth wicket stand of 96 in 68 minutes between Seymour Nurse (47) and Basil Butcher (56).

They halted an early slide which led to the West Indians being 37 for four. After these two were out, Garfield Sobers also went cheaply.

At this point the West Indians were only 144 runs ahead with three wickets left and three hours left for play.

But the West Indian tailenders stood firm and ensured their team was in no danger of defeat before Sobers made his token declaration.

Final scores: West Indians 349 for 9 declared and 246 for 9 declared; MCC 383 for 8 declared and 67 for 2.

Other scores:

At Northampton: Northamptonshire beat Lancashire by 7 wickets. Lancashire 231 and 125; Northamptonshire 191 and 135 for 3.

At Bristol: Match abandoned as a draw because of rain. Yorkshire 190 and 274 for 9; Gloucestershire 272.

At Leicester: Sussex beat Leicestershire by 8 wickets. Leicestershire 266 and 159; Sussex 161 and 265 for 2.

At Lords: Match drawn. West Indians 349 for 9 declared and 246 for 9 declared; MCC 383 for 8 declared and 67 for 2.

At Chesterfield: Match abandoned as a draw, rain. Derbyshire 145 for 9 and 281 for 9 declared; Hampshire 147 for 9 and 190 for 8.

At Worcester: Match abandoned as a draw, rain. Worcestershire 214 and 260 for 3 declared; Nottinghamshire 131 and 124 for 6.

Cassius Predicts Knockout

LONDON (AP) — World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay says he will knock out Henry Cooper in their May 21 title fight at London's Arsenal soccer stadium.

"I will knock Cooper cold with a good, clean punch," he said Monday.

Clay stopped Cooper with cut eyes in the fifth round of their previous London fight in 1963. Asked if he planned to cut up Cooper again, Clay retorted:

"I do not deliberately cut people. Cooper is too nice a man for me even to think of such a thing."

Clay put in six devastating rounds with sparring partner Jimmy Ellis at his White City Stadium gym.

Later Clay's entourage descended on the sedate Lord's Cricket Ground to watch the West Indian tourists play Marylebone Cricket Club.

Clay, who had never seen cricket before, declared: "I like it. It's not too slow for me."

'Socred Defeat' If Vote Called

Opposistion Leader Robert Strachan today said lengthy speaking tours in northern B.C. and the interior this month have convinced him the voters would defeat the Social Credit government if it called a snap election.

"The people don't think there's any need for an election and I rather think they would vote against the government just because of an election if it was called," he said in an interview.

"They seem to be of the opinion that the government is getting arrogant again."

Mr. Strachan indicated he is betting there will be no election because he is packed and ready to take off Sunday with his wife on a charter-flight excursion to Europe.

STRACHAN
. . . reports on trip

He will visit London, Paris and the Glasgow he left 35 years ago as a 17-year-old emigrant to Canada's farms, before returning June 19. NDP MLAs Alex MacDonald and Toyn Gargrave also are booked for the trip.

Mr. Strachan said everywhere he went on his post-session speaking tours people asked him when the election would be called or alternatively why is there going to be an election.

His answers: "I never try to predict the action of an unpredictable premier and an unstable government and, two, there is no reason for an election except the premier's ego provokes a continual demand for the plaudits of the people."

Mr. Strachan said the third most prevalent question put to him was why Premier Bennett did not take his advice a year ago May 7 to call a government-labor-management conference on spiralling construction costs.

"I said the competition for skilled labor would lead to inflation and I wanted assigned priorities and a whole variety of things that could have been done a year ago.

"All I got was a snide remark from Peterson that was just trying to hold up progress."

(This year the premier and all cabinet ministers have been emphasizing the need for restraint in construction prices and the government is reviewing about $20 million worth of its projects to see if they should be suspended or cut back.)

Patios Give Scope To Creative Types

By HILDA BEASTALL

The use of a plant in what appears as an unorthodox position, sometimes creates an air of refreshing charm.

Hilda

To be acceptable, it must have suitability, otherwise the effect would be inharmonious.

Patios and other flat outdoor living areas are new to the present generation of active gardeners, and the range of plants adaptable for these conditions is much wider today than 50 years ago.

And, we like to think we are more venturesome.

Basically, there are two kinds of outdoor living areas, one predominantly sunny, the other mostly shady.

The use of hollow building-tile, and the splendid idea of low brick planters as boundaries to patios renders the maintenance of these small areas fairly simple. Their height makes weeding and cultivation easy, and the plantings can be changed each year if the whim occurs.

In a predominantly sunny position, with shade perhaps from late afternoon, an assortment of little sedums, saxifrages, and sempervivums would add plenty of interest to raised walls or raised pockets in any position around a sitting-out place.

These are low-growing, almost succulent-type plants with great variety of leaf shape and colors from grey and green to violet-brown and rusty-red.

Flowers are not lacking either. When established for a year or so, flower stems will rise from some of the plants to around 10 inches. The flowers are pink, white or yellow, and when growing near one's chair, they may be inspected and enjoyed at close quarters far more easily than when growing at normal ground level.

Another thought for hot sunny patio beds or pockets in walls of building blocks is a collection of half doxen different kinds of thymes.

Apart from the culinary thyme which is shrub-like, there are a number which creep flat or hang in curtains over rocks.

Cool Reply To Snowy Problem

Intermunicipal Committee members were cool Tuesday toward apparent criticism of the area's snow removal and road sanding system.

The committee was considering a resolution from the Chamber of Commerce transportation committee asking that snow-clearing begin immediately snow begins to fall "in any amount, regardless of time, day or night, or should it be a holiday."

"And regardless of cost, too," retorted Oak Bay Reeve Alan Cox.

"We should make it clear to them that we move as soon as possible in clearing streets."

In a covering letter with the resolution the chamber stated: "Since the weather plays a major role in attracting tourists to the city we would ask that the resolution be considered with as little publicity as possible."

Reeve Cox replied: "If we ask the press to leave we will probably get a letter from the chamber's civil liberties committee complaining about us holding secret meetings."

"We should send a letter to the chamber thanking them for their interest and leave it at that," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

The letter was received and filed.

Two Youths Get Light Road Fines

Two youths involved in a 90-m.p.h. drag race last Friday night on Pat Bay Highway received fines and suspensions in central court Monday.

They pleaded guilty Saturday to dangerous driving.

Magistrate J. A. Byers told Bimb Kable Singh, 18, of 3144 Harriet, and Charn Dhillon 21, of 821 Princess, they were "unsafe to be at large on the highway."

He fined both $75 and suspended Dhillon's licence three months and Singh's licence two months.

Dhillon had a careless driving conviction March 28, court was told.

Police said the youths were paced between 70 and 90 m.p.h for one mile. Their cars were described in a state of disrepair.

Hit harder in the pocketbook by Magistrate William Ostler was Donald McKay, 982 Davida, who was fined $300 for dangerous driving.

He was chased by police at 80 m.p.h. on Burnside between Jutland and Tillicum 10 days ago.

Police said he weaved from side to side of the road and almost lost control of his vehicle in gravel shoulders.

SOUTHEAST B.C.

District Formed By Cabinet

An area of almost 1.2 million acres in the extreme southeast corner of the province was established as the District Municipality of Sparwood by the provincial cabinet Monday.

It was a major milestone in the unique federal-provincial-municipal urban renewal scheme that will relocate the residents of two old and grubby mining towns in a model community.

The multi-million-dollar plan wipes out the villages of Natal and Michel and replaces them with the village of Sparwood several miles away.

But the new municipal council's jurisdiction will extend over the huge district bounded by the B.C. borders with Alberta and the United States and the Elk River.

The letters patent issued for the new municipality appointed Orlando Ungoro as reeve of a seven-man interim council which will clear away much of the preliminary paper work involved.

FIRST VOTE

First elections of a regular municipal council will be held at the B.C.-wide civic elections period in December.

Besides issuing letters patent, the cabinet dissolved the Natal village incorporation and the Michel-Natal-Sparwood Hospital Improvement District and transferred their jurisdictions to the new municipality.

Fund Collection Called 'Racket'

Three men soliciting funds for what they called a YM-YWCA project were described as "con artists" today by "Y" executive director J. A. McConnell.

An Esquimalt resident told him Monday the men asked money for a "Y" campaign to help 60 Negro children in B.C.

"This is not a "Y" campaign. It is some kind of racket they are developing," Mr. McConnell said.

GARNET

TO GARBAGE DISPOSAL PROBLEM

Incineration Appears Best Answer

City engineer James Garnet Tuesday recommended incineration as the best long-range answer to garbage disposal in Greater Victoria.

Intermunicipal Committee members tabled his suggestion until formal receipt of the Metropolitan Health Board study which recommends sanitary landfill, or burying garbage.

But it was the burning proposal which Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said "left him cold." He is chairman of the city's smoke abatement committee.

Oak Bay Reeve Alan Cox also criticized the incineration suggestion because of possible air pollution.

Mr. Garnett said incineration, done properly, does not produce smoke.

He estimated an incinerator to handle this area's requirements would cots $2,500,000 or $5,000 per ton of rated capacity.

It would take a 20-man crew to operate it on the necessary three-shift basis.

"Including capital repayment and interest, operation and haulage, the cost would be in the order of $4.50 per ton compared to about $2 a ton at the present time."

Costs to the city alone would increase by about $70,000 per year and to other municipalities with a longer haul the proportionate cost increase would be even higher, he explained.

Mr. Garnett said there is not available suitable land for extensive and sufficiently permanent solution by sanitary landfill. In addition the cost of hauling cover fill would be almost as costly as incineration, he said.

"The choice is obvious: for infallibility — incineration for economy — disposal to a dump.

"Of the two I would recommend incineration as a positive, entirely acceptable solution and a suitable location would be in the general area of our existing dump."

But Mr. Garnet said there is no reason for an early decision.

Crematorium for Pets Idea Awaits Report

Saanich will await further regional moves on garbage disposal before tackling burial or cremation of pets.

The health and welfare committee considered a letter by the SPCA given earlier to a metro health meeting.

In it, local SPCA manger David Beeching said a pet crematorium here would cost $9,000 to build and $2,400 a year to operate, costs which could not be met at the moment.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said it is difficult to come to any conclusion in priciple until the method of garbage disposal — sanitary land fill or incineration — had been dealt with in more detail.

"I think the public outcry has been in criticism of the fact that bodies of animals are deposited at the dump," he said.

"If they were incinerated or buried at a land fill perhaps the need would disappear. Therefore it is difficult to say this is a necessary or an important project at the moment."

Coun. Alan Newberry said he couldn't get too excited about the subject.

It was common knowledge in Sooke, where he works, that animals are thrown out of cars while they are alive.

Reeve Curtis added that "a great many" pets are probably buried in back gardens.

The committee agreed to table the subject until alternative means of garbage disposal have been "more clearly defined."

PARK PRICE COMMENT MUST WAIT

Reeve Hugh Curtis said today he isn't going to comment on the city's price for Gorge Park until it comes before Victoria council.

The city parks committee endorsed a price of $49,200 for the nine-acre park it owns in Saanich. This includes $35,700 for that part of it needed for road widening and the balance for the remaining park area.

"This was a committee decision and it has to be ratified by Victoria council and I am withholding my observations until we get council's formal decision," said the reeve.

IMPAIRED DRIVER

Convicted in central court Tuesday of impaired driving:

Jose Sousa Craveiro, 1231 Balmoral Road, hit three parked cars on Johnson Street, May 6, fined $350.

Employee Acquitted Of Conversion Charge

A man charged with theft of $1,566 by conversion from a city building supply firm was acquitted in central court Monday.

In dismissing the case against Walter McKay, 3246 Alder, Magistrate William Ostler noted "the accused was careless with his accounting."

Court was told earlier McKay was employed by Debonair Distributers, 943 Yates, but took over the operation from the Vancouver head office Nov. 15.

'VAGUE' ARRANGEMENTS

The Crown alleged McKay took cash from customers on accounts due before he took over the business but showed the accounts still payable on recap sheets sent to Vancouver.

Magistrate Ostler ruled doubts were created by "vague" arrangements between McKay and the Vancouver office.

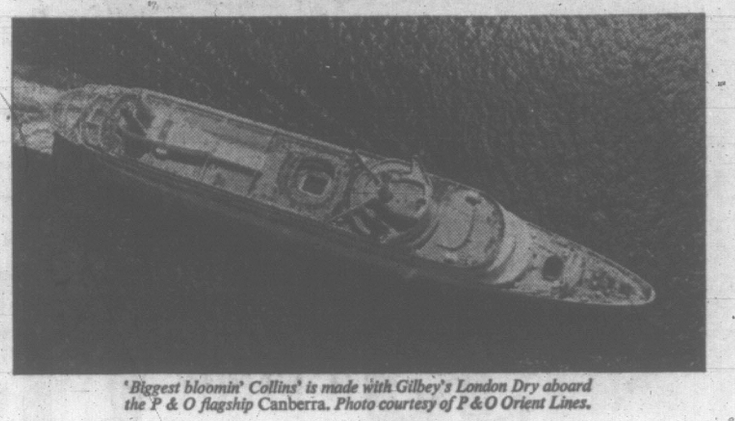

He also noted the arrangements "varied on several occasions" and "both the company and the accused are indebted to each other."

He said McKay offered to pay the owners of the Vancouver company $500 for stock and he "made no attempt to conceal sales."

He described the trial as "long and complicated." A total of 66 exhibits were entered during the hearing.

Gilbey's bring ocean-going mixed drinks from crack liners

On board the world's crack liners expert bartenders know that one of the best gins for mixed drinks is Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink. This fact is proven by the Canberra Tom Collins—the biggest bloomin' Collins sailing the seven seas!

Canberra—Tom Collins

There are two secrets to the Canberra Tom Collins. The first is of course Gilbey's London Dry Gin. By starting with Gilbey's you are certain of finishing with a fresh, clean tasting drink. You'll also need fresh lemon juice, sugar and soda water. The second secret (to make the biggest bloomin' Collins) is to use a 16 ounce glass!

Michelangelo—Sundowners

Italian superliner Michelangelo has jet-age smoke stacks that keep smoke off the decks whatever the weather. We mention this since clean air helps people enjoy the fresh, clean taste of Gilbey's London Dry Gin. With grapefruit juice and sugar Gilbey's becomes a Sundowner you'll enjoy at any time of the day.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

Peace Talks Set Over Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (Reuters)—Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak will meet Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik for immediate peace talks to end Indonesia's three-year-old confrontation policy against Malaysia, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by the senior minister present in Kuala Lumpur, Home Affairs Minister Tun Ismail, following a meeting of the Malaysian cabinet.

Ismail was acting in the absence of Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman, vacationing in northern Malaya, and of Tun Razak, visiting Kuching.

The Indonesian foreign minister said in Jakarta Tuesday his government is willing to hold unconditional talks with Malaysia.

The Australian Broadcasting Commission quoted him as saying Indonesia does not want to jeopardize any such meeting by imposing conditions and will not insist on a long-standing demand that a referendum be held in the Borneo states of Malaysia to determine whether the local population wished to remain under Malaysian rule or be governed by Indonesia.

Malaysian Borneo (Sabah) joined with Malaya, Singapore and Sarawak in September, 1963, to form the Malaysian federation. The link-up of the former British territories was denounced by Indonesian President Sukarno as an attempt to maintain British influence in Southeast Asia, and he vowed to crush the new state even after Singapore withdrew from the federation last summer.

Cadet Inspection Set for Sunday

Annual inspection of the cadet corps of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada (Esquimalt) will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. on the parade square at Work Point Barracks.

Inspecting officer will be Lt.-Col. C. L. Kirby, CD officer commanding the 1Bn The Queen's Own Rifles.

In case of rain, the inspection will be held in the Bay Street Armory.

Cow Crash Kills Two

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A young man and his date were killed early Monday when their motorcycle collided with a cow which had wandered on to a rural road outside Jackson. They were Dean W. Gardner, 21, and Della Maxton, also 21. The cow suffered a broken leg and was destroyed.

STATE VISIT to Britain is being paid by Austrian President Franz Jonas. Arriving by air today he will spend four days in the U.K. It is the first official visit to Britain by an Austrian head of state for 550 years.

ATTACHES MUST MOVE

Turkey Takes Action To Tighten Security

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkey took steps Tuesday to cut down on foreign spies who observe ships coming into Istanbul and through the Bosporus to and from the Soviet Union.

The government warned all diplomatic attaches they must move from Istanbul to Ankara, the Turkish capital, by Sept. 30 if they want to continue to enjoy diplomatic immunity—that is, being free from arrest if caught in illegal activities.

The move will affect naval, commercial and press attaches of about 15 countries from both the North Atlantic alliance and the Soviet bloc. Turkey is a NATO member.

A Turkish official described the move as "purely routine," but a Turkish newspaper said the centring of all attaches in Ankara will bolster Turkey's security.

Since the Second World War, Western attaches have used Istanbul as a base to check maritime traffic moving to and from the Black Sea.

It is not unusual to see a Soviet freighter or warship steaming through the Bosporus with a British or U.S. Navy launch churning in its wake for a close look.

By the same token, the Russians also take careful note of any visit to Istanbul or the Black Sea by units of the U.S. or British fleets.

India's Starving Too Weak To Reach Feeding Centres

SINAPALI, India (Reuters)—Some 1,000 emaciated children, women and old men gathered in a shady grove here for a meal of gruel made from rice, American wheat and milk powder.

They squat in lines, patiently waiting for the gruel to be ladled into their bowls—many of which are just leaves crudely stitched together.

Indian social workers supervise the boiling of the gruel in big earthen pitchers placed over fires in troughs of hard, dry earth.

It seems cool here, but a pocket thermometer reads 105 Fahrenheit.

All around the sun blazes down on bare ricefields, where a few yellow stalks wave languidly in the hot, dry wind.

Sinapali village and some neighboring communities were the areas worst hit by lack of rain in last year's monsoon—there was just no crop in the area, which normally produces a surplus.

As medical workers move along the lines handing out a single vitamin B tablet to each person, a mother limply draws her skimpy sari over her empty breast, while her tiny baby—its huge skull-like head supported by her shoulder—claws blindly at her with spindly fingers.

Other children, with match-like limbs and pot bellies from advanced malnutrition, squat there gazing mutely and unmoving at a visitor. Some women or men summon enough energy to throw themselves prostrate in the dust at the visitor's feet—often they say nothing, sometimes they ask for a bit of cloth or a bowl for their food rations.

Nearly 50 feeding centres now are being run by social service organizations in this afflicted area of Orissa's Kalahandi district, where some 270,000 people have been affected by the drought.

In nearby Bhela village, social worker S. C. Maharana has started a home for abandoned children.

Nineteen poor little waifs found by roadsides and in fields are being cared for there.

"Their parents had left them," Maharana said, adding "we are feeding them and the Indian Red Cross will give funds to educate them."

The controversy over starvation deaths, which has raged in the Indian Parliament and press, continues in this area.

Social workers say they have reports of deaths in remote villages and say that from the state of those able to reach feeding centres it seems likely there are others who are too weak to move and have remained behind to die.

Major Art Treasure Formally Accepted

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Joseph Hirshhorn, who made a fortune in Canadian uranium, Tuesday turned over to the United States a collection of modern art and sculpture valued at more than $25,000,000.

President Johnson accepted the gift—which had been sought by other nations and areas of the United States—for Washington.

The president also sent a message to Congress requesting legislation so that the "Hirshhorn museum and sculpture garden" can be administered by the Smithsonian Institution.

The president called it "one of the greatest privately owned collections of contemporary sculpture and paintings in the world."

In a ceremony at noon in the White House rose garden, he praised Hirshhorn, 67, for patriotism and generosity.

Hirshhorn, who with his wife was at the ceremony, said in a brief statement to the president that he was deeply touched.

"But you know I am an American and I am giving this to the greatest capital of the greatest nation in the world," said Hirshhorn, who came to the U.S. from his native Latvia at the age of 17.

Headaches End When Patient 'Set Free'

By DR. WALTER ALVEREZ

A man comes in to tell me that at the age of 15 he began to have terrible sick headaches which became worse at the age of 20, and ever since have been coming at frequent intervals, sometimes every day. This story tells me immediately that he must be a very nervous and troubled man, because men rarely suffer serious symptoms when they have a migrainous inheritance. Men and women probably inherit migraine equally. The women can suffer from nausea, vomiting and prostration, while all the men usually get is a scotoma — a 20-minute long spell of fussy vision. I inherited migraine from my mother, but in 60 years I have never had either nausea or a headache — only scotomas.

Alvarez

Hence, when a man comes with severe and frequent spells of migraine, I ask, and usually I find, that he inherited migraine from one parent, and great nervousness from a psychotic or alcoholic or epileptic other parent.

Sometimes the man with severe migraine tells me of spells of mild depression; or he confesses that he works under great strain, and then his wife may tell me that he is an unreasonable and almost constant worrier, who is almost always tense. Perhaps he is much too fussy about many details of life. Things have to be "just so," or he gets upset.

Occasionally, I learn that the man inherited the management of his father's big business, and the burden of this is much too heavy for him; or he, who wanted to be an artist or a writer, dislikes the work he has to do.

Sometimes I find a highly migrainous college student who has broken down in his junior or senior year. If I can get him to talk; usually he confesses that he has lost interest in his studies, or he has run into studies such as mathematics that are too hard for him; or if he is a seminary student, he may confess that he has lost his faith, so that he no longer wants to be a "man of God." Or he may have found out that he does not want to be the lawyer or physician that his father much wants him to be. Then I talk to the parents and ask them to set their son free to choose what he wants to do in life.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Eileen Fishel, age 11, of Des Moines, Iowa, for her question:

What causes eclipses of the moon?

If you travel around the world to the right spot at the right time, you can see at least two eclipses of the moon every year. During certain years you may catch up with three, four or even five lunar eclipses. Some will cast shadows on only part of the moon and some will be total eclipses.

During a lunar eclipse, a rusty, brown shadow creeps across part or all of the full moon. This shadow belongs to the earth and the eclipse depends upon angles and triangles created out in space. Our big, round globe casts a shadow about 900,000 miles long. It tapers into space in a long cone from the night side of the earth which is turned away from the sun. We do not notice it unless it falls on some object out in space.

Every month the moon orbits around the earth at an average distance of 235,000 miles. Every month it passes around the side opposite from the sun where the earth's shadow points out into space. We should get a lunar eclipse every month—but we do not. We get only two to five lunar eclipses a year, and in most of them the earth's shadow falls on only part of the moon.

This is because orbits tend to wobble. Instead of traveling on a flat, level path, the orbit of the moon tips up and down. Sometimes it is nearer and sometimes farther from the earth. The changeable angles and distances usually enable the moon to dodge around the earth without passing through its shadow. Some months it passes above and some months below the shadowy triangle.

Passes Through Shadow

But once in a while the moon's orbit cuts right through the shadow of the earth and we get a lunar eclipse. This must occur when the moon is on the side of the earth opposite the sun. The side of the moon facing us then is bathed in sunshine and a lunar eclipse can occur only at full moon.

The moon travels its orbit at about 2,000 miles an hour and gradually we can watch it move into the shadow of the earth. Slowly the shadowy finger creeps over the golden face of the full moon, changing it to dusky grey or bronze. The angle of the orbit may cause the shadow to fall on only part of the moon and we see a partial eclipse. But sometimes the entire moon must pass through the shadowy triangle and the full moon may be totally eclipsed for more than an hour. Then, as the moon orbits on its way, the shadow is left behind and we see it inching back from the bright lunar landscape.

The encroaching shadow of the earth bites in a curved path across the surface of the moon. Its edge also is curved as it recedes from the opposite edge of the moon. These curves should tell us something about the shape of the earth. They are part of a huge circle and in order to cast a circular shadow, an object must be round. During a lunar eclipse, the earth's creeping shadow gives us proof that our globe is round.

Classic Play Just Too Much For Young Group

DEATH OF A SALESMAN
By Arthur Miller

The ever-recurring problem of choice of play reared its horned head on the third night of the Dominion Drama Festival finals Tuesday at McPherson Playhouse.

It's a problem that faces every would-be festival entrant at sometime — whether to go for broke as it were and risk all on a gerat play that may stretch the group capacities to breaking point but which will provide a worthwhile challenge, or settle for something simpler and more within the scope.

The University of New Brunswick Drama Society chose to bring on its 3,000-mile trek a play which adjudicator Marius Goring called a classic of the American Theatre. He said it is "typical of the dark era in which it was written."

Death of a Salesman, produced exactly as conceived and designed by Miller, "would be impossible to mount on this stage tonight," Mr. Goring said.

"They couldn't have chosen a more difficult play to do," he remarked, adding that plays should be selected on the basis of the actors available.

As far as it was possible for 20-year-old David Attis to play the 60-year-old salesman, Willy Loman, he had done an excellent job, Mr. Goring felt.

Still, it was better that university students should find something less removed, from their own experience, he said.

GOOD SCENE

Scheme of the complex set (it shows several rooms in the Loman house including an upper storey) was very good, the adjudicator noted.

He criticized some details, particularly the wrong use of the backdrop.

Director Alvin Shaw used projections on the backdrop but not the right kind, Mr. Goring said.

"We should have had towering, angular shapes . . . never open blue sky."

The lighting was excellent but sound did not come up to the same level.

"I find it difficult to understand how a director who so sensitively uses lighting should be so insensitive about sources of sound," Mr. Goring remarked.

BEYOND THE RANGE

Kate Lewis as the mother played sympathetically but the scope of the part was beyond her range. In the characters of the two boys, the adjudicator did not find sufficient differentiation.

Other members of the cast were considered adequate and William Fenton won a special mention for his handling of a particular scene with Willy.

Mr. Goring concluded with congratulations to everyone on the team for a courageous attempt.

Tonight the theatre of French Canada will be represented by Montreal's Le Mouvement Contemporain which presents Genet's Les Bonnes.

A cast of three is involved in a story of two maids, who, in their mistress's absence become involved in a frightening, grotesque game of mistress and servant.

Tennessee Williams' Glass Menagerie, the entry of Lakeside Theatre Productions, Ottawa, is Thursday evening's presentation.

MYSTERY KILLINGS IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—The bodies of seven men—six shot to death and one strangled—have been found in Brazil's lowlands in the last five days. What appeared to be handcuff marks on the wrists of some of the bodies added to the mystery.

Damage Minor In Four-Car City Collision

Douglas Street was the scene of a post rush-hour four-car chain traffic collision Tuesday.

Shortly after 6 p.m. a car driven south on Douglas by Florence Anatooskin, 9270 Lochside Drive, collided with the rear of the car of Anthony Konopski of Sidney which was stopped for a light.

The Konopski car in turn collided with the rear of a car driven by Robert Dye, 836 Elrick, which smacked into the rear of a car driven by Andrew Steel, 880 Craigflower.

Police said no more than slight damage was done to any of the four cars involved.

Blonde Blues Singer Feature of Music Hall

A "Weekend of Soul," featuring a throaty, blonde blues singer from the United States, is lined up for holiday celebrations this weekend at Jon York's Music Hall.

Carol Hedin, an American singer who has appeared at San Francisco's hungry i, and the Ice House, will perform at the Music Hall, located below the Century Inn, Pandora and Government.

In reviews, Miss Hedin has been described as having "an elegant appearance, a tongue in cheek humor and a husky, deep-throated voice."

Sharing the bill with her in nightly shows at the Music Hall Friday, Saturday and probably Sunday will be folksinger John Martin Booker.

A number of unscheduled guest artists usually appear informally at the Music Hall.

OOMPAH of these two double B basses played by visiting Princeton, B.C., school band members Lance Marsel, 14 (left), and Randy McLean, 15, is enough to make a flautist faint, and Marilyn Johnson, 14, winces realistically. Marilyn is secretary-treasurer of Esquimalt Junior Secondary School band which with Colquitz School band members is co-host for Princeton group's Victoria visit. Young mainland musicians, 47 strong, return home by bus Tuesday after competing in Abbotsford International Band Festival, then playing guest concerts at Esquimalt and Colquitz schools. Esquimalt group was returning hospitality offered when they visited Princeton on band trip last week.

AT INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

Band Plays to New Honors

The band of Colquitz Junior Secondary School harmonized its way to new honors in a mainland music contest last week.

Competing with older and more experienced musicians in the Abbotsford International Band Festival, the Colquitz group came away with a first in their division and won the festival's Clayburn-Harbison trophy.

But it wasn't just a simple "first" — the 54-member Colquitz band set a record as the only junior secondary band ever to win the trophy, and did it all in competition with senior secondary bands.

WELL-BALANCED

The Colquitz group also earned remarks like "well-balanced" and "very good soloists" from the adjudicators, when they played against bands from the northwestern U.S. and throughout B.C.

For band instructor Emile Michaux it was continuation of success. Groups he has instructed have placed first in local music festivals for the past five years.

The Abbotsford festival, the third largest band contest in Canada, drew 29 bands this year.

Colquitz youngsters combined the festival with a five-day mainland tour, which included Hope, Princeton and Manning Park.

At Princeton they were joined by the local secondary school band which also competed at Abbotsford, then came to Victoria to perform Monday at Colquitz and today at Esquimalt Junior Secondary.

WORKED HARD

Band members at Colquitz work hard for their honors, says the group's business manager, teacher Jack Dayton.

All Grade eight, nine and 10 students, most of them practice at noon and after school.

To finance the mainland trip they raised some of the money themselves by sponsoring a car wash, bottle drive and Christmas card sale.

"They really enjoy it," he said, and put a "fantastic" amount of effort into the project.

Part of their success may result from the fact that Colquitz students are particularly music-minded — one in four students at the school take part in choral or instrumental groups.

The school's choir has also recently returned from a trip to Portland, Ore.

The Colquitz band numbers 32 boys and 22 girls.

U.S. BANDS ENTERTAN PATIENTS

Three high school bands from Washington state will provide unofficial concerts for hospital shut-ins who will miss the Victoria Day parade next Monday.

Everett High School Band will play at Veterans' Hospital Saturday at 3:30 p.m., Bellingham High School at 10:30 a.m. Sunday and Mount Vernon High at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Also on Sunday, Ballard Girls Drill Team will perform for children at Queen Alexandra Solarium at 10 a.m.

Drug Profiteering?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S. senate witness suggested Monday that a Dutch cartel, abetted by two U.S. government agencies, was able to buy stockpiled quinine for 20 cents an ounce which is now priced at $2 because of a need for the malaria drug in Viet Nam.

'Nervous Nellies' Rapped by LBJ

President Slams Viet Critics, Says He's Seeking a 'Way Out'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has challenged his Viet Nam critics to stop being "nervous nellies" and stand united "until the gallant people of South Viet Nam have their own choice of their own government."

"I want the killing to stop," he told a Democratic fund-raising dinner Tuesday night in Chicago. But he added, in one of his sharpest attacks on his critics:

"I do not think that those men who are out there fighting for us tonight think that we should enjoy the luxury of fighting each other back home."

Earlier, State Secretary Dean Rusk told a news conference that the Johnson administration is using all its influence to get the South Vietnamese to put aside "secondary issues and unite in the main tasks of fighting the war and building a new political system."

Rusk said the United States has warned the quarrelling political leaders of South Viet Nam that civil strife there is endangering U.S. support for defence of their country against the Viet Cong insurgency.

DISCUSSES HOME FRONT

Johnson's theme, however, was political strife in the United States.

"There will be nervous nellies and some who become frustrated and bothered, and break ranks under the strain, and turn on their own leaders, their own country and their own fighting men," he told the Democrats.

But he said he had no doubt the American people ultimately "will stand united until every boy is brought home safely, until the gallant people of South Viet Nam have their own choice of their own government."

Johnson said: "We know from hard-won experience that the road to peace is not the road of concession and retreat." He said the U.S. government is "determined to resist this aggression at the minimum cost to our own people, to our allies and to the world."

If this were not done, he said, Asia would see a war that "would produce casualties in the hundreds of thousands—perhaps in the millions."

The president conceded he is troubled and frustrated about the Vietnamese solution and said: "We are seeking a way out. We are trying to find a solution."

Asserting that no one wants peace as much as he does, Johnson repeated anew his pledge of readiness to sit at the negotiating table "with any government who genuinely and sincerely seeks to talk instead of fight."

CITES 'RESTIVENESS'

At his news conference, Rusk said it should be obvious to the rival factions in South Viet Nam that "there is restiveness here" over their civil strife.

Rusk said that President Johnson had appealed Tuesday to one of the top Buddhist leaders opposing the Ky government, Thich Tri Quang, to settle his differences with the Saigon regime and allow work on creating a new constitutional government to go forward.

The presidential message, a reply to an earlier appeal from Tri Quang to Johnson, was delivered by the U.S. consul in Hue. Tri Quang had asked Johnson to intervene with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky in the interest of putting an end to the civil strife in the Da Nang-Hue region.

Rusk said in response to questions that despite the violence which broke out during the weekend when Ky sent troops to counter dissident forces in Da Nang, he did not believe the present trouble would lead to civil war.

He based his hope for achieving unity on what he argued is a broad unwillingness in South Viet Nam to let the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, take over the south.

Union Welfare Fund Chief Suicides

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Sheriff's deputies said the administrator of the Sacramento Painters Union welfare fund was found shot to death Tuesday night in his office.

Sture Youngren apparently shot himself in the head with a .45-calibre automatic, an officer said.

Two employer trustees of the Sacramento Painters Local 478's welfare and pension funds were among five men indicted by a San Francisco grand jury Monday night in the shotgun slaying of Dow Wilson, leader of the union's San Francisco local.

Wilson was shot down in San Francisco April 7. Lloyd Green, 45, painters union local financial secretary in Hayward, was killed by a shotgun blast in a union office May 7.

The two employer trustees indicted were Max Ward, 47, of Carmichael and Norman Call, 46, of Sacramento.

Wilson and Green, the shotgun assassination victims, both had questioned the handling of Painters Union Local 478's welfare fund.

HALT PROBE ON UFOs: ASTRONOMER

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—Dr. I. M. Levitt, director of Fels Planetarium of Philadelphia, says he believes in unidentified flying objects but thinks the air force should stop its investigation of them.

The noted astronomer told a dinner gathering Tuesday: "People are seeing things. This is not a case of mass hallucination. There are things up there."

Asked the origin of such objects, Levitt answered: "I haven't any idea."

He said the air force "ought to quit" its investigation because "it can't win."

"If they determined what caused 99.9 per cent of the UFO's, there still will be people who say, 'Ah ha. It's that one hundredth of 1 per cent that are the true UFO's they're not telling us about.'"

POLICEMAN bends over Karl Fleming, Los Angeles bureau manager for Newsweek Magazine, after he was beaten in a flare-up of Negro disturbances in the Watts section Tuesday night. An officer said about 20 Negro youths attacked Fleming and another reporter, beating them with boards. (AP Wirephoto.)

TWO REPORTERS BEATEN

Violence in Watts Flares Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two outbursts of violence by Negroes and scattered reports of gunshots kept police alert today.

Officers said the incidents Tuesday night followed a demonstration in front of a police station, where 500 Negroes gathered after a rally to protest the fatal shooting of a Negro by a policeman.

Officers said two small bands of Negroes were responsible for the violence, which broke out shortly after the crowd dispersed from the substation that patrols the Watts area of south Los Angeles.

Injured in one of he outbreaks were Karl Fleming, 38, Los Angeles bureau chief for Newsweek magazine, and a Newsweek reporter, David Moberg, 22. Police said both were knocked to the ground by Negroes wielding pieces of lumber. Fleming was taken to hospital.

In the other outburst, officers said, a band of 25 Negroes smashed the window of a liquor store and escaped with several bottles of liquor and some food.

In the same area last August, 34 were killed, 1,032 injured and 3,952 arrested in six days of rioting that finally was quelled by national guardsmen and police. Property losses were estimated at $40,000,000.

Violence flared again briefly last March, leaving two dead and 24 injured.

BIRTH CONTROL

UNICEF Tackles Thorny Problem

ADDIS ABABA (CP)—A Canadian has the task of trying to maintain harmony as policy makers of the United Nations children's fund begin a debate in this Ethiopian capital Thursday on how far the fund should go to insure birth control.

The 30 - country executive board of UNICEF, which shelved the birth-control issue a year ago, is committed to reach a firm decision at the current session. Majority approval is anticipated.

As UNICEF board chairman, Joseph Willard, Canada's deputy welfare minister has the job of steering the debate in a manner assuring that no one is seriously affronted. Some governments oppose artificial birth control on religious grounds.

UNICEF, trying to meet needs in maternal and child health on a stringent annual budget of about $37,000,000, can ill afford to antagonize a donor government to the point where a contribution is withdrawn.

A report prepared by UNICEF's American executive director, Henry Labouisse, recommends approval of assisting family planning progress, in conjunction with UNICEF-aided services in maternal and child health and welfare.

SIX MAY OPPOSE

A pre-conference survey suggests that six of the 30 countries may oppose the proposed policy, with 12 in support. Remaining delegations appear uncommitted.

Willard, 48, of Hamilton, is also Canada's chief delegate. He will vote only in the unlikely event that the chairman will have to cast a tie - breaking ballot.

The family-planning decision, he said, will be the most important undertaken by UNICEF in many years.

The Labouisse report says family planning would promote the basic UNICEF aim of child health and welfare, and it can be related to existing projects. UNICEF would be able to consider requests from member governments for assistance in training, education, transport and maintenance in connection with national family - planning programs. But it would refrain from attempting to persuade governments to adopt birth-control programs and from supplying contraceptive devices.

Requests for assistance in family-planning programs have come from India and Pakistan. The executive proposes allocating $610,000 for family planning in the first year if the policy is approved.

The current UNICEF budget of $37,000,000 a year includes a Canadian government contribution of $1,000,000 and another $800,000 donated by Canadians through UNICEF Christmas cardales and collections. The United States provides almost one-half the total budget.

Heavy Toll Feared At 'Ship's Graveyard'

MANILA (UPI)—About half the 262 persons from the typhoon-battered ship, Pioneer Cebu, were found safe today, but the other passengers and crewmen were feared drowned in an area of the central Philippines known as a "graveyard of ships."

Sketchy government reports said about 130 survivors were found off the northern tip of Cebu Island, the ship's destination 300 miles south of Manila. Some of them were still clinging to wreckage.

The reports, from the Philippine constabulary, said the 740-ton ship ran aground and capsized Monday as typhoon Irma raged through the central Philippines.

Two bodies were recovered. Twenty-two of the survivors were reported seriously injured. A total of 262 persons, including 54 crewmen, were aboard the Pioneer Cebu when she sailed from Manila Sunday.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, 1966 — PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

For upwards of half an hour I have been sitting here reviewing the good points of the 20th Victoria Exhibition, which is now in full jostle at the Memorial Arena, the Curling Rink, and the adjoining area.

The show is obviously entertaining large numbers of Victorians young, old and middling for a very modest price.

It is also raking in a lot of dollars which the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce will use to further its various good works.

The Miss Victoria candidates are lovely as usual, the midway has the proper carnival sounds and smells, and we saw a girl strolling among the games of chance with a stuffed tiger almost as big as herself.

On a makeshift fairground, the livestock exhibits are of necessity limited. Within the space available, however, there's much worth seeing.

Nowhere will you find better tended creatures than those brought in by the boys and girls of the 4-H clubs. We were particularly taken with a tiny 21-year-old Shetland mare who drowsed with her 18th foal beside her, and a pair of clean pink piglets with tight-curled tails.

Elsewhere, there was a band for the teen-agers, an archery booth, and a modern version of the ducking stool complete with pretty witches.

★

But where the exhibits are concerned, and making generous allowance for the fact that we are not Toronto or Vancouver (praise be), I find myself unable to generate much enthusiasm.

The trouble doesn't lie with the outfits which exhibited, but with those that didn't, and I can only suggest that a great many local firms seem to be passing up an excellent opportunity to display their wares to many thousand potential customers.

The armed forces, B.C. Telephone and a few dealers in home appliances have good displays, and the Jaycees' water safety booth is smartly handled.

But, in an outdoors-minded city teetering on the edge of its holiday season, why are there no boats, motors, tents, fishing tackle and other such bait for the strolling male?

This year as last, there's precious little to interest the prospective vacationer among the floor displays; and not too much to capture the attention of his wife, either.

The situation may change in some future year when Greater Victoria corrects a grave omission in earlier planning by elbowing space for an adequate fairground.

In this respect, it seems to me that the department of national defence might well spare a scrap of its extensive close-in acreage.

For now, though, the midway tail threatens to wag the exhibition dog, and that is a situation in need of correcting.

★

Among the booths is a remarkably gay one. It also strikes me as being remarkably out of place. It is operated by Canada, Chinese Friendship Association, and if you pause there, you are likely to find a free sample of its wares thrust into your hand.

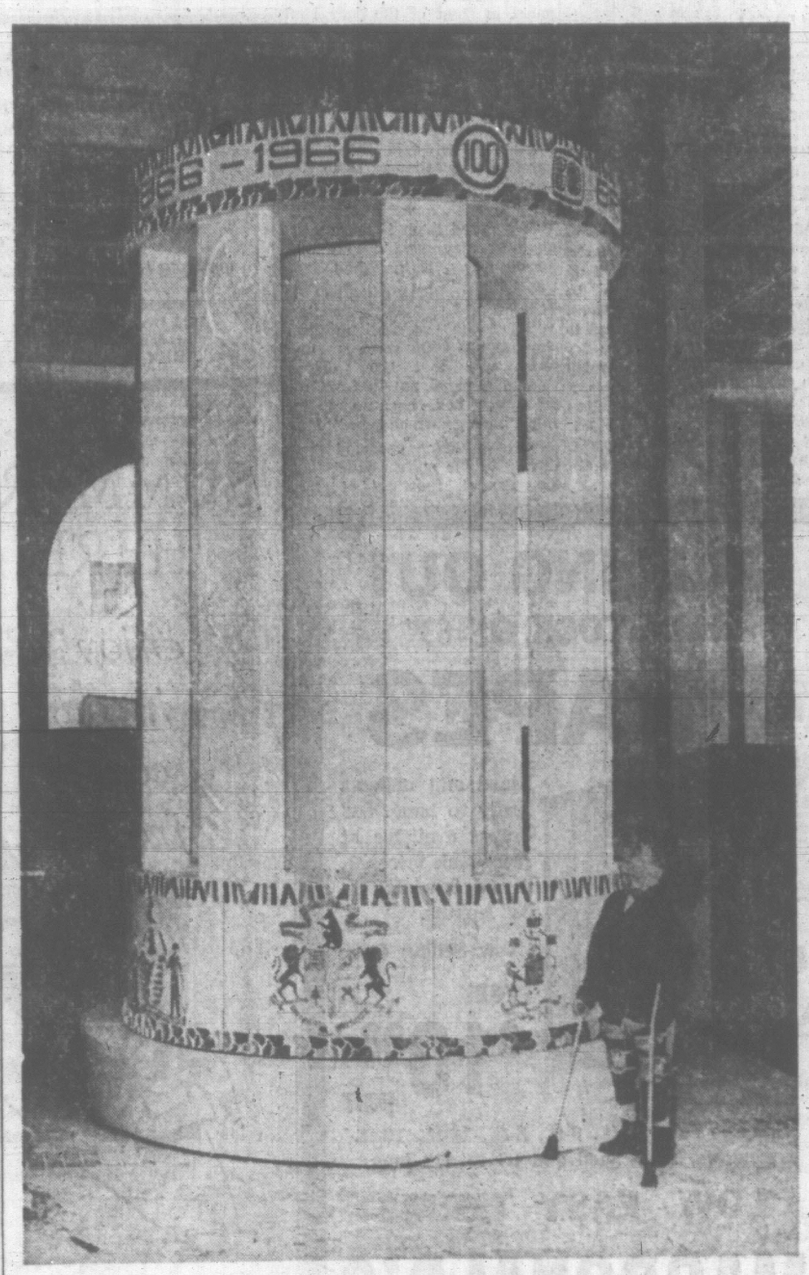

The item I came away with is a propaganda publication titled "Peking Review." It is dated July 16, 1965, and even though I remain cool toward the American venture in Viet Nam, this rag raises my hackles.

★

To wind up on a happier note, I am pleased to report that The Orphans, a homeless bunch of high-calibre industrial league softball players whose tribulations I told you about a few weeks ago, have finally found a sponsor.

After two more games, they will pull on new sweaters now on order, and as the Red Lions, go to bat for the recently-opened Red Lion Motor Inn.

The team has endured hard times gallantly, and deserves the break which Innkeeper Ken G. Hole worked hard to obtain for it. The players are happy, he's happy, and as a go-between in this amiable deal, so indeed am I.

Rene sizes up his cake-cutting job.

Boy to Carve Opening For Summer of Fun

An eight-year-old handicapped youngster will be the star of a Centennial Square ceremony Monday.

Rene Poirier, representing the Handicapped Children's Clinic, will cut into a two-ton centennial birthday cake.

And a summer-long program of outdoor entertainment in the square will be "cut loose" with the same symbolic act.

The 4,000-pound fruit cake, tucked inside a 12-foot high pillar of decorated icing sugar, is the centennial project of Oak Bay Kiwanis. Members will sell portions of the cake's "innards", three portions for $1.

The money will go to provide a summer camp for the handicapped youngsters at Cowichan Lake on 14 acres of leased government land.

The cake was designed by Vancouver art student Miss Cathie Gairns. Organizing and co-ordinating was carried out by George Molecy of Nanaimo who created a 10,700-pound cake at Nanaimo in 1958 and a 25,000-pound cake for Seattle's World's Fair in 1962.

AFTER PARADE

The cake-cutting ceremony takes place after the Victoria Day parade at 2 p.m. tentatively. It will be attended by Oak Bay Kiwanis president Bob Hunter, B.C. Centennial chairman L. J. Wallace, Mayor Alfred Toone and district reeves. There will be musical entertainment.

Cake sales will continue until Labor Day in the square where the shell of the cake will be displayed on a turntable.

Other centennial entertainments planned for the square include a program by the Katherine Costain Dancers and Oak Bay High School Choir at 3 p.m., May 28.

Soon after this Air Canada will open its new offices in the square with a centennial flavor promised. Date will be announced.

Also undated but slated is a gymnastic display by the YM-YWCA and a series of Sunday evening programs of Salvation Army religious band concerts.

Greater Victoria Centennial Society co-ordinator Gerry Gosley warns other groups wishing to use the square it will be a case of first-come, first scheduled. He can be reached at 385-1465.

His office has set up a wall calendar for all centennial events both in the square and elsewhere in the district. Organizers for groups and societies planning celebrations may see the calendar there and avoid overlapping of attractions.

Mrs. Irene Warren, chairman of the Ethnic Group Activities Committee, has sent more than 70 letters to associations urging folk dancing and musical programs.

Any group which would consider a public display in national costumes, which might have been overlooked, should contact her at the centennial office.

Another centennial attraction announced for the square today is the Oct. 26 to 29 presentation at McPherson Theatre of "Emily Carr, a Biography with Pictures," a play by Greater Victoria Centennial Society, directed by Peter Mannering.

During the same week the Art Gallery will feature a collection of Emily Carr paintings and personal effects.

CENTENNIAL TRAIL

Children of the Victoria Natural History Society are opening a centennial trail in Francis Park.

A sponsor is sought for another proposed centennial project in the same park, an addition to the Nature House. It will be used as a lecture room and auditorium.

The Outdoor Club of Victoria is engaged in a trail-making project — a three-mile trail in Goldstream Park.

UBC Gets Major Research Lab

The B.C. Research Council plans to build a major research laboratory on the University of B.C. campus, a spokesman said today.

He was commenting on a cabinet approval Tuesday for a lease agreement under which the Research Council will pay $1 a year for 99 years for a new site totalling nine acres on university property.

The university will pay $250,000 for the research council's present building and one-acre site on the campus under the arrangement.

An official who preferred to remain unidentified said the research council will start building a 110,000-square-foot structure on its new site by the spring of 1968.

"This will be about triple the size of the present building and it will have extremely high ceilings for research equipment which the present quarters do not have," the spokesman said.

"It will be designed so that it can be expanded both vertically and horizontally over most of the nine acres in future and we shall begin taking in some university graduate students for training in the new facility."

Cost estimate was not disclosed.

'TAKE A BUS' JUDGE TELLS HONEYMOONER

A man married Tuesday was fined $300 in central magistrate's court on a charge of impaired driving.

Keith Quinlan, 417 Tippett, was found guilty of driving while impaired the early morning of April 27.

Applying for the retention of diver's licence on behalf of his client, counsel Dermod Owen-Flood said the man "can't go on his honeymoon if his licence is taken."

Suspending Quinlan's licence for an indefinite period Magistrate William Ostler answered, "I don't imagine it's the first time people have gone on a honeymoon on a bus.

"They don't need any licence for that."

Quinlan, a fisherman, had pleaded not guilty.

Police said they found him slumped over the wheel of his car parked on the south side of the 1400 block Fort St.

Vagrant Given Month in Jail

A man with a history of vagrancy convictions was sentenced to a month in jail today for a further similar offence.

Gordon Jones, who told magistrate's court he just got out of Wilkinson Road jail, pleaded guilty.

Court was told Jones was apprehended after he was seen asking a postman for a dime at the corner of Government and Johnson.

The crown prosecutor cited previous convictions for the same offence in Vancouver.

SAANICH MOVES QUIETLY

Steady Gains Made On Land Purchases

By ROGER STONEBANKS

An important—if unspectacular—program is being undertaken in Saanich.

Day by day, moves are being made to acquire land for road widening and recreation.

At each committee meeting, approval is given to purchase a lot here and a parcel there.

The amounts are usually small.

In a quiet way, the municipality's first capital projects budget is being implemented.

"I am happy with the progress," said Reeve Hugh Curtis.

"None of it is spectacular because land acquisition is tedious and lengthy."

Just over $1 million was to secure open land for the rapidly-growing population, now about 60,000.

FOUR LANES

Nearly $1 milion was for construction and reconstruction of McKenzie Avenue to four lanes from two between Douglas Street and Ruby Road.

The rest was divided between contingencies and a major drainage scheme in the Bowker Creek basin north of Blair Avenue.

Much of the property, especially for the rebuilding of McKenzie as a major east-west road, is in small pieces and owned jointly by husband and wife.

This has meant many trips in the evening hours in the last few months for lands commissioner Jack Lindsay.

90% COMPLETED

About 90 per cent of the land acquisition for McKenzie has been completed.

None of the other land has been acquired, but several decisions will have to be made by council soon.

The land being acquired includes:

- The McRae Estate, comprising the 78-acre golf course and 24 acres of surrounding land;
- Additional land around Swan Lake to develop an attractive setting for the municipal administration area;
- Twenty acres at Burnside-Tillicum;
- About five acres in Cordova Bay.

GOLF COURSE STAYS

Reeve Curtis said concern is still expressed that Saanich will close the Cedar Hill golf course.

"My personal view is certainly not," he said. "I can see no point at all in removing the golf course."

The $215,000 drainage scheme for the Bowker Creek basin has been deferred for one year for technical reasons.

This will allow an extra winter for municipal engineers to gather more information needed in the plans for drains, which depend on such factors as rainfall and runoff not absorbed by the earth.

While nearly all the land has been acquired for the McKenzie project, no date has been set for the start of work.

This will depend on when the provincial highways department makes a decision on Saanich's application to have the road declared a secondary highway.

GOVERNMENT BUYS WINDERMERE HOTEL

After two years of renting, the provincial government has decided to buy the old Windermere Hotel, 716 Courtney, and a parking lot alongside it.

A cabinet order Tuesday authorized purchase of the property for an undisclosed sum.

It has been used by sections of the public works and education departments on a rental basis since it was vacated as a headquarters building by the RCMP.

'Let Us All Go Forward in Love' Says RC Bishop

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, made history Tuesday when he told a conference of Anglican clergymen from all parts of Vancouver Island:

"Let us all go forward together in love."

It was the first time in British Columbia that a Roman Catholic bishop had ever attended The Anglican Synod (parliament) of The Diocese of British Columbia.

The clergy rose in a body and applauded Bishop De Roo for almost three minutes.

In his stately robes, adorned with a large gold cross, the 41-year bishop looked almost boyish beside the rugged, rock-like Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia.

GREAT DAY

"This is a great day in our history," said the archbishop, "and I believe it is a great portent for the future."

Bishop De Roo spoke of the Second Vatican Council in Rome which he attended last year. He said:

"The successful pursuit of inter-church co-operation will do much to strengthen the bonds of Christian unity in Canada and across the world.

"Unity will not be an easy thing to accomplish and it will demand a price. It will call for sacrifice and reform in every Christian church.

"It will call for some drastic re-thinking, and we must all remember that it is anti-Christian to harbor any ill-feeling against anyone else who is a fellow Christian."

Bishop De Roo said there is a general desire for true friendship at the "divine level of prayer."

"We will have to develop confidence and trust in one another — and it must be backed by humility and honesty. Any kind of make-belief would be disastrous.

CLIMB TOGETHER

"We must respect the freedom and dignity of others. And this is not a matter of crossing the road to one side of the other; it means climbing together towards a higher vision of truth."

Earlier in the day, Archbishop Sexton, who is 77, hinted at retirement when he said:

"As I draw near the end of my charge, I wish to express my grateful thanks to the executive and finance committee and the staff of the Synod office."

In an interview, the archbishop said his retirement might come a year from now.

In his charge to the Synod, Archbishop Sexton referred to the severe strapping of a schoolgirl in Ontario, as described recently on the CBC television network.

"In my opinion, no self-respecting male teacher should be called upon to punish a girl in this manner," the archbishop said.

"If it should be necessary to inflict such punishment upon a girl, it should be done by a female teacher and, both with boys and girls, it should be applied to that part of the anatomy which is naturally most suited for the purpose."

Archbishop Sexton announced that the Archbishop of Canterbury — the traditional head of the church in England — will visit Victoria Sept. 28.

"No definite program has yet been set up but, after consultation with a few diocesan advisers, I shall release the details to all interested clergy and laity."

Union First In Prepaid Dental Plan

A Vancouver union local has been signed up in the first prepaid dental plan in Canada.

It will reduce dental bills for members by 50 per cent.

The launching of the scheme, involving Local 280 of the Sheet Metal Workers' and Flat Deck Roofers' Union, was announced at a press conference in Vancouver this morning.

The plan is administered by CU and C Health Services Society in co-operation with Dental Services Association of B.C.

There was no immediate promise of the plan being extended to cover the general public.

However the newsmen were told by CU and C officials that it will be possible to extend the same benefits to any group of 50 or more employees in B.C.

The other 50 per cent will be paid by CU and C Health Services which will recover its outlay from the union welfare funds.

FRINGE BENEFIT

The welfare fund in turn receives its income from employers of the union members through a contract arrangement or fringe benefit negotiated earlier.

CU and C will pay the dentists their normal rates, and accepts the financial risk.

Present at the press conference today were union business agent James Mead, CU and C general manager J. H. Corsbie and Dr. William Joiner, president of Dental Services Association.

360 JOINED

Dr. Joiner said to date 360 of the 700 dentists in British Columbia have joined Dental Services Association.

Asked what happens when a member of the plan goes to a dentist who is not a member, Dr. Joiner said "he would have the privilege of paying on that dentist's terms or going to a dentist who is a member."

Watershed Shift Dismays Chemainus

The summer issue of the provincial government's magazine Beautiful B.C. has altered the geography of central Vancouver Island.

And residents of Chemainus, betweeen Duncan and Ladysmith, are hopping mad.

"A Cowichan Valley which crosses a range of mountains and extends to the boundaries of Chemainus is only a commercial creation and cannot be supported by geographic or historical fact," says an angry letter of protest to Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

"You would have to be a resident of Chemainus to appreciate the dismay caused by the reporting which dumps the entire Chemainus River watershed into the Cowichan Valley," wrote the Chemainus Historical Society president Dick Pattison.

"Geographically the Cowichan Valley ends just five miles north of Duncan," said the letter.

"We must assume your reporter gathered most of his information from Duncan where this concept of an expanding Cowichan Valley has been fostered during the past half century.

"Various Duncan agencies have been publishing this nonsense for so long the residents of that area are beginning to believe it."

The Historical Society protest was endorsed by the Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce.

Seven-year-old Stacey Akers (right) holds kid called Janey, six weeks. About 250 youngsters, from 18 4-H groups in south Vancouver Island region, are competing for ribbons and prizes. Beef, poultry and miniature gardens are displayed today, as well as sheep and goats. Tractor, home arts, dairy and other sheep can be seen Thursday. (Times Photos.)

Ask The Times

Q. What was the strength in operational ships and total complement of the RCN at the outbreak of the Second World War? J.B.

A. Canada's navy consisted of six destroyers, five minesweepers and two training vessels with a complement of 145 officers and 1,674 men in August, 1939, according to Joseph Schull in his book, The Far Distant Ships.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Mrs. Gladys Mann, 1720 Newton Street, and Mr. Clayton Mann, Nanaimo, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Carol Ann, to Mr. James Edward Shepherd, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Shepherd, 1065 Holmes Street. The ceremony will take place on Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church. Rev. E. Laura Butler will officiate. (Don Ryan Photos.)

TODAY'S RECIPE

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Three cups sifted all-purpose flour, 5½ teaspoons baking powder, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup chilled butter, 1 egg, 1¼ cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter, melted; 1 quart fresh strawberries, ¾ to ½ cup fine granulated or fruit sugar, ½ pint (1¼ cups) whipping cream, 2 tablespoons icing sugar.

Butter two 8-inch round cake pans. Preheat oven to 450 deg. F. Sift together the flour, baking powder, the 3 tablespoons sugar and salt. Cut in chilled butter finely. Beat egg well and add milk. Make a well in dry ingredients and add liquid all at once, mixing lightly with a fork until just combined.

Turn into prepared cake pans and spread evenly. Brush with melted butter. Bake in preheated oven 18 to 20 minutes.

Meanwhile wash and hull strawberries, saving a few large ones for garnish. Slice remaining berries and sprinkle with the ¼ to ½ cup sugar (amount will depend on sweetness of berries).

Remove shortcakes from pans and cool on cake racks. Whip cream until softly stiff; beat in icing sugar.

To assemble, place one layer of shortcake, right side up, on serving plate; spoon sliced berries over top. Top with second layer. Spread with whipped cream and decorate with whole berries. Makes eight servings.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Teen Not Only One At Fault

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would like to voice a complaint against teen-agers in general. A teen-ager had a transistor radio on a public bus yesterday, and he just about blasted the whole busload of passengers off the bus with rock and roll music. Why don't those teen-agers show a little respect for the rights of others?

ADULT

DEAR ADULT: Why condemn ALL teen-agers? Only one was guilty. The bus driver (an adult) was responsible for the comfort of his passengers. Didn't he shirk his duty?

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man with real animal magnetism repeatedly invite a woman out to dinner, tell her he's had a wonderful evening, kiss her goodnight at her door, and then call another woman and remain with her until dawn? I am no prude, neither am I underage.

I am a 44-year-old divorcee, normal in every respect, and am not unattractive. I have invited this gentleman to come in for a nightcap, but he has always politely declined. I know he will take a few drinks, so that's not it. This is not just guesswork. I am sure of my facts.

NO NIGHTCAP

DEAR NO NIGHTCAP: Either the gentleman regards you too highly to risk unleashing the animal in him which might escape should he start "nightcapping" with you. (This is a compliment.) Or else he is "nightcapping" with someone else. (This is an insult.) Get a few more facts and react accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years and am now furnishing my home. I carefully selected my color scheme, drapery fabrics, and each piece of furniture. My mother-in-law is redecorating her home, which is my problem. She asked if I "minded" if she used my color scheme and drapery fabric for her living room. What could I say?

That wouldn't have been so bad, but when she saw my new sofa and coffee table she asked if I "minded" if she ordered the same. Again, what could I say? Don't tell me I should feel flattered. I feel nothing but resentment. She can well afford to hire a decorator if she can't come up with her own ideas. We have many of the same friends and it will be hard to explain the duplications. Could I have said I "minded?"

RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: When asked if you "minded," you should have told her in a nice way that you'd be happier if she didn't have the identical decor. Then, with genuine generosity, you could have offered to help her select equally attractive furnishings for her home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. C.: Unfortunately many people wouldn't be so willing to part with the cash if they didn't get the credit for it. "When thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee." (Matthew 6:2.)

DEAR ABBY: I recently got involved in juvenile court and I have a question. Of all the social workers I have met, not one of them is married. I don't see how they can tell parents to raise children when they have never had the experience of raising any themselves. I suppose they think they can raise a child by the book? Sure, there may be parts that help, but they say that experience is the best teacher. My father is 47 and he has raised five children. I am the only one who has ever been in trouble and my father hasn't read a book since seventh grade, and that was over 30 years ago. He raised us according to what he thought best. So I think he's done a pretty good job, don't you? If you can tell me how those social workers can tell kids how to stay out of trouble without having any of their own I will be satisfied. Thank you.

IN TROUBLE.

DEAR IN: "Experience" may be the best teacher, but fortunately it's not the only teacher. We can learn a great deal from reading about the experiences of others. Only a fool would insist on experiencing every evil in the world in order to be convinced of the consequences. Social workers don't attempt to "raise" children, they only try to encourage them to develop into their best selves.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WOMEN JURORS COMPLAIN

WEST GREENWICH, R.I. (AP) — Women jurors in Rhode Island say they'd like a wooden panel in front of the jury box rather than a rail.

Their skirts are just getting too short.

Superior Court Judge Florence K. Murray, the state's only woman judge, said the court passed out questionnaires to 760 jurors during the last eight months.

"We asked them if there was anything they wanted to make known to us, if they had any suggestions," Judge Murray said.

"The one suggestion that showed up with some recurrence was that the women wanted a panel put in front of the jury box because their skirts have grown shorter."

Judge Murray reported the finding to the state's judges at the annual meeting of the judicial conference of Rhode Island.

Judge Murray said the judges who heard her report — about 30 men — "just considered it was amusing."

UP-ISLAND TRIP

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will travel up-Island, Thursday afternoon, to attend a dinner in Discovery Inn. The affair is being given by the Campbell River and Sayward Chamber of Commerce. The following morning, His Honor will turn the first sod of the new library, museum and tourist bureau, the centennial project planned by Campbell River.

Couple Feted

Mrs. Olive Price held a recent reception in her San Marino Crescent home in honor of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James J. McGregor, who recently arrived from Scotland, where they were married in December. The refreshment table was centred with a two-tier all-white wedding cake, flanked by pink talisman roses and fern and pink candles in silver candelabra. Mr. Kenneth Briggs proposed a toast to the bride's happiness. Mr. and Mrs. McGregor are now making their home in Vancouver.

Return Home

Mrs. E. Brown returned to her Easter Road home, Friday, following a three-week trip motoring to the southern United States. She and her companion, her daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Dorothy) Forbes, also of Victoria, toured New Mexico and Colorado.

June Vows

Miss Susan Daphne Graham, daughter of Mrs. W. H. Bradley, Salt Spring Island, and the late Lieut. Vivian H. Graham, has chosen her sister, Mrs. Robert Wiebe, Powell River, to be matron of honor at her wedding to Mr. Joseph L. Ortman, Powell River. The ceremony will take place on Saturday, June 11 at 2:30 p.m. in Ganges United Church with Rev. E. W. McQuarrie officiating. Miss Graham's other attendants will be bridesmatron Mrs. Harry Bially, Victoria; maid of honor, Miss Marney Moffatt, Powell River, and bridesmaid, Miss Frieda Ortman, Saskatchewan.

Mrs. H. J. Bruch, wife of the MLA for Esquimalt, will officially open the spring tea, Saturday, May 28, of the Women's Auxiliary to the Salvation Army Matson Lodge. The affair will begin at 2 p.m. in the lodge, 847 Dunsmuir Road, and featured will be stalls of home cooking and candy. Discussing some of the final arrangements for the affair are, left to right, Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, Mrs. R. A. McLeod, Mrs. F. A. Sanders and Mrs. J. D. Smith.

Travel Here From Saskatchewan For Smith-Cowan Wedding Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cowan travelled from their home in Gainsborough, Sask., to attend the recent wedding of their daughter, Cecilia Janet, and John Norman Smith. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Smith, 2595 Lincoln Road, Victoria.

Rev. Albert E. King officiated at the double-ring service in Metropolitan United Church and Mr. Cowan gave his daughter in marriage.

Tiers of lace formed the bride's floor-length sheath gown, which was styled with a slight train. The bodice was fitted, with round neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her bouffant veil misted to her shoulders from a matching headpiece. She carried red roses in her cascade bouquet. Her only jewelry was a gold locket, gift of the groom.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Jacquelyn Bearance was in a floor-length sheath gown of turquoise, styled on empire lines and trimmed with blue and gold braid. Her self-fabric headpiece was of turquoise and she carried white carnations tipped with similar tones.

Brian Smith was best man for his brother. Ushering the guests was another brother, Murray Smith.

A buffet supper was served at the reception following in the ladies' parlor of the church. D. A. Patience proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple is now making their home in Churchill, Man., following a honeymoon trip to the United States and western Canada.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Smith chose a two-piece suit of deep turquoise boucle, accented with a white orchid corsage.

'SERVE COUNTRY AS WELL AS COMMUNITY'

Bishop Urges CWL to Expand Its Service

The need for "diversity of service" in the church was stressed by Bishop Remi de Roo, bishop of Victoria, when he spoke to the 38th annual convention of Victoria Diocesan Council, Catholic Women's League, held in Port Alberni.

Speaking at the evening banquet, Bishop de Roo noted that with the diversity of talents among the CWL membership, the group could serve not only community welfare but the country as well. He mentioned his belief that the CWL has everything needed constitutionally to bring a "valid solution" to present-day problems, to have a "great impact" on national affairs and "promote ideals of moral living."

The speaker also urged individuals to study the Vatican Council documents, "the results of work of 2,500 people of doctorate level over a period of four years," and added that the application of these would mean serious changes of thought.

ROLE TO PLAY

Bishop de Roo concluded that every person must apply his talents to the improvement of temporal life, realizing they have a role to play in the church and temporal world.

President Mrs. W. W. Rogers introduced the guest speaker, who was thanked by provincial council president Mrs. D. N. Palumbo, Prince George.

Mrs. A. Sanders, president of Holy Family Council, Port Alberni, greeted the delegates and guests from the 20 Vancouver Island parish councils during the morning session and diocesan director, Fr. Paul Monahan, Duncan, spoke on the convention theme "The Christian in the Community."

He remarked that the spirit of renewal should begin within oneself and added that a person must "open his eyes to the world and his heart to the love of God's people." One is hiding the presence of God, he continued, if he doesn't make it known to the world. Charity must overcome repugnance; to forget oneself and be friendly to all is not always easy, he added, for at times it requires "heroism."

He concluded by stressing that if one lives faith and charity, he will then show Christ to the world.

Following the morning session, Bishop de Roo celebrated mass in Holy Family Church, assisted by Fr. Monahan, Fr. D. F. Johnston, Fr. T. Rossiter and Fr. W. J. O'Brien.

Mrs. Palumbo also used the convention theme in her address at the afternoon session, referring to the fields of Christian endeavor in which the CWL participates: Religious and leadership courses, scholarships, social and child welfare.

Entertainment was provided by Pat Cummings' School of Dancing and First Baptist Church choir, directed by Paul Auterhoff.

During the evening program, Fr. Johnston presented 25-year membership scrolls to Mrs. J. Herkel and Mrs. Roy Jacobson of Port Alberni and Mayor Les Hammer brought greetings from the twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni.

New officers elected at the meeting include Mrs. C. H. Harmon, Port Alberni, president; Mrs. Louis Shelling, Chemainus, first vice-president; Mrs. Herbert James, Victoria, second; Mrs. G. H. Breen, Victoria, third; Mrs. Bart Connolly, Duncan, recording secretary; and Mrs. C. F. van Jaarsveld, Nanaimo, treasurer.

Spadea Designer Pattern

Harvey Berin N-1036

Harvey Berin has designed this superb two-piece dress that is so easy to make whether you make the long or short version. The blouson draw-string overblouse has a marvelous deep V neckline. The bodice front is made of a contrasting color. The bodice back matches the sleek wraparound skirt, that is unusually darted and fitted, thus eliminating side seams. The original overblouse had beading embroidered on the contrasting front. You can buy fabric already beaded or make it plain—as you wish. Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear sizes produce a better fit. See chart for size best for you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's a Constant Struggle— One Way or the Other

Lowman

I just received a letter signed "Babyface" I had no idea that there are so many women who do not want to look as young as they do. Most of us struggle to look as young as we can. This one says:

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: After reading your column today I feel compelled to write to tell the 34-year-old woman who looks like a teen-ager that I have the same problem and sympathize with her. I admit that it is not so bad at my age, 26, but the fact that I look like a 15-year-old is most upsetting.

"You should see the looks I get whenever I go somewhere with my three children. People look at me as if to say, 'Poor child, she probably didn't even finish high school. Tsk, tsk.' In reality I had two years of college before my marriage.

"Every advice column I have ever read gives the same advice as you when someone writes in with a similar complaint. 'You should be glad you look younger. Some day you will be . . .' What kind of advice is that? Give us some real help. We don't feel like waiting for 10 or 20 years to be glad we are young looking. We are interested in now and how to look like the wives and mothers we are."

Well, here goes! In the first place the right hairdo will help. No long swinging locks for you or bangs to the eyebrows. Adopt a more sophisticated style.

Keep the same idea in mind when choosing your clothes. No frills, ruffles or skirts above the knees. Select simple smart lines. You can afford to use black in your wardrobe frequently.

Naturally you will want to wear low-heel shoes much of the time but when you wish to look your age and not younger, wear high heels. Flats will make you look more like a teen-ager.

Don't wear "fussy" costume jewelry and don't wear much of any kind. Avoid dangling bangles and so forth. Make your costume jewelry simple and smart.

When making up for a special time you can afford to use eyeshadow in the darker shades.

Your posture and voice can make a difference too. Don't loll in chairs or slouch along or giggle. Develop beautiful posture and sit and walk with grace. This adds dignity as well as charm.

Now you can't say that I didn't try to help you. Wish I had your problem!

Plan Tea At Duncan

DUNCAN — Members of St. Edward's Catholic Women's League are busy these days, making plans for the group's membership tea, to be held at St. Ann's Convent on Thursday, May 26. Convener of the affair is Mrs. M. Desautels.

Chairman of the organization's various committees are: Girl Guides, Mrs. L. Lindberge; membership, Mrs. Desautels; radio and television, Mrs. L. Feige; spiritual, Mrs. B. Langhammer; Citizenship, Mrs. E. Goddard; publicity, Mrs. E. O'Connell; social action, Mrs. R. Johnson; education, Mrs. B. Connelly, and legislation, Mrs. J. Cannon.

Wine and Cheese

Members of the Victoria Young Progressive Conservative Association will gather in the home of Miss Deirdre Bumpus, 1640 Rockland Avenue, for a wine and cheese party, Friday, May 27. A special guest at the affair, beginning at 8:30 p.m., will be Peter Hyndman, Vancouver, provincial president of YPC.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Don't Ban the Iron— Use Gimmick Instead

By PENNY SAVER

Every time I do my ironing I feel that I am destined to be electrocuted by my own hand. It never fails that I run over my cord at least a dozen times. Too much cord is not good, because there is more length to get in my way. A shorter cord does little to remedy the situation, too, as at the most crucial stage of unwrinkling a shirt, I pull the cord out of the socket. I was all ready to start a "ban the iron" campaign until I found a device that minds the cord while you iron away.

What this metal wonder does is hold the cord above your work. It clamps securely onto any ironing board. Rising up from the clamp is a wire coil that is flexible. Topping this is a plastic clamp that holds the iron cord.

With this device, the cord is where you want it—out of your way. If you jerk the iron, the plug won't come out of the socket because of the flexible coil. Short circuits are prevented and it is impossible to iron over the cord.

Another feature is that this will fold over the ironing board for easy storage. Selling for just $1.29, it will make your ironing so much easier.

You'll see the light with this cord minder. Thinking of lights, I found one that is reminiscent of grandmother's day. It is a tiny copper lamp that burns coal oil. It is for decorative purposes, but it really does burn oil. These little charmers sell for 69 cents each.

Other lamps are made of plaster, molded in unique, wild, western designs. These, too, are oil burners, complete with wicks. This shop has stagecoach lamps, wagon wheels and even anvils. They're perfect ornaments for rumpus room or den, priced at $1.35. Surprise your friends who think these won't work.

Do you want to know where Penny shopped for these items? Give her a call at 382-3131.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Usher, 2677 Dunlevy Street, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Maureen June, to Sub-Lt. G. A. Godwin, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Godwin of Yorkton, Sask. The ceremony will take place this Saturday at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's Church.

ATTENDS IN SPIRIT AND IN VOICE

CHRISTCHURCH, England (CP)—At 105 years old, Agnes Tilley can no longer get to church on Sundays, but she still sings in the choir. Her parts, including solos, are tape-recorded and played back to the congregation.

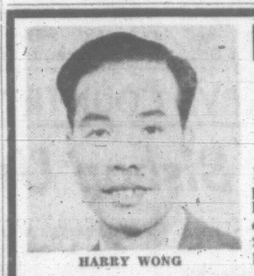

Membership Tea

Blue and gold formed the decoration theme in Sacred Heart Church parish hall, when members of the Sacred Heart Council, Catholic Women's League, entertained at a membership tea recently. Entertainment highlights were by members of the Sacred Heart School choir and St. Louis College dancers.

Guests were welcomed by president Mrs. R. Weicker and Mrs. G. Vander Haegen. Special guests were Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. H. James, Mrs. J. Sullivan, Mrs. H. Doucet, Mrs. F. Shaw, Mrs. H. Wakelin, Mrs. M. Kokran and Mrs. J. Barnaby.

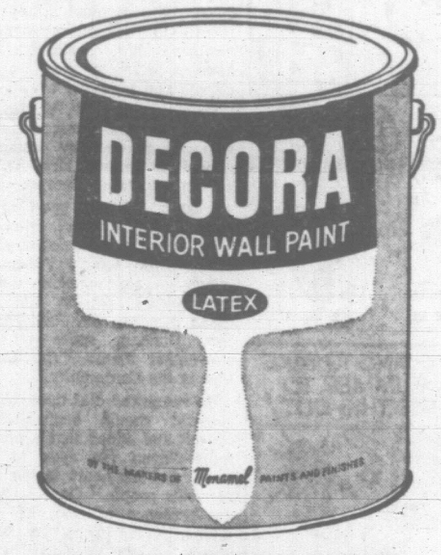

Presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. A. J. Gilbert, Mrs. J. Hanley, Mrs. H. Smith, Miss M. Humphreys, Mrs. G. Button and Mrs. J. Smith.

ON OPERATING TABLE, salmon's body is kept wet by flow of water. Anaesthetic is administered to gills. "Surgeon" Don Sutherland inserts wire directly into dorsal aorta of fish to measure blood pressure.

DON'T HAVE MUCH SECOND WIND

'Fish Are Darn Poor Athletes'

'PLAIN TUCKERED OUT'

This is the fourth in a series about the Fisheries Research Board Biological Station at Nanaimo.

By GLEN ALLEN
Times Staff Reporter

Departure Bay — Imagine if you can a somewhat harried-looking salmon swimming, but not getting anywhere, in a long horizontal plastic tube.

Surgically implanted wire leads are coming out of his mouth; the water rushing past him may have too much salt, too little oxygen, or be impregnated with poison.

The current he is facing may be too strong for him, and the lights and the man-handling may prove traumatic.

●

Yet the information gained from the ordeal of that salmon could in the long run provide for his brothers' well-being and future.

The salmon, probably a sockeye "because" says a Fisheries Research Board Biological Station technician, "sockeyes usually do what they are supposed to do," is in one of two of the Station's respirometers.

A respirometer, a complex Rube Goldberg-type device, can tell when a fish is sick or tired before he knows it himself.

Besides giving scientists a good idea of the efficiency of the subject's locomotive powers, the machine measures his blood pressure and mouth water pressure.

But primarily the respirometer simulates the stresses and hazards of the fish's life in nature.

In it heading into the man-made current, the salmon tries as best he can to maintain his place in the plastic barrel.

●

But if the current is too strong, or if he is overcome by other man-induced variables like a toxic element in the water or deoxygenated water or hypersalinated water, he will be carried back to an electrified mesh at his tail end.

The contact with the mesh registers on a kind of tote board. The machine's operator knows the experiment's subject is in trouble.

"Fish are darn poor athletes," says Station director Dr. Peter Larkin.

"After exertion they don't regain their energies as quickly or as well as men and other animals."

Dr. Larkin explained that though terrific demands are sometimes required of fish—a good example is spawning salmon battling their way upstream—they're not up to much after their first wind is exhausted.

In fact, fish often die just because they are plain tuckered out. The spawning salmon is not naturally foredoomed. He is too tired and too battered to turn around and make a second run for the sea.

An index to the terrific scientific intimacy the Station's battery of physiological and behavioral tests have with their subjects can be seen in other experiments.

●

A fish can in a sense be "operated on." He can be mounted on a miniature "table" upside down. His body can be irrigated with running water, and through his gills, he can be anesthetized.

One surgical experiment slated for the near future at the station is the introduction of an apparatus into the circulatory system of a living free fish. It will measure the velocity of its arterial bloodstream.

In a separate laboratory a continuing experiment on cod eggs is being carried out. There are batches of eggs each in their own environment, controlled as to water temperature and salinity.

The environmental variables will tell, depending on their divergence from the ideal, on the growing egg, and the life of one fish and generations of fish.

●

And generations of fish for generations to come is perhaps what the Station's sometimes esoteric but always fascinating work, may in the end ensure.

Elk Falls Victory Claimed In Pulp Union Tug-of-War

CAMPBELL RIVER — Bill Cox, national representative, claimed today to have a majority of the 750 workers at Elk Falls pulp mill signed up in the Pulp and Paper Workers' Union of Canada.

This is the third Island mill to make the switch from the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers. The mill is at Duncan Bay near here.

Mr. Cox said this morning: "An open meeting was called at Elk Falls Tuesday evening but the members of the local international executive failed to show up."

Mr. Cox alleged: "It's quite obvious why, in view of the statements made by them about the switch of 800 workers at Harmac Mill to the Canadian union."

HARD TO CONTACT

Mr. Cox said the only reason Harmac's 950 workers were not all signed into the Canadian union was the difficulty in contacting each individual.

An application for certification of Harmac millworkers as a local of the Canadian union has been made to the Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Cox said an application for Elk Falls will be made next week.

Meantime he and his colleagues are making house to house calls on workers to sign them into the Pulp and Paper Workers Union of Canada.

Mr. Cox said: "We won't be satisfied until we have them signed 100 per cent."

He said another operation at Sechelt is being organized now, and two more locals in B.C. will come into the new union by the end of June.

Mr. Cox said the 3,500 members of the Canadian union are organized at Castlegar, Woodfibre, Crofton, Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Nanaimo and Campbell River.

Plaque Ceremony Saturday

DUNCAN — The B.C. Centennial Committee and the Canadian Scottish regiment (Princess Mary's), will present a plaque to the city Saturday.

The plaque pays tribute to those residents of the district who served with the regiment during its long association with Duncan.

The 10:30 a.m. program will consist of a 20-man guard of honor and the regimental pipe band, which will be inspected by Mayor Jack Dobson.

Ald. Hamish Mutter, who was a sergeant with the original Canadian Scottish Company formed in Duncan, will unveil the plaque.

All ex-members of the regiment are invited to the ceremony in front of the city hall.

Inquest Thursday In Woman's Death

Inquest into the death of Virginia George, 30, of Duncan, will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Thomson and Irving funeral chapel.

The woman, also known as Josephine Billy, and Josephine Jimmy, was found dead in a city police jail cell early Sunday morning.

She was serving a three-day sentence for being intoxicated in a public place.

The woman was arrested one week ago and was too sick to appear in court Thursday.

Police said she had been given treatment for delirium tremens while in custody.

She is no relation to Mrs. Virginia George, 1445 Craigflower Rd.

ALL-INDIAN CAST FOR JUNE MUSICAL

PORT ALBERNI—The Nootka Indian band will stage the first musical production in B.C. with an all-Indian cast in Vancouver June 3 and 4.

The show, with the theme, They Were a Happy Singing People, has been produced by George Clutesi.

Members of the band will dance to the accompaniment of a poetic narrative written by Mr. Clutesi and the Ahousat Dancing Society will stage a warrior dance for the finale.

BARCLAY WINS MOTORBIKE TITLE

Veteran rider Al Barclay outdistanced 10 other competitors over a greasy Colwood race track course Sunday to capture the Vancouver Island motorcycle championships.

Barclay, who had not ridden competitively for six years, showed his heels to Jim Fracy and Vern Amor in the Victoria Motorcycle Club event.

He also won first place in heat events and the trophy dash to take home the Amor Trophy.

About 300 spectators watched the scrambles which also featured races for junior competitors.

The B main event winner was Martin Spriggs who was chased to the finish by Joe Brown. Both are VMC members.

Motorcyclists will return to the track Sunday at 1:30 p.m. for the annual Victoria Day weekend scrambles.

Largest field of riders in five years is expected, say club officials.

Record Class

DUNCAN—A record class of 162 stduents will take part in Cowichan Senior Secondary School graduation ceremonies Friday evening.

Ernest A. Goddard, first vice-principal who retires at the end of June, will deliver the parting address to the students.

Timothy John Hicks has been chosen valedictorian.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Wayne and Shuster bit the dust with their CBC-TV Affectionate Look at the Western.

Unlike their looks at the great comics of our day and movie monsters, the western show produced a forced humor. In fact, the Toronto comic duo were about as funny as a broken leg.

They have one more chance this season to titilate with an Affectionate Look at Mae West in June. Then the whole series of Affectionate Looks goes to CBS-TV which will show them on a weekly basis as a summer replacement.

★ ★ ★

CBC-TV's summer schedule runs over a wide gamut of entertainment. There will be new variety shows, a Nature of Things science series, a comedy series from Britain and a run of films on the Saturday night Great Movies list.

The variety shows include 12 for summer, presenting talent from Toronto and various other regions of the country. One will star Malka and Joso, who will have their own series next fall.

Summer Sounds '66 will be a 15-minute effort originating from all parts of Canada. Lance Harrison's Dixieland Band and jazz singer Eve Smith will be west coast contributions.

Other variety shows are The Lennie Breau Show, he's a jazz guitarist, from Winnipeg; Chorus, Gentlemen, from Vancouver; Singalong Jubilee, from Halifax; Summer Music Hall, replacing Show of the Week, and the effervescent American effort now rocking NBC-TV, Mickie Finns.

Among the public affairs offerings are Compass and Vancouver's Camera West. Others will include coverage of the Couchiching Conference a Wednesday series including film documentaries, as well as Intertel programs on poverty in America and the cure of drug addicts.

The new comedy series from BBC-TV is It's a Square World with Michael Bentine. A British critic described the show as one which ". . . wriggles free of easy categories, mixing the skid-on-banana crudity of old-time farce with passages of wordless and cinematic inventiveness—the kind of comedy only TV could nourish."

That's a mouthful of praise, alright, but we'll wait and see before chewing.

CBC-TV will also run repeats of such as Beverly Hillbillies, Hogan's Heroes, Perry Mason, Bonanza etc., etc., etc.

SEA VIEW
See picture No. 107 in our Broad St. window for a preview. Beautiful elegant, nestled, under big fir trees on a high, private, scenic ½ acre. Garden an easy to tend blend of lichen-covered rocky knolls, level areas strewn with tulip beds and circles of grass. This home is the acme of luxurious comfort but avoids any trace of mere vulgar display. Here is a haven for a couple who have taste — everything conveys a conviction that the owners have succeeded in creating an aura of grandeur without simply being expensive.

This valuable property has a sweeping view of the Esquimalt Harbour Lagoon. Access on both sides by road. New homes surround the area. A lovely 3-bedroom cottage nestles at the back of this property, making it very possible to subdivide. Living room and dining room with fireplace and den with fireplace — entrance hall. Hardwood floors throughout. Kitchen pantry and utility room give ample working area. There are many charming features about this home which must be seen to be appreciated, such as the superb craftsmanship of the imported panelling throughout — the Dutch tile fireplaces, flooring. The interesting Portico and oval driveway surrounded by imported trees and shrubs. Ample outbuildings suitable for animals and machinery including a huge water tower that could be converted to a fabulous studio for the artist of the family. Two springs on the property supply amply water for cattle. Irrigation. View by appointment only.

. . . BOMB

order to allow the speakers to be heard.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons at 3:05 p.m. it appeared "a bomb had exploded in a washroom." He suggested an immediate adjournment until 4 p.m. and the House agreed.

The third-floor hallways were crowded with spectators waiting to get into the Commons galleries when the explosion occurred. No one outside the heavy wooden door of the washroom was injured.

Members of the Commons protective staff quickly cordoned off the crowds. Some ran for flashlights to help pierce the dense smoke around the washroom and to investigate inside.

Dr. Horner said the victim of the explosion was dead when he entered the washroom. He said the main force of the blast had caught the man in the chest, arms and legs.

He said the man was "pretty well mangled" in the chest, arms and legs.

"He apparently blew himself up with a home-made bomb," said Dr. Horner.

The man had apparently held the bomb in his hands at the explosion.

DIED QUICKLY

Commissionaries who were first into the washroom said the man died within five minutes of the blast.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin went to their offices from the Commons with no evidence of special security measures.

One of several RCMP plainclothesmen on the scene moved crowds out of the corridor in front of the washroom and told one reporter: "There is a possibility of more problems."

He declined amplification.

The explosion shattered the quiet routine of the Commons.

NICHOLSON SPEAKING

Labor Minister Nicholson was on his feet, speaking about a private MP's request for production of certain correspondence.

Then the blast boomed through the Commons.

After a few seconds of stunned silence, press gallery reporters started sprinting for the scene of the blast. Some MPs on the floor of the Commons tossed jibes at the reporters for their speed in leaving the press gallery.

Smoke was already rolling through the third-floor halls as reporters got to the washroom site—in a corridor next to Mr. Martin's office. Mr. Pearson's Centre Block office is just a few yards farther down the corridor.

Degrees Awarded In Saskatoon To Victorians

A bachelor of commerce degree from the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon was awarded this week to Richard Graham Beirnes, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beirnes, 1727 Cedar Avenue.

Mr. Beirnes received his earlier education in Yorkton, Sask.

Yew-Shum Lee, also of Victoria, received a master of science degree from the University of Saskatchewan. No address was available for Mr. Lee.

Little Scandal Keep Tenants On Their Toes

NANAIMO (CP) — At least one scandalous couple is needed in an apartment block to keep the tenants interested, an American apartment management specialist said here Tuesday.

William Causins, vice-president of the Seattle Institute of Real Estate Management, said the presence of the interesting pair keeps tenants busy wondering what they will do next.

Mr. Causins was a member of a panel of speakers at the Real Estate Institute of British Columbia convention.

J. H. Green, Vancouver manager of property investments for Great West Life Assurance Co., said the entry of crown corporations and governments into office building development and rental in Vancouver is creating a poor investment climate for real estate.

The federal government has done it and the provincial government proposes to do it, Mr. Green said.

WHAT NEXT?

If governments can build offices in competition with private developers, he said, they might tomorrow build apartment houses, government-owned hotels for the tourist industry and shopping centres.

Another speaker, Ben Wosk, president of Wosks Ltd., of Vancouver, said there is a trend back to a combination of residential and building accommodation inside the city core.

One contribution toward this is the combination of apartments and office space downtown.

Robert A. Gans Jr., of Seattle, a specialist in income-producing properties, warned of the danger of overbuilding shopping centres and apartment houses.

Mr. Gans, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management of the U.S. National Association of Real Estate Boards said:

"I've seen blocks in Los Angeles that are two years old and still 30 per cent to 40 per cent unoccupied. The owners are becoming worried. So are owners of some office buildings that are being bypassed because of their age. . . ."

Worker Injured When Scaffold, Bricks Fall

A construction worker was rushed to hospital at 12:10 p.m. today after a scaffolding at the back of the B.C. Hydro bus garage now under construction collapsed on him.

Philip Knott, 85 Obed, was working under the scaffolding at the time.

Workmen at the scene said the scaffolding and bricks it held fell on his back.

Condition of the man was not known at press time.

Aviation Pioneer Of B.C. Dies In California

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Templeton of Vancouver, believed to be the first Canadian to build and fly a plane west of Toronto, has died in San Francisco at the age of 76.

Mr. Templeton, known in Vancouver as "Mr. Aviation," was reported to have died of pulmonary edema. He was best known for his successful fight for establishment of Vancouver International Airport.

The pioneer aviator is also generally credited with being the first person to fly an aircraft of the conventional type—a biplane with the propeller at the front—from Canadian soil.

The biplane was built in a Vancouver basement in late 1910 and early 1911 by Mr. Templeton, a now-deceased brother and a cousin. None of them had ever seen an aircraft.

. . . KILLER

troopers were manning a roadblock at the house. Under orders from the kidnapper, Sharpe got out of the car to tell the troopers he had a wounded man in the auto and had to get to a hospital immediately.

As Sharpe talked to the troopers, Hollenbaugh got out of the car and, holding the girl in front of him, began firing. One of his bullets hit Sharpe, wounding him critically.

As the kidnapper moved toward the porch of the Rubeck home, Mixell returned his fire and the Rubeck boy ran from a barn where he had been doing chores inside the house. The boy shouted to his mother:

'HIT THE FLOOR!'

"Hit the floor, Mom. That crazy mountain man is on the porch."

Then the boy fired the shot that felled the kidnapper.

Peggy Ann, meantime, had broken away from the kidnapper and ran into the arms of reporter Scott Rombach, of Pittsburgh, who had accompanied the state police detail at the house.

Rombach said the girl was hysterical and "a mess." He said she was dirty, her clothes torn and her hair covered with burrs.

The girl and deputy Sharpe were taken to the Fulton County medical centre at nearby McConnellsburg.

The girl was reported in "excellent physical condition." Sharpe underwent surgery for an abdomen wound and was reported "critical."

FELL ASLEEP

After a hearty breakfast, Peggy Ann was given sedatives and fell asleep.

Her family physician, Dr. Gerald T. Lorentz, spoke with the girl at the hospital.

She told him that shortly after she was kidnapped at gunpoint last Wednesday she was taken to a cabin near the top of one of the twin peaks of Tuscarora Mountain. She said Hollenbaugh chained her around the neck.

She was kept in the cabin "about three or four days" and then Hollenbaugh took her, still chained, into the woods.

STOPPED AT CAVES

They stopped at caves from time to time to rest and eat.

Hollenbaugh had three caves stocked with guns, food and ammunition, state police said.

Lorentz said the girl told him she lived on canned beans and canned corn during the seven terrifying days she was held captive.

"Her feet are badly blistered and she has quite a few bruises on her hips, apparently from falling while being dragged through the woods. She was less hysterical than I would have expected," Lorentz said.

Military Cross Winner Dies At Age 87

Major R. Thorton Osborne, who won the Military Cross in the First World War, died in a private hospital today at the age of 87.

He won the Military Cross in 1915 for bravery in France while serving with the Royal Field Artillery. Subsequently he was mentioned in despatches by Field Marshal Douglas Haig and the citation was signed by Winston Churchill, then secretary of state for war.

Remarkably, Major Osborne was never wounded.

"I ran too fast for them," he used to say.

Formerly of Vancouver and Duncan, Major Osborne was Vancouver manager of Maple Leaf Flour Mills. An enthusiastic golfer, he was a member of Shaughnessy and Capilano golf clubs before coming to Victoria.

Major Osborne is survived by the widow, Evelyn, at home at 360 Douglas Street; a daughter, Mrs. Rhuna Arlett, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Ted Pulford, formerly Jill Arlett.

There will be a private family funeral Friday.

Retaining Wall, Hydro Pole Hit

In fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after his car hit a retaining wall Tuesday is Sawarn Singh Mann, 40, of 736 Kings.

Mr. Mann sustained head and leg injuries when the car he was driving failed to make a turn on Highway 1-A's Four Mile Hill and crashed into a retaining wall, and took out a hydro pole at about 9 p.m..

Colwood RCMP said approximately $600 damage was done to Mann's car.

U.K. STRIKE

Food Prices Clamp Studied

LONDON (CP)—A cabinet emergency committee today prepared to consider demands for an official clamp on rising food prices resulting from Britain's merchant seamen's strike, now in its third day.

Some 10,000 crew members have left 300 British ships immobilized in ports around the nation with the tie-up growing hourly.

To safeguard food supplies the government took its first crisis measure in the strike by banning, from Saturday, the export of meat and non-pedigree livestock.

The 65,000-member National Union of Seamen is striking for an immediate reduction in the present work week from 56 hours to 40 hours for the same pay, a demand that the shipowners contend would amount to a pay increase of 17 per cent. The shipowners have offered a reduction over two years to a 40-hour week, which they say would amount to a 13-per-cent increase.

A British able seaman earns, including overtime and other payments, an average of £20 ($60) a week. Basic pay is £14 ($42).

Prime Minister Wilson, who wants to keep his government's prices - and - incomes policy intact, has urged the seamen to accept an immediate three-per-cent increase and full inquiry into pay and working conditions.

COMMITTEE MEETS

The cabinet committee watching economic effects of the strike met several times Tuesday as Agriculture Minister Fred Peart told traders the government will act if the current increase in meat, vegetable and fruit prices becomes rampant.

Government ministers were chiefly concerned about the sudden jump in prices of such daily purchases as New Zealand lamb, Argentine beef, and South African and Australian apples.

The government appealed to traders to keep prices reasonable, saying that present stocks in the country are ample.

The price of sterling dipped on world money markets Tuesday and the Bank of England intervened with purchases for the second day to bolster the pound.

A danger of the strike spreading from the seamen to dock workers developed in the Port of London.

The port authorities expect the government to call in the Royal Navy soon to start moving the strikebound vessels.

But the movement of two ships from berth to berth already has been challenged by Jack Dash, unofficial dockers' leader, and the local seamen's strike committee.

If the ships are moved the dockers are expected to refuse to unload cargoes from incoming ships which need the berths.

AIR CHARTER PASSENGERS

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Pacific Steamships announced today it has made arrangements for Empress of England passengers whose departure to Canada was delayed by the British seamen's strike.

A total of 479 passengers will be flown to Canada on three charter flights Friday and Saturday from London, Manchester and Prestwick, Scotland, a spokesman reported. Some other travellers decided to wait until they could make the journey by sea.

Teachers Feted At Willows, Lampson Schools

Three long-service teachers were honored in receptions at Greater Victoria schools Tuesday by former pupils, parents and fellow teachers.

At Willows elementary the spotlight was on Miss Nessie Wallace and Mrs. Goldie Keene, who between them have taught for a total of 69 years.

Miss Wallace taught in Victoria for almost 39 years. Mrs. Keene had been at Willows since 1960 but had a long teaching career before then, including six years as primary school consultant in the Alberni Valley.

In the limelight at Lampson Street elementary was Alex Hutchinson, who has spent a total of 55 years there, 10 as a student and 45 as a teacher. He was given a plaque by Reeve Ray Bryant and a wallet containing $225 by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Dockyard Men Seek Pay Adjustment

A union spokesman said today efforts will be continued to get prevailing construction and maintenance rates of pay for dockyard maintenance men.

William Isbister, business agent for Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, was commenting on statements by Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) in the Commons.

Mr. Winch said men working side by side earned varying rates of pay.

Mr. Isbister said maintenance men at Work Point and Comox get the same rate of pay as the outside civilian construction rate.

But the maintenance men at dockyard get the prevailing shipyard rate although they are involved in the maintenance of buildings and not ships.

This resulted in a disparity of 85 cents an hour between the construction wiremen's rate of $4.05 hourly and the shipyard rate of $3.20.

"The only place they don't get the prevailing construction rate is at the two dockyards in Esquimalt and Halifax," he said.

Crews from dockyard were required to go to Comox and work with people from Chilliwack who got the higher construction rate.

TRYING FOR YEARS

Mr. Isbister said his union has been trying for years to rectify the situation. Last week, the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council met dockyard officials on the matter.

Mr. Winch told the Commons he was informed men at Esquimalt intend to take action "within 30 days."

But Mr. Isbister said no kind of work stoppage is contemplated.

"We do not intend to create any problem in this regard," he said. "It is our intention to continue to pursue this matter to try and have an unfair situation corrected."

There was no official comment from the dockyard itself.

Eastern Workers Threaten Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — About 5,000 civilian employees of the defence department in the Halifax area will go on strike at the end of June unless they are promised wage parity with West Coast workers, Michael Forrestall (PC-Halifax) predicted in the Commons Tuesday night.

Their action would halt the work of the armed services on the East Coast, he said.

Wage scales for skilled tradesmen at HMC Dockyard, the centre for modification, refit and overhaul of navy vessels, average 75 cents an hour less than rates in the Victoria area, he said.

The 2,400 men there and as many more in other defence department establishments nearby are setting a firm strike deadline, Mr. Forrestall said.

Mayors' Meet Set

MONTREAL (CP) — The Federation of Mayors and Municipalities announced Tuesday that its 29th annual meeting, this year, will be staged in Vancouver June 6-10. Among scheduled guest speakers are B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Dr. J. J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

Force Dwindles

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver police force, hit recently with a wave of resignations, is 46 men under strength.

SHE HAS 'ANOTHER LOVE'

Newlyweds on Right Track

By DESMOND BILL

Frederique Collin got married a week ago and spent her honeymoon on a train coming to Victoria.

But she didn't mind. The train was bringing her to the Dominion Drama Festival to appear in tonight's production of a French play.

And Miss Collin has le feu sacree, 'the holy fire' that seems to burn in many young Quebecers these days.

MORE SERIOUS

The French appear more serious than the other performers about their appearance in the DDF. To Miss Collin, honeymooning on a train, with the rest of the cast, is a small price to pay for the experience.

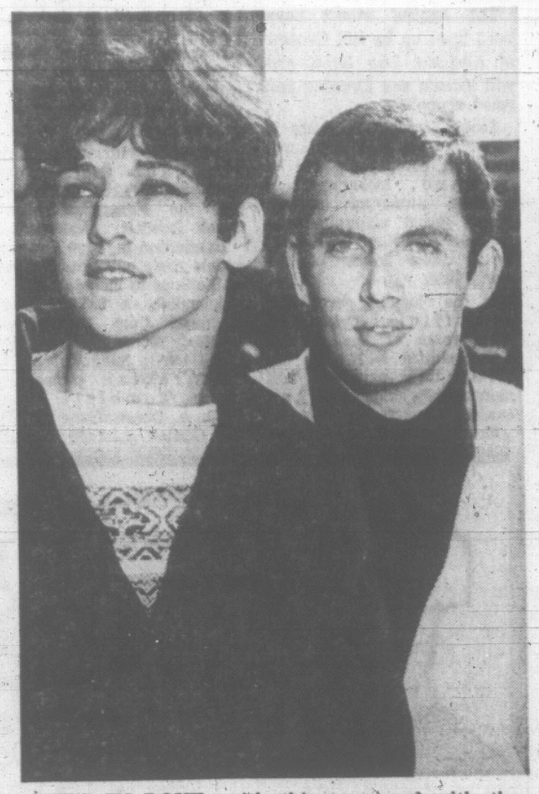

The French entry is Les Bonnes by Jean Genet. Genet has a vogue in modern theatre despite, or perhaps in part because of, his reputation as a homosexual, pimp and male prostitute.

The play, like its author, has some scandalous aspects. Miss Collin says she hopes "people in Victoria will not be too much shocked by it."

HOMOSEXUAL THEME

It has an underlying homosexual theme, although it is concealed in the way the action revolves around three women. The play is difficult, admits Miss Collins, but it is the sort of avant-garde work her group wants to present.

"We wouldn't dream of putting on Moliere, or any one like that. We are interested only in what is modern."

SHE'S IN LOVE—with this man, and with the stage. Frederique Collin married Hubert Schommer a week ago. But her other love forced them to spend their honeymoon on a train crossing Canada to bring her to the Dominion Drama Festival. She will appear tonight in the presentation of Genet's play, Les Bonnes, at the McPherson Playhouse.

The performers, in fact, are called Le Mouvement Contemporain and they are deeply involved in the cultural renaissance that parallels Quebec's political ferment. The youngest is 19 and the oldest 26.

They operate a small theatre in Montreal where five nights a week they put on plays. Some hold a job during the day but they are all semi-professional and most, like Miss Collin, hope to make full-time careers as actors and actresses.

They get no pay. Says Miss Collin, in her un-idiomatic but expressive English, "They work only for the heart. They have le feu sacree. I don't know why I want so much to be an actress. For me, I think, I couldn't be anything else."

She will audition for CBC-TV on her return to Montreal. A win at the festival would give her a springboard to the career she wants.

Does a Montreal actress think at all about Quebec politics: about the place of French-Canada in Confederation?

Says Miss Collin: "I have some ideas but I won't talk about them. I leave politics to other people. I think it is important to concentrate on doing one thing well. And where I want to do well is in the theatre, not in politics."

Wonder If Pupils Saw Play?

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

Guess what the school teacher (Robert Haley) in The Knack (of seduction) does in private life? Right. He's a school teacher. Wonder if his pupils have seen the play?

★ ★ ★

In Death of a Salesman, Howard (Brian Swarbrick) filled in at the last moment . . . had never rehearsed before . . . never set foot on the McPherson stage before . . . never turned on the knob of the wooden tape recorder before! Adjudicator Marius Goring found him convincing.

★ ★ ★

Maurice Evans, director of A Stranger Unto My Brethren in 1964 had two entries in the DDF central Ontario regionals. He tried hard to scratch one, but was entreated by the screener to put both in. As if this wasn't enough, he had the same leading actress in both plays too. One, a musical, opened the festival. The other, A Taste of Honey, closed it, and ultimately went on to win the finals at Charlottetown.

★ ★ ★

His assistant director, Ruth Green, was world junior water skiing champion before the Second World War, in the days when this was a little practiced and extremely hazardous sport.

★ ★ ★

Walter Foster in "Stranger" danced for years in the National Ballet, (even at the Royal Theatre!) with parts in Giselle, Nutcracker and Coppelia.

Considering the tremendous competition, it is delightful to see directors like Peter Dearing and Maurice Evans offering each other lights, projectors, rehearsal facilities, etc. Nothing petty here.

Murder Charge Laid

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Wesley Norman Chatwell, 37, was charged in magistrate's court here Tuesday with capital murder in the beating death of Jones Gothard Winka, a 67-year-old trapper. RCMP arrested Chatwell 45 minutes after the Chief Lake trapper was found beaten behind a hotel in this north central city a week ago. Winka's wallet, containing $130 was missing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate commerce committee approved a resolution Tuesday directing the secretary of commerce to conduct a survey of the nation's coastal and freshwater commercial fishery resources.

CONCESSIONS OR BLOCKADE

Gibraltar Can't Win In Talks With Spain

By TERENCE PRITTIE
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON—Talks began today between the British and Spanish governments on Gibraltar.

As the day drew closer the concern and alarm of the Gibraltarians mounted. For, as most of them see it, the talks may make no progress — in which case the damaging "little blockade" of the Rock by Spain will go on and perhaps be intensified — or the talks may alternately, entail unwelcome concessions to Spain.

A great many Gibraltarians fear that concessions will open the way to fresh Spanish demands of which the most logical would be the annexation of the Rock. The Gibraltarians (more than 20,000 of them) almost to a man wish to remain British. They reject Spain's claim to territorial sovereignty.

In dealing with the Gibraltar problem the British government has already made three separate blunders.

ROCK CONTROL

The first was to start on the process of giving self-government to Gibraltar. This was contrary to the 1713 Treaty of Utrecht, which originally gave Britain control of the Rock.

The second was to refuse to open talks with Spain, as recommended by the trusteeship committee of the United Nations General Assembly, and then to reverse that decision after months of diplomatic inactivity.

The third was to continue to invoke the Treaty of Utrecht, instead of the Gibraltarians' right of self-determination, as the basis for refusing Spain's claim to sovereignty. Britain has already infringed the treaty, by building an airfield on ground which the treaty laid down should be "neutral" and unoccupied.

In addition, the British government has adopted a vaguely hostile attitude toward Spain, while at the same time badly wanting Spain to waive her 250-year-old claim to Gibraltar. It is this attitude toward Spain, more than anything else, which is bringing Spanish Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella to London.

Rites Set On Friday For Priest

Monignor Wilbert McKenzie, a former Roman Catholic priest in Kelowna, died Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital at the age of 78.

Pontifical requiem mass will be said for Monsignor McKenzie in St. Andrew's Cathedral Friday at 11 a.m. by Bishop Emmett Doyle of Nelson.

Burial will follow at Royal Oak Cemetery.

The remains of Monsignor McKenzie will be placed before the altar at the cathedral Thursday at 8:30 p.m. He was pastor of parish church of the Immaculate Conception Kelowna from 1931 to 1961.

Other appointments were at Salmon Arm, Revelstoke and Holy Rosary Cathedral, Vancouver. In Victoria Monsignor McKenzie was resident chaplain of the Mount St. Angela Infirmary on Burdett Ave. until 1965.

Born at Vernon River, Prince Edward Island, Monsignor McKenzie was educated at the Provincial Normal School, St. Dunstan's University, and the Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax.

He was ordained a priest in 1919 and had lived in B.C. since 1921.

Vancouver Youth Gang Copies Nazis

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five members of the Huns, a gang whose members wear jackets with Nazi emblems, were remanded to Friday when they appeared in juvenile court Tuesday charged with indecent assault on two teen-age girls.

The boys, believed responsible for a rash of attacks on houses in the east end of the city, were arrested Sunday after a complaint by the mother of one of the girls.

One of the five juveniles faces two additional counts of having carnal knowledge of a female and another has been charged with possession of liquor.

Police confiscated jackets belonging to the youths, who are between 14 and 16 years old. One jacket bore the insigna of the Nazi SS armband. Other jackets had the Maltese cross painted on them.

Police said the gang is responsible for the attack on an east-end home, where furniture, walls and doors were damaged after a meeting of the gang.

Two Films Featured At Museum Friday

Dr. John Chapman of the Federal Forest Research Laboratory will give a public showing of two films "The Alder Wood Beetle," and "The Life of the Honey Bee," at the Provincial Museum on Friday at 8 p.m.

The showing is sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society.

NEEDLE GETS NEEDLED

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I've never liked the word "togetherness."

It's a made-up word. It presents a picture of collectiveness that goes far beyond agreement or harmony and it has all the hazards of coexistence and none of the challenges of doing things simultaneously but in an original way.

Forbes

I've always been miffed at the sight of twins dressed exactly alike, down to the last button and bow. I have the feeling that it stifles any originality of thought that might be germinating in the young brains and that it makes robots of these children.

I'm also allergic to present day fuss and feathers that demand youth must look alike, dress alike and do all the same things at the same time.

★ ★ ★

Music lessons are a "must" because all the little girls on the street take from "that wonderful teacher." Ballet is definitely "in" because "everyone, my dear," takes ballet.

Bicycles are necessary because "they all ride bicycles, Mother." Later, bicycles are out en masse "because you simply can't appear on a bicycle, Dad, when everyone else is driving a car."

It follows then that when someone insists that as Paris has an Eiffel Tower, Pisa a Leaning Tower and Seattle a Space Needle, Victoria must also have a 325-foot tower, I am left completely cold.

This is not Paris or Pisa. It is not an American city. This is Victoria — a city that is building its own image, slowly and carefully and with serious thought for the future.

Pisa's Leaning Tower took nearly 200 years to build. (1174 to 1350). It originally housed the bells for a Romanesque Cathedral in that old-world city.

It was the Paris Exhibition of 1889 that saw erection of the Eiffel Tower. The Space Needle in Seattle was erected in 1961-62 for what was loosely named a World Fair.

★ ★ ★

Each was a "left-over." Something had to be done with them. What else was there except turn them into what we glibly describe today as tourist attractions?

In Victoria there are no such leftovers. If a 325-foot tower is built here it is done with only one thought in mind — to make money.

I've been up in the Seattle Space Needle when the wind was so strong the whole thing swayed in a terrifying manner and when many could not eat their meals. I was glad to get back to firm ground.

Can you imagine a 325-foot tower at the entrance to our harbor on a day when the prevalent sou'westers are blowing? Remember, they blow here, day after day, for many months of the year.

Think too, of the days when the fog rolls in like cotton wool and vision is restricted to yards and not miles.

I'm not against development along our Inner Harbor, if it's in keeping with the image that has been outlined for Victoria.

In this vein, I can see the recently-proposed motel-restaurant-shopping complex, with its Tudor-style stucco and wood construction, its picture windows and its 100-foot clock tower, as an integral part of that image.

There's dignity in this suggested development as well as a sensible approach to the rejuvenation of that part of Victoria as a shopping area par excellence.

★ ★ ★

Such a complex would bring just as many — if not more — tourists to our city and would interest them far longer than a lone 325-foot tower sticking up like a sore thumb at the entrance to the Inner Harbor.

As far as I'm concerned such a tower is much like the word "togetherness," or twins dressed alike or the need for every young person to look and act in the same way. I don't like it!

VICTORIA DAY WEEKEND is Victoria Riding Academy Weekend. It is at this time every year the Cedar Hill Cross Road club stages its two-day horse show which marks the start of the competitive season in equestrian circles. In the picture, Mrs. Lorraine Charbonneau takes Sir Robert over a jump in warm-up for the show. Junior classes will be held Sunday, starting at 9 in the morning. And senior open competitions are planned Monday with the main events getting under way at 1:30. The academy show ring is west of Uplands Golf Club on Cedar Hill Cross Road. (Times Photo.)

TO HELP GUIDES, BROWNIES

Little Bit of Everything at Fair

There's going to be an unusual joining-of-hands at Saanichton Fair Grounds soon.

A wide variety of groups and individuals from southern Vancouver Island are getting together, and inviting the whole of the island to join them, in a Centennial Country Fair.

The day is Saturday, June 4, and the fair has been arranged in aid of Saanich peninsula divisions of the Girl Guides and Brownies who need funds to pay off a mortgage on their summer camp at Elk Lake.

With A. W. (Bud) Mesher in the organizational role, the fair will offer a little bit of everything in a program designed to keep patrons intrigued from the 11 a.m. opening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, to late evening when festivities end with a public dance in the main hall of the grounds.

The daylight hours program will include such things as loggers' sports, horse jumping, police work with dogs, and exhibits of racing cars, vintage cars and drag outfits.

In addition there will be a midway for children, refreshment booths, games, home-cooking and handicraft booths and demonstrations.

The mayor of Victoria and reeves of Greater Victoria, Central and North Saanich have been invited to attend and some of them have been "signed" already as competitors in a special event during logger sports.

The logging events have been lined up by Bill Grunow of All-Sooke Day fame, and will include axe throwing and wood chopping.

Sooke Lumber Products is supplying the logs and some big-name competitors will be on hand, including Neil Crocket, runner-up to last year's world champion axe thrower, and Hugh McKenzie, three times holder of the world title.

In the "logging event" for civic officials, the chief magistrates of the various municipalities will show the crowds their skills at nail hammering, chopping and sawing.

Saanich police department's beautiful Alsatian, Rex, will be put through his paces by dogmaster Constable Jim White and demonstrations in training and uses of dogs in police work will be given with commentary.

Car clubs entering exhibits include the Quartermilers, Vintage Car Club of Canada and the Vancouver Island Track Roadsters Association.

In addition to horse jumping events there will be a Parade of Stallions to include:

Two jumping events will provide plenty of action with nine horses trying in fault-and-out, and gambler's sweepstakes.

Riders will include, C. C. Carpenter on Good Heaven and Pogostick; Mrs. Pat Bowron on Hindu Punch and Amsterman; Mrs. Pat Newman on Glen to Glen; Mrs. Karen Watson—Kelly's Dream; Miss Judy Ross on Caradox; Miss Donna Coles on Chico and Miss Dina Gibson on Game Cock.

No Groups Buying Private Hospitals

Nobody has bought Health Minister Eric Martin's plan for non-profit groups to take over private hospitals so far.

Mr. Martin told the annual meeting of the public health institute in Vancouver Tuesday that he made the offer of provincial financial help 16 months ago so that $1-a-day care could be extended to more chronic care cases.

"To date, we have not had any official reaction to this offer," he said.

"But we are hopeful that in the metropolitan areas, where the problem is perhaps more acute, there may be some development."

He said the government is willing to pay half the original construction costs it approves, and one-third of any renovation and equipment costs if a non-profit group wants to buy an existing private hospital and turn it into a public chronic care facility.

However, he said 23 general hospital boards and ethnic groups around the province have applied for the same grants to build new facilities providing a total of 1,116 chronic care beds.

Accused Admits Theft of Truck

Edward Lumley, 1040 North Park, pleaded guilty to taking a vehicle without the owner's permission, driving while his permit was suspended and careless driving Tuesday.

He will be suspended when he reappears in central magistrate's court May 25.

The court was told Lumley stole a small panel truck belonging to New Method Laundry April 23 from the firm's lot at 947 North Park.

He was stopped by Saanich police on Yew Street after a chase for almost a mile at speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

Plumbers Want Job At Park

The plumbers union and the local building trades council took issue Tuesday with a contractor and sub-contractor who said a dispute over the sprinkler system for Royal Athletic Park is a jurisdictional one.

A joint statement said a letter by Phil Ballam, owner of Victoria Lawn Sprinkler, admitted employment by students in the summer on this kind of work.

"This can in no way be considered a jurisdictional dispute as no other union is involved," said the statement.

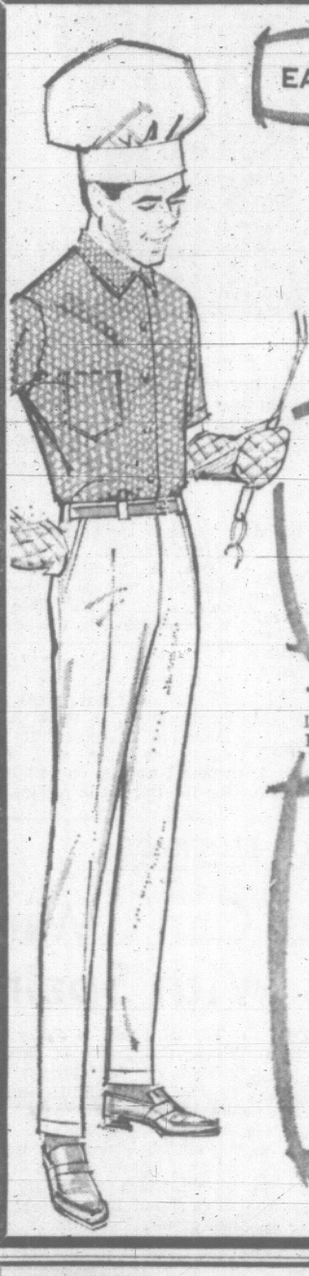

The plumbers' union wants skilled men to do the work, while Mr. Ballam and Farmer Construction say skilled men are not needed.

More People, But Less Food

ROME (AP)—World food production apparently failed to keep up with population growth last year and the prospect for this year is no better, the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization reported Monday.

"Neither food nor raw materials taken separately are likely to have advanced in step with population growth," said the organization's annual commodity review, based on information up to the middle of March.

If final figures available later show a production increase in 1965, it will be small, the report said. Production for 1965-66 was unlikely to sustain the population growth rate of two per cent.

CASE COSTS $67.41; GOVERNMENTS GET $52.65

You're Gulping a Lot of Tax Money in That Shot

That's an appropriate toast for anyone putting down a slug of hard stuff.

Charles R. Bronfman, president of the House of Seagrams Ltd. told reporters Tuesday that the current price for a case of 12 bottles of popular rye is $67.41 over the LCB counter.

But if it wasn't for federal and provincial taxes, the price would be $14.76.

In a press conference, Mr. Bronfman also commented on the potency of liquor in Canada. During the Second World War "as a move toward moderation," distributors and the federal and provincial governments pegged the joy factor of booze at 30-under-proof. This is the equivalent of 80 American proof.

In the U.S. whisky varies from 80 to 100 proof and Canadian whisky sold there also falls within that range.

Cost of increasing the potency here would be small. But the regulation remains.

"We didn't want a proof battle," said Mr. Bronfman.

He does not see a return to the 40-ounce bottle in Canada because of a lack of shelf space with so many brands and sizes competing today.

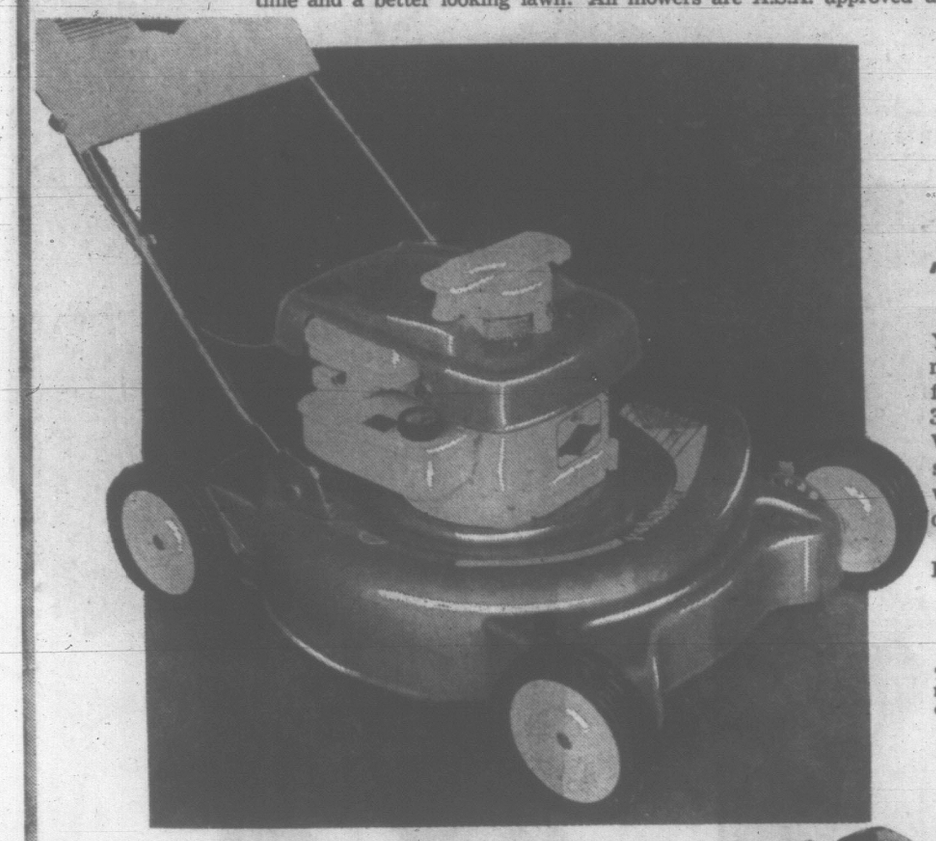

And Mr. Bronfman does not favor whisky advertising on television, even if it were permitted.

"We don't want people on TV saying what a drink would do for you. That would only encourage a drinking problem with minors." He said advertising in newspapers and magazines caters to a more controlled audience.

Civil Servants

NO CHECK-OFF FOR CHARITIES

A majority of provincial civil servants will not sign payroll deduction pledges for charitable donations in future, B.C. Government Employees' Association scretary E. P. O'Connor said Tuesday.

He said the employees and association are opposed to the payroll donations because the government refuses to allow a similar procedure for collecting association dues.

(Payroll checkoff of association dues was stopped by a cabinet order in 1960 after a brief walkout by civil servants to support demands for collective bargaining procedures.)

"If checkoff of association dues were implemented immediately we would wholeheartedly support the principle of payroll deduction for charitable purposes," said Mr. O'Connor.

He said Community Chest agencies that normally have received payroll deduction pledges from civil servants are being notified of the situation by the association.

The usual deduction cards have been prepared by the government but have been signed by an "infinitesimal number" of employees, Mr. O'Connor said.

City Robbery Hearing Against Four Delayed

Preliminary hearing of armed robbery charges against two Vancouver men will be delayed, prosecutor J. W. Anderson indicated in central court Tuesday.

Charged with the Feb. 18 robbery of the Bank of Montreal's Fort and Richmond branch are Henry Gable and William Braumberger.

Their hearing was to begin Tuesday with the arrival of two men from eastern Canada, also charged with armed robbery.

Mr. Anderson said delays on other charges against Harold Coullrer and Gordon Duck in Toronto have forced an adjournment here.

Coullrer is charged with possession of firearms, and Duck is charged with possession of counterfeit $20 bills.

They were to appear on the charges in Toronto last week, but their hearings have been delayed to next week.

It is planned to hold the preliminary hearing of armed robbery charges against all four men at the same time.

Police have indicated about 40 witnesses will be called.

Three men burst into the city bank at 6 p.m. closing time and got away with a record Victoria bank robbery haul of $18,000.

A fourth drove a get-away car through a maze of roadblocks set up by police.

NEW MARINE PARK NAMED

Smuggler's Cove, 40 miles north of Vancouver, will become the province's 10th marine park soon, Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced Tuesday.

He said the 408-acre park with its sheltered harbor will fit into a chain of marine parks from Sidney Spit near Victoria to Princess Louise Inlet, at the head of Jervis Inlet opposite Texada Island.

Belief In God Slipping

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Ninety-seven per cent of the United States population believes in God, the Catholic Digest says in a report on a poll made for the magazine by Dr. George Gallup's public opinion surveys.

The figure compared with 99 per cent reported in a similar survey undertaken in 1952.

The story reported that the most convinced believers are Roman Catholics and, among Protestants, the Baptists. A sharp decline was seen in the faith of Jews.

"The most dramatic change has occurred among the Jewish people," the story says. "In 1952, 98 per cent believed in God; 14 years later the percentage has dropped to 84 per cent. Thus 14 per cent of them have ceased to believe in God in 14 years."

Survey people put questions to a large number of persons 18 years of age and older.

Some Things Grow on Trees ... but Quality isn't one of them

Quality grows in good products from continuing research and improvement . . . another way of saying the article is reliable . . . it's dependable. When you buy an appliance at Eaton's you get more than shiny chromium! You get a mechanism under the finish that must give you satisfaction; and you get the backing of the Eaton guarantee to ensure it! Your confidence grows, too, with each purchase you make. Whether it's a Viking, Channel Master or Philips, it's a proven-quality product from Eaton's.

Appliances

The Viking Conditioner—will give your rugs and floors professional care. The no-soak "jet foam" adjusts the brush for the right shampoo action on your rugs. The waxing pads, the buffers and lamb's-wool pads will bring up the shine on your floors. Go modern! Condition and clean your floors and carpets with Viking. Each 49.95

The Viking 2-Speed Upright Vacuum—beats, shakes loose grit, picks up lint and hair, fluffs nap for both high and low cleaning. Vinyl bumpers and a headlight for dark corners protect your furniture. A must in the home with its Sanitized bag and all-metal construction. Each 99.95
Attachment kit 17.95

Viking De Luxe Cleaner — Now, dial your cleaning power! Full strength of twin fan suction and dual exhaust for heavy rugs and carpets. A gentler suction can be used on delicate curtains. Easy carry handle, retractable cord and step-toe switch makes this a dream to use about the house. Attachments to do the complete cleaning job with ease are included. Each 99.95

Tape Recorders

A Philips Continental "251" — there's a new low price on the portable "251". The all-new 2-speed 4-track set that plays through any existing high fidelity system. Each 199.00

B Philips Continental "401" De Luxe—A precision-built machine for heavy duty. Full frequency response and fidelity in reproduction, it has multi-play and records 32 hours to a reel. Built into a handsome compact cabinet. Each 349.00

C Philips Continental No. 301 — The all-transistor that gives up to 32 hours' recording on a 7" reel! Features fourth speed of 15/16 L.P.S. Encased in a slim cabinet of leatherette-covered wood. Excellent equipment for the busy executive. Each 299.00

Transistor Radios

1 Channel Master FM/AM, 14-transistor Radio—Four-stage IF amplification, five diodes bring in the finest drift-free FM and clear AM, using Vernier tuning. Each 69.95

2 Channel Master 6-transistor—A tiny model with giant reception. It fits the pocket or purse. Leather carrying case, earphone and batteries included. Each 17.95

3 Channel Master Pocket-Pal—Eight-transistor power with vernier fine tuning dial. Leather carrying case, batteries and earphone included. A favourite with the "In" group. Each 24.95

4 Channel Master Table Radio—A 6-transistor in a trim, stylish, shock-resistant case. Wide-range sound and accurate station selection. A decorator's choice. Each 29.95

PROTEST RELEASE OF DOCUMENT

Dief, Fulton Quit Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker today withdrew from the Munsinger inquiry, charging that it is an instrument of political assassination.

Mr. Diefenbaker announced his boycott just prior to the inquiry's mid - morning hearing, and explained his reasons at noon before a crowded press conference in his Commons office.

He said publication by the inquiry of a "handy document" on the Gerda Munsinger affair violated fundamental rights.

He called the statement "a sordid, libellous document" and "a McCarthy smear." The statement was obviously intended to destroy his reputation and was not in evidence. Many points in it were contradicted by the evidence.

Mr. Diefenbaker was joined in his boycott by Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister.

The Opposition leader said he cannot understand the conduct of the inquiry commissioner, Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

Counsel Attacked

He also criticized commission counsel John O'Brien, a Montreal lawyer.

From the day Mr. O'Brien had been named commission counsel, he had boasted publicly in Montreal of "what he was going to do with a former prime minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that when the Conservatives were in office Mr. O'Brien was counsel for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada when the firm applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for a rate increase.

The cabinet had taken strong objection to the basis for the application.

'Nursed Resentment'

"He (O'Brien) apparently nursed his resentment and now he has stated over and over again that he was going to get even."

Mr. Diefenbaker said this boast was made widely but the Opposition leader declined to name his sources.

Asked to comment on Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that Mr. O'Brien was out to get him, the commission council said:

"I have never said it and I have no reason to get him. Apart from that I'm not very interested."

The Conservative leader said the statement prepared and released by commission counsel was based on hearsay and "could not have been issued except with the purpose of creating a derogatory climate."

It was Mr. Justice Spence who called it a "handy document."

Asked whether he plans any legal action, Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

"That is a good question. I will consult my counsel about that."

Mr. Diefenbaker took exception to two allegations in particular in the inquiry document.

The first allegation was by Mrs. Munsinger, who claimed to have met Mr. Diefenbaker when he was prime minister and that he had told her she was doing a great thing for Canada.

"The publication of this sordid, libellous statement clearly revealed what the commission was set up to do," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He recalled that Mrs. Munsinger herself said in a CBC interview last spring that she had never met him.

Flat Denial

The second allegation that Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned specifically was an unattributed allegation that political interferenée was attempted to have the police withdraw cheque-passing charges against Mrs. Munsinger in February of 1961.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied this allegation flatly.

He said the inquiry was told by RCMP witnesses that the RCMP requested the withdrawal of the charges "without reference to any minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker took up most of the press conference reading a prepared statement and cut off questions from about 30 reporters after 15 minutes.

He said he and Mr. Fulton were withdrawing from the inquiry because of a succession of incidents culminating in the publication of the summary of the RCMP Munsinger file a week ago.

'Assassination'

"The purpose for which the commission was set up was political assassination of opponents," he said.

Even common criminals were not libelled in statements that were outside of the evidence.

Mr Fulton, who sat in at the press conference, said the correct procedure would have been to admit the RCMP file as evidence and question witnesses under oath about allegations contained in it.

He said his counsel at the inquiry repeatedly opposed the publication of a summary of the RCMP file.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton issued a joint statement on their withdrawal and when the hearing began their lawyer, C. F. H Carson, advised Mr. Justice Spence of the decision, Mr. Carson and his colleagues left the inquiry room.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson, who had ordered the inquiry, said the Liberal leader had no comment on the surprise move. The boycott was announced in a prepared statement.

Mr. Fulton later issued a statement criticizing point by point the manner in which the Munsinger inquiry has been conducted

He said he has no apologies to make for his handling of the Munsinger affair when he was justice minister.

His statement recalled that he had objected from the outset to the terms of reference of the inquiry, to secret sessions held without notice to the persons involved, to his difficulty in getting access to exhibits and official files, and to the publication of parts of a secret RCMP file.

"Our counsel had to undertake a virtual blasting operation before we were finally shown all the relevant police files.

Not Seen Before

"When we finally got them, they were found to contain documents sugesting important divergencies from the case as it was then being developed by commission counsel."

Mr. Fulton said when he testified May 9 he was confronted with an alleged memorandum

BONNER TAKES OVER

Labor Chiefs To Be Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner has taken over the contempt proceedings in the Lenkurt Electric Co. dispute and will issue summonses against certain labor figures, it was announced in court here today.

Gerge L. Murray, representing the attorney-general, told Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins that the attorney-general had decided to intervene in the contempt actions because of the great public importance.

Murray said that the attorney-general made his decision after he (Murray) had conveyed a message from the judge following Tuesday's hearing in which Mr. Justice Aikins said that contempt proceedings must be initiated and that the matter was of great public importance.

Murray said after the hearing that the number of persons to be proceeded against had not been decided but he told the judge that he proposed to issue show cause summonses — orders for certain persons to appear and show why they should not be cited for contempt.

WILL BE ARRESTS

Murray said he would proceed by summons rather than by writs of attachment, which would mean the arrests of the individuals concerned.

But he said he reserved the right to proceed by attachment if anyone should ignore the show cause summonses.

In court Tuesday Murray named six labor leaders and 69 other persons against whom he said there was evidence of disobedience of two court orders.

The orders were injunctions restraining any persons from picketing, obstructing or creating a nuisance at the Lenkurt plant in Burnaby, scene of two days of violent demonstrations.

The injunctions named as defendants, the B.C. Federation of Labor, Vancouver and District Labor Council and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC).

NAMES LEADERS

Murray told the judge that the union leaders who appeared to be guilty of contempt were International Woodworkers of America Vancouver local vice-president Tom Clarke; IBEW business agent Arthur O'Keeffe and his assistant Tom Constable; Charles P. Neale, Vancouver and District Labor Council, secretary; William Stewart of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union; and William Wells, business agent of the Retail Food and Drug Clerks Union.

He also named another person, a Brian Johnstone, as a man who handed out scurrilous pamphlets saying the courts were allied with management and scabs.

FIRST TV PICTURES OF EARTH

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Russian communications satellite has taken the first television pictures of the earth and successfully transmitted them back to ground stations, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

Tass said the pictures were taken by Russia's Molniya (Lightning) I in orbit around the earth at altitudes ranging from 18,600 to 24,800 miles. Molniya I, the third Soviet communications satellite to be orbited by the Russians, was launched April 25.

The agency said that the spacecraft's cameras changed lenses and filters enabling it to send back television pictures on different scales and under varied lighting conditions.

Bennett Silent On Plan

The B.C. government continued mum today on its reaction to Tuesday's announcement that Ottawa will institute a national medicare plan next year regardless of how many provinces agree to it.

Health Minister Eric Martin declined comment because: "The premier will have the first opportunity to make any announcement on this. It is an important policy issue and it will be up to him."

But requests for a comment form Premier Bennett this morning were fruitless. He was said to be tied up with work.

B.C. is among several provinces that have not committed themselves to participate or "opt out" of a national medicare scheme in which the federal government proposes to pay half the cost.

China Claims Persecution

PEKING (Reuters) — China said today it will send ships to Indonesia to bring home "thousands of persecuted Chinese nationals" now living there.

But it repeated a demand that Indonesia itself should ship home those wishing to return.

'THANK GOD . . . I'M SAFE'

Farm Boy Shoots Killer; Terrified Victim Unharmed

SHADE GAP, Pa. (UPI) — Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, kidnapped and held in chains for seven terrifying days by a long-sought deranged sniper who turned killer, was rescued unharmed today. The kidnapper was shot to death by a 15-year-old farm boy.

"Thank God . . . thank God . . . I'm safe . . . I'm safe," the pretty, blue-eyed, brown-haired high school junior cried over and over as she ran into the arms of a reporter who pushed her to the ground to avoid being hit by bullets.

The kidnapper, William D. Hollenbaugh, 44, was shot through the neck. State police said he was hit by the farm boy Larry Rubeck, who fired a '22 calibre rifle through a closed window of his home at nearby Fort Littleton. State police Cpl. Grant H. Mixell also was firing outside the house.

DEPUTY WOUNDED

A short while before he was killed, Hollenbaugh shot and critically wounded a deputy sheriff.

The dramatic events outside the Rubeck home took place only a few minutes after a heavily armed force of 675 men began an assault on nearby twin-peaked Tuscarora Mountain where the kidnapper was trapped with the girl Tuesday night.

Almost unbelievably, the wily, crazed kidnapper — who killed FBI agent Terry Anderson from ambush on the mountain Tuesday — slipped through the large posse, which had maintained an all-night vigil.

At about 9 a.m., PDT today the kidnapper surprised deputy sheriff Francis Sharpe at a roadblock. He forced Sharpe at gunpoint into the driver's seat of the deputy's car, got in beside him and made Peggy Ann lie on the floor in the rear. He then ordered Sharpe to drive to the Rubeck home.

Seagulls Take Role In Family Planning

KUSKETGET ISLAND, Mass. (AP)—Twenty-four thousand seagulls on this long, sandy island took part in an experiment in family planning today. They were fed tons of fish treated with a birth control agent.

Dr. David K. Wetherbee of the University of Massachusetts said the project was an attack on the population crisis in seagulls.

Tons of smelt were dropped onto the sand dunes by helicopter, and scientists will remain on the island to supervise the feeding.

The island, which barely rises above the level of the sea some five miles off Nantucket Island, is a favorite nesting place for gulls which later swarm to the Massachusetts mainland.

The fish were treated with commercial chemical that destroys the embryos in gull eggs laid seven days after the bird eats the fish, he said.

Some archaeologist a thousand years from now will bless them Vancouver garbage strikers.

Bomb Blasts Washroom Of Commons

One Man Reported Killed

OTTAWA (UPI) — An unidentified man died today when a bomb exploded in a third-floor washroom in Parliament Hill's centre block.

It was not immediately known whether it was suicide or whether the man was an innocent victim.

The explosion hit the building like a thunderclap at 2:45 p.m., EDT (11:45 a.m. PDT) just 15 minutes after the Commons had convened a floor below the incident.

Glass was blown from the windows of the washroom which was located near Prime Minister Pearson's office and that of External Affairs Minister Martin.

Immediately after the explosion, Commons security guards, MPs, and police rushed to the scene.

The whole area in front of the Commons chamber (the washroom is located on a walkway which surrounds the chamber foyer) was filled with dense, acrid smoke.

DOCTOR MPs ATTEND

Three MPs who are medical doctors—Dr. Hugh Horner, Dr. Harry Harley and Dr. Philip Rynard went into the washroom.

Parts of the washroom door were scattered around as a result of the explosion's impact.

Horner said the man was dead, apparently killed by a homemade bomb.

"He was badly mangled," the MP doctor said. "I do not know who he is. He is an older man."

The blast rocked the Commons chamber as Labor Minister J. R. Nicholson was speaking.

Minutes after it occurred and while Nicholson was still on his feet, New Democrat Frank Howard rose and interrupted him to say that a pageboy had come into the chamber and asked that any doctors in the House go to the third floor where their assistance was needed.

Prime Minister Pearson, following consultation with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, later adjourned the Commons for an hour.

ROYALTY WAS LAMPOONED by satirist Gerald Scarfe in today's edition of the London Daily Mirror. The drawing, appearing in the five-million circulation publication, shows Queen Elizabeth wearing a sign, "Britain for Sale," and grinning toothily while astride a moth-eaten horse. The nag's hide was split open to show a stuffing of a miniature of Prime Minister Wilson. Prince Philip, holding a polo mallet, hangs on to the horse's tail. (AP Wirephoto.)

September Vote Pledged by Ky

SAIGON (UPI)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was reported tonight to be preparing to hold elections in September for a constituent assembly in face of growing anti-government feeling in which rebel forces shot down an American plane in Da Nang and Buddhist students marched in Saigon.

Informed sources said he had pledged privately in talks with friends and associates and presumably American officials to hold the elections Sunday, Sept. 11, four days before his promised deadline.

There were still no details on the electio.

In Da Nang today cheering anti-government troops shot down an American observation plane as it flew low while government troops were showering leaflets on rebel troops urging them to support Ky.

In Saigon 1,000 to 2,000 Buddhist students led by a pretty girl surged through the streets demanding that the United States withdraw its support of the Ky regime.

Ky made a dramatic flight to Da Nang today to install a new military commander of the five rebellious northern provinces but the ousted commander flew to Hue to plot further anti-Ky strategy with Buddhist and military leaders. He said Americans rescued him from Ky's wrath.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, 1966—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

For upwards of half an hour I have been sitting here reviewing the good points of the 20th Victoria Exhibition, which is now in full jostle at the Memorial Arena, the Curling Rink, and the adjoining area.

The show is obviously entertaining large numbers of Victorians young, old and middling for a very modest price. It is also raking in a lot of dollars which the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce will use to further its various good works.

The Miss Victoria candidates are lovely as usual, the midway has the proper carnival sounds and smells, and we saw a girl strolling among the games of chance with a stuffed tiger almost as big as herself.

On a makeshift fairground, the livestock exhibits are of necessity limited. Within the space available, however, there's much worth seeing.

Nowhere will you find better tended creatures than those brought in by the boys and girls of the 4-H clubs. We were particularly taken with a tiny 21-year-old Shetland mare who drowsed with her 18th foal beside her, and a pair of clean pink piglets with tight-curled tails.

Elsewhere, there was a band for the teen-agers, an archery booth, and a modern version of the ducking stool complete with pretty witches.

★

But where the exhibits are concerned, and making generous allowance for the fact that we are not Toronto or Vancouver (praise be), I find myself unable to generate much enthusiasm.

The trouble doesn't lie with the outfits, which exhibited, but with those that didn't, and I can only suggest that a great many local firms seem to be passing up an excellent opportunity to display their wares to many thousand potential customers.

The armed forces, B.C. Telephone and a few dealers in home appliances have good displays, and the Jaycees' water safety booth is smartly handled.

But, in an outdoors-minded city teetering on the edge of its holiday season, why are there no boats, motors, tents, fishing tackle and other such bait for the strolling male?

This year as last, there's precious little to interest the prospective vacationer among the floor displays; and not too much to capture the attention of his wife, either.

The situation may change in some future year when Greater Victoria corrects a grave omission in earlier planning by elbowing space for an adeqate fairground.

In this respect, it seems to me that the department of national defence might well spare a scrap of its extensive close-in acreage.

For now, though, the midway tail threatens to wag the exhibition dog, and that is a situation in need of correcting.

★

Among the booths is a remarkably gay one. It also strikes me as being remarkably out of place. It is operated by Canada, Chinese Friendship Association, and if you pause there, you are likely to find a free sample of its wares thrust into your hand.

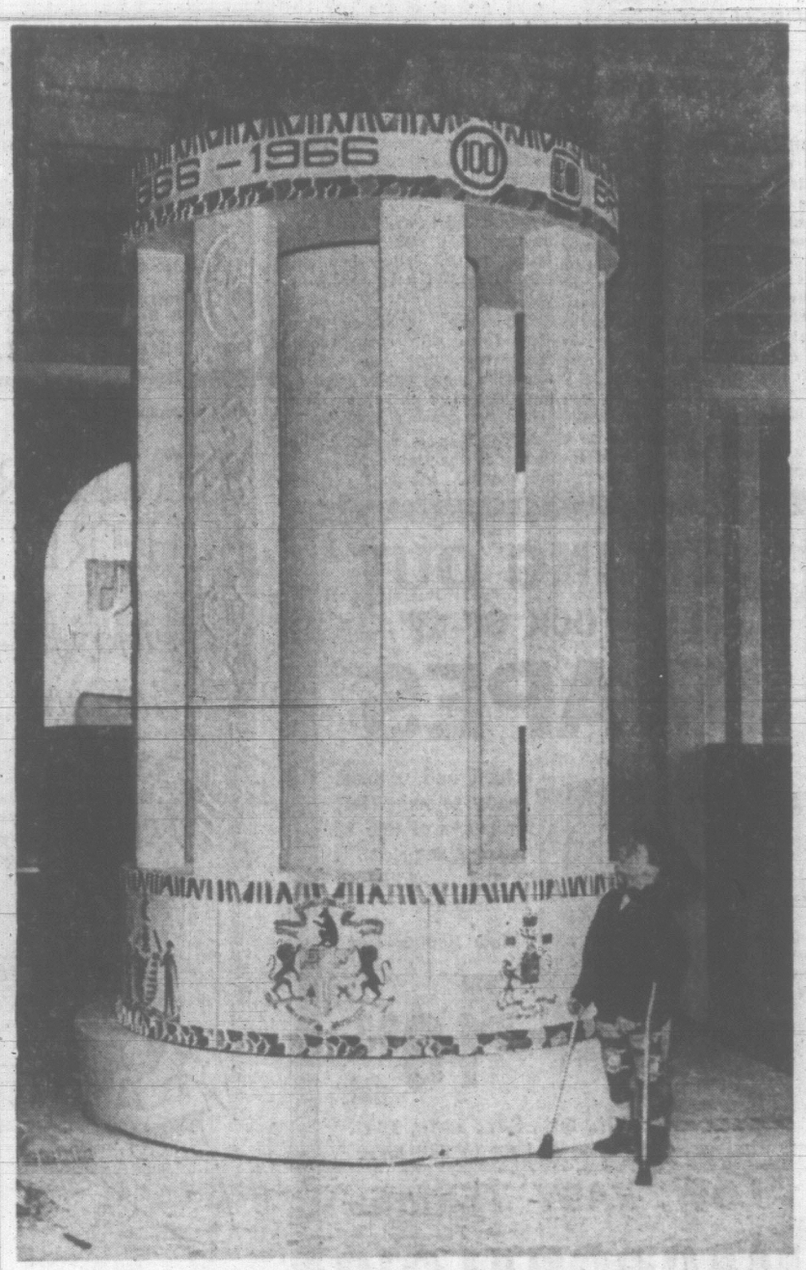

The item I came away with is a propaganda publication titled "Peking Review." It is dated July 16, 1965, and even though I remain cool toward the American venture in Viet Nam, this rag raises my hackles.

★

To wind up on a happier note, I am pleased to report that The Orphans, a homeless bunch of high-calibre industrial league softball players whose tribulations I told you about a few weeks ago, have finally found a sponsor.

After two more games, they will pull on new sweaters now on order, and as the Red Lions, go to bat for the recently-opened Red Lion Motor Inn.

The team has endured hard times gallantly, and deserves the break which Innkeeper Ken G. Hole worked hard to obtain for it. The players are happy, he's happy, and as a go-between in this amiable deal, so indeed am I.

Rene sizes up his cake-cutting job.

Boy to Carve Opening For Summer of Fun

An eight-year-old handicapped youngster will be the star of a Centennial Square ceremony Monday.

Rene Poirier, representing the Handicapped Children's Clinic, will cut into a two-ton centennial birthday cake.

And a summer-long program of outdoor entertainment in the square will be "cut loose" with the same symbolic act.

The 4,000-pound fruit cake, tucked inside a 12-foot high pillar of decorated icing sugar, is the centennial project of Oak Bay Kiwanis. Members will sell portions of the cake's "innards", three portions for $1.

The money will go to provide a summer camp for the handicapped youngsters at Cowichan Lake on 14 acres of leased government land.

The cake was designed by Vancouver art student Miss Cathie Gairns. Organizing and co-ordinating was carried out by George Molecy of Nanaimo who created a 10,700-pound cake at Nanaimo in 1958 and a 25,000-pound cake for Seattle's World's Fair in 1962.

AFTER PARADE

The cake-cutting ceremony takes place after the Victoria Day parade at 2 p.m. tentatively. It will be attended by Oak Bay Kiwanis president Bob Hunter, B.C. Centennial chairman L. J. Wallace, Mayor Alfred Toone and district reeves. There will be musical entertainment.

Cake sales will continue until Labor Day in the square where the shell of the cake will be displayed on a turntable.

Other centennial entertainments planned for the square include a program by the Katherine Costain Dancers and Oak Bay High School Choir at 3 p.m., May 28.

Soon after this Air Canada will open its new offices in the Square with a centennial flavor promised. Date will be announced.

Also undated but slated is a gymnastic display by the YM-YWCA and a series of Sunday evening programs of Salvation Army religious band concerts.

Greater Victoria Centennial Society co-ordinator Gerry Gosley warns other groups wishing to use the square it will be a case of first-come, first scheduled. He can be reached at 385-1465.

His office has set up a wall calendar for all centennial events both in the square and elsewhere in the district. Organizers for groups and societies planning celebrations may see the calendar there and avoid overlapping of attractions.

Mrs. Irene Warren, chairman of the Ethnic Group Activities Committee, has sent more than 70 letters to associations urging folk dancing and musical programs.

Any group which would consider a public display in national costumes, which might have been overlooked, should contact her at the centennial office.

Another centennial attraction announced for the square today is the Oct. 26 to 29 presentation at McPherson Theatre of "Emily Carr, a Biography with Pictures," a play by Greater Victoria Centennial Society, directed by Peter Mannering.

During the same week the Art Gallery will feature a collection of Emily Carr paintings and personal effects.

CENTENNIAL TRAIL

Children of the Victoria Natural History Society are opening a centennial trail in Francis Park.

A sponsor is sought for another proposed centennial project in the same park, an addition to the Nature House. It will be used as a lecture room and auditorium.

The Outdoor Club of Victoria is engaged in a trail-making project — a three-mile trail in Goldstream Park.

UBC Gets Major Research Lab

The B.C. Research Council plans to build a major research laboratory on the University of B.C. campus, a spokesman said today.

He was commenting on a cabinet approval Tuesday for a lease agreement under which the Research Council will pay $1 a year for 99 years for a new site totalling nine acres on university property.

The university will pay $250,000 for the research council's present building and one-acre site on the campus under the arrangement.

An official who preferred to remain unidentified said the research council will start building a 110,000-square-foot structure on its new site by the spring of 1968.

"This will be about triple the size of the present building and it will have extremely high ceilings for research equipment which the present quarters do not have," the spokesman said.

"It will be designed so that it can be expanded both vertically and horizontally over most of the nine acres in future and we shall begin taking in some university graduate students for training in the new facility."

Cost estimate was not disclosed.

'TAKE A BUS' JUDGE TELLS HONEYMOONER

A man married Tuesday was fined $300 in central magistrate's court on a charge of impaired driving.

Keith Quinlan, 417 Tippett, was found guilty of driving while impaired the early morning of April 27.

Applying for the retention of diver's licence on behalf of his client, counsel Dermod Owen-Flood said the man "can't go on his honeymoon if his licence is taken."

Suspending Quinlan's licence for an indefinite period Magistrate William Ostler answered, "I don't imagine it's the first time people have gone on a honeymoon on a bus.

"They don't need any licence for that."

Quinlan, a fisherman, had pleaded not guilty.

Police said they found him slumped over the wheel of his car parked on the south side of the 1400 block Fort St.

Vagrant Given Month in Jail

A man with a history of vagrancy convictions was sentenced to a month in jail today for a further similar offence.

Gordon Jones, who told magistrate's court he just got out of Wilkinson Road jail, pleaded guilty.

Court was told Jones was apprehended after he was seen asking a postman for a dime at the corner of Government and Johnson Sts.

The crown prosecutor cited previous convictions for the same offence in Vancouver.

Steady Gains Made On Land Purchases

By ROGER STONEBANKS

An important—if unspectacular—program is being undertaken in Saanich.

Day by day, moves are being made to acquire land for road widening and recreation.

At each committee meeting, approval is given to purchase a lot here and a parcel there.

The amounts are usually small.

In a quiet way, the municipality's first capital projects budget is being implemented.

"I am happy with the progress," said Reeve Hugh Curtis.

"None of it is spectacular because land acquisition is tedious and lengthy."

Just over $1 million was to secure open land for the rapidly-growing population, now about 60,000.

FOUR LANES

Nearly $1 milion was for construction and reconstruction of McKenzie Avenue to four lanes from two between Douglas Street and Ruby Road.

The rest was divided between contingencies and a major drainage scheme in the Bowker Creek basin north of Blair Avenue.

Much of the property, especially for the rebuilding of McKenzie as a major east-west road, is in small pieces and owned jointly by husband and wife.

This has meant many trips in the evening hours in the last few months for lands commissioner Jack Lindsay.

90% COMPLETED

About 90 per cent of the land acquisition for McKenzie has been completed.

None of the other land has been acquired, but several decisions will have to be made by council soon.

The land being acquired includes:

- The McRae Estate, comprising the 78-acre golf course and 24 acres of surrounding land;
- Additional land around Swan Lake to develop an attractive setting for the municipal administration area;
- Twenty acres at Burnside-Tillicum;
- About five acres in Cordova Bay.

GOLF COURSE STAYS

Reeve Curtis said concern is still expressed that Saanich will close the Cedar Hill golf course.

"My personal view is certainly not," he said. "I can see no point at all in removing the golf course."

The $215,000 drainage scheme for the Bowker Creek basin has been deferred for one year for technical reasons.

This will allow an extra winter for municipal engineers to gather more information needed in the plans for drains, which depend on such factors as rainfall and runoff not absorbed by the earth.

While nearly all the land has been acquired for the McKenzie project, no date has been set for the start of work.

This will depend on when the provincial highways department makes a decision on Saanich's application to have the road declared a secondary highway.

GOVERNMENT BUYS WINDERMERE HOTEL

After two years of renting, the provincial government has decided to buy the old Windermere Hotel, 716 Courtney, and a parking lot alongside it.

A cabinet order Tuesday authorized purchase of the property for an undisclosed sum.

It has been used by sections of the public works and education departments on a rental basis since it was vacated as a headquarters building by the RCMP.

'Let Us All Go Forward in Love' Says RC Bishop

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, made history Tuesday when he told a conference of Anglican clergymen from all parts of Vancouver Island:

"Let us all go forward together in love."

It was the first time in British Columbia that a Roman Catholic bishop had ever attended The Anglican Synod (parliament) of The Diocese of British Columbia.

The clergy rose in a body and applauded Bishop De Roo for almost three minutes.

In his stately robes, adorned with a large gold cross, the 41-year bishop looked almost boyish beside the rugged, rock-like Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia.

GREAT DAY

"This is a great day in our history," said the archbishop, "and I believe it is a great portent for the future."

Bishop De Roo spoke of the Second Vatican Council in Rome which he attended last year. He said:

"The successful pursuit of inter-church co-operation will do much to strengthen the bonds of Christian unity in Canada and across the world.

"Unity will not be an easy thing to accomplish and it will demand a price. It will call for sacrifice and reform in every Christian church.

"It will call for some drastic re-thinking, and we must all remember that it is anti-Christian to harbor any ill-feeling against anyone else who is a fellow Christian."

Bishop De Roo said there is a general desire for true friendship at the "divine level of prayer."

"We will have to develop confidence and trust in one another — and it must be backed by humility and honesty. Any kind of make-belief would be disastrous.

CLIMB TOGETHER

"We must respect the freedom and dignity of others. And this is not a matter of crossing the road to one side of the other; it mean s lcimibng together towards a higher vision of truth."

Earlier in the day, Archbishop Sexton, who is 77, hinted at retirement when he said:

"As I draw near the end of my charge, I wish to express my grateful thanks to the executive and finance committee and the staff of the Synod office."

In an interview, the archbishop said his retirement might come a year from now.

In his charge to the Synod, Archbishop Sexton referred to the severe strapping of a schoolgirl in Ontario, as described recently on the CBC television network.

"In my opinion, no self-respecting male teacher should be called upon to punish a girl in this manner," the archbishop said.

"If it should be necessary to inflict such punishment upon a girl, it should be done by a female teacher and, both with boys and girls, it should be applied to that part of the anatomy which is naturally most suited for the purpose."

Archbishop Sexton announced that the Archbishop of Canterbury — the traditional head of the church in England — will visit Victoria Sept. 28.

"No definite program has yet been set up but, after consultation with a few diocesan advisers, I shall release the details to all interested clergy and laity."

Union First In Prepaid Dental Plan

A Vancouver union local has been signed up in the first prepaid dental plan in Canada.

It will reduce dental bills for members by 50 per cent.

The launching of the scheme, involving Local 280 of the Sheet Metal Workers' and Flat Deck Roofers' Union, was announced at a press conference in Vancouver this morning.

The plan is administered by CU and C Health Services Society in co-operation with Dental Services Association of B.C.

There was no immediate promise of the plan being extended to cover the general public.

However the newsmen were told by CU and C officials that it will be possible to extend the same benefits to any group of 50 or more employees in B.C.

The other 50 per cent will be paid by CU and C Health Services which will recover its outlay from the union welfare funds.

FRINGE BENEFIT

The welfare fund in turn receives its income from employers of the union members through a contract arrangement or fringe benefit negotiated earlier.

CU and C will pay the dentists their normal rates, and accepts the financial risk.

Present at the press conference today were union business agent James Mead, CU and C general manager J. H. Corsbie and Dr. William Joiner, president of Dental Services Association.

360 JOINED

Dr. Joiner said to date 360 of the 700 dentists in British Columbia have joined Dental Services Association.

Asked what happens when a member of the plan goes to a dentist who is not a member, Dr. Joiner said "he would have the privilege of paying on that dentist's terms or going to a dentist who is a member."

Watershed Shift Dismays Chemainus

The summer issue of the provincial government's magazine Beautiful B.C. has altered the geography of central Vancouver Island.

And residents of Chemainus, betweeen Duncan and Ladysmith, are hopping mad.

"A Cowichan Valley which crosses a range of mountains and extends to the boundaries of Chemainus is only a commercial creation and cannot be supported by geographic or historical fact," says an angry letter of protest to Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

"You would have to be a resident of Chemainus to appreciate the dismay caused by the reporting which dumps the entire Chemainus River watershed into the Cowichan Valley," wrote the Chemainus Historical Society president Dick Pattison.

"Geographically the Cowichan Valley ends just five miles north of Duncan," said the letter.

"We must assume your reporter gathered most of his information from Duncan where this concept of an expanding Cowichan Valley has been fostered during the past half century.

"Various Duncan agencies have been publishing this nonsense for so long the residents of that area are beginning to believe it."

The Historical Society protest was endorsed by the Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce.

Ask The Times

Q. What was the strength in operational ships and total complement of the RCN at the outbreak of the Second World War? J.B.

A. Canada's navy consisted of six destroyers, five minesweepers and two training vessels with a complement of 145 officers and 1,674 men in August, 1939, according to Joseph Schull in his book, The Far Distant Ships.

Valued Document

Pearson's Cousin Gave Tip

OTTAWA (CP) — A cousin of Prime Minister Pearson's in Chicago furnished the tip that led to the Dominion Archives obtaining the document initialled by Queen Victoria that made Ottawa Canada's capital.

Word of the acquisition leaked out earlier Monday and was first confirmed by Dominion Archivist Dr. Kaye Lamb and later a spokesman in the prime minister's office explained Mr. Pearson's involvement.

William Spencer, a cousin of Mr. Pearson's who lives in Chicago and is a well-known collector of documents, heard of the Queen Victoria memorandum being acquired by Walter R. Benjamin Autographs, a New York City firm.

OFFERED FOR SALE

Mr. Spencer sent word to Mr. Pearson last year along with a letter from the Benjamin firm offering the document for sale. Mr. Pearson was asked whether Canada was interested in obtaining it and, according to the spokesman, replied affirmatively.

Mr. Pearson turned the case over to Dr. Lamb and confidential negotiations began. These were completed recently and the document, already here for a check on its authenticity, was purchased and locked away in the archives' vault.

"There isn't any doubt about it," Dr. Lamb said. "It certainly is the document that made Ottawa the capital of Canada."

Dr. Lamb said the document was based on a memorandum from Maj.-Gen. Charles Grey, Prince Albert's secretary. The document is in Prince Albert's handwriting and initialled by his wife, Queen Victoria.

Worker Injured When Scaffold, Bricks Fall

A construction worker was rushed to hospital at 12:10 p.m. today after a scaffolding at the back of the B.C. Hydro bus garage now under construction collapsed on him.

Philip Knott, 85 Obed, was working under the scaffolding at the time.

Workmen at the scene said the scaffolding and bricks it held fell on his back.

Condition of the man was not known at press time.

Degrees Awarded In Saskatoon To Victorians

A bachelor of commerce degree from the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon was awarded this week to Richard Graham Beirnes, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Beirnes, 1727 Cedar Avenue.

Mr. Beirnes received his earlier education in Yorkton, Sask.

Yew-Shum Lee, also of Victoria, received a master of science degree from the University of Saskatchewan. No address was available for Mr. Lee.

Little Scandal Keep Tenants On Their Toes

NANAIMO, (CP) — At least one scandalous couple is needed in an apartment block to keep the tenants interested, an American apartment management specialist said here Tuesday.

William Causins, vice-president of the Seattle Institute of Real Estate Management, said the presence of the interesting pair keeps tenants busy wondering what they will do next.

Mr. Causins was a member of a panel of speakers at the Real Estate Institute of British Columbia convention.

J. H. Green, Vancouver manager of property investments for Great West Life Assurance Co., said the entry of crown corporations and governments into office building development and rental in Vancouver is creating a poor investment climate for real estate.

The federal government has done it and the provincial government proposes to do it, Mr. Green said.

WHAT NEXT?

If governments can build offices in competition with private developers, he said, they might tomorrow build apartment houses, government-owned hotels for the tourist industry and shopping centres.

Another speaker, Ben Wosk, president of Wosks Ltd., of Vancouver, said there is a trend back to a combination of residential and building accommodation inside the city core.

One contribution toward this is the combination of apartments and office space downtown.

Mr. Gans, president of the Institute of Real Estate Management of the U.S. National Association of Real Estate Boards said:

"I've seen blocks in Los Angeles that are two years old and still 30 per cent to 40 per cent unoccupied. The owners are becoming worried. So are owners of some office buildings that are being bypassed because of their age. . . ."

Traffic Deaths At Nanaimo Worst in B.C.

NANAIMO—The city had the worst per capita traffic fatality rate in the province last year, RCMP Cpl. Alex Marchuk said Tuesday.

"With 22 fatalities we were worse than Vancouver for relative population," he told Kiwanis Club members.

He said although there has been a 100 per cent increase in the number of cars in the city since 1961, streets here have changed little since the mining days.

Aviation Pioneer Of B.C. Dies In California

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Templeton of Vancouver, believed to be the first Canadian to build and fly a plane west of Toronto, has died in San Francisco at the age of 76.

Mr. Templeton, known in Vancouver as "Mr. Aviation," was reported to have died of pulmonary edema. He was best known for his successful fight for establishment of Vancouver International Airport.

The pioneer aviator is also generally credited with being the first person to fly an aircraft of the conventional type—a biplane with the propeller at the front—from Canadian soil.

The biplane was built in a Vancouver basement in late 1910 and early 1911 by Mr. Templeton, a now-deceased brother and a cousin. None of them had ever seen an aircraft.

. . . KILLER

troopers were manning a roadblock at the house. Under orders from the kidnapper, Sharpe got out of the car to tell the troopers he had a wounded man in the auto and had to get to a hospital immediately.

As Sharpe talked to the troopers, Hollenbaugh got out of the car and, holding the girl in front of him, began firing. One of his bullets hit Sharpe, wounding him critically.

As the kidnapper moved toward the porch of the Rubeck home, Mixell returned his fire and the Rubeck boy ran from a barn where he had been doing chores inside the house. The boy shouted to his mother:

'HIT THE FLOOR!'

"Hit the floor, Mom. That crazy mountain man is on the porch."

Then the boy fired the shot that felled the kidnapper.

Peggy Ann, meantime, had broken away from the kidnapper and ran into the arms of reporter Scott Rombach, of Pittsburgh, who had accompanied the state police detail at the house.

Rombach said the girl was hysterical and "a mess." He said she was dirty, her clothes torn and her hair covered with burrs.

The girl and deputy Sharpe were taken to the Fulton County medical centre at nearby McConnellsburg.

The girl was reported in "excellent physical condition." Sharpe underwent surgery for an abdomen wound and was reported "critical."

FELL ASLEEP

After a hearty breakfast, Peggy Ann was given sedatives and fell asleep.

Her family physician, Dr. Gerald T. Lorentz, spoke with the girl at the hospital.

She told him that shortly after she was kidnapped at gunpoint last Wednesday she was taken to a cabin near the top of one of the twin peaks of Tuscarora Mountain. She said Hollenbaugh chained her around the neck.

She was kept in the cabin "about three or four days" and then Hollenbaugh took her, still chained, into the woods.

STOPPED AT CAVES

They stopped at caves from time to time to rest and eat.

Hollenbaugh had three caves stocked with guns, food and ammunition, state police said.

Lorentz said the girl told him she lived on canned beans and canned corn during the seven terrifying days she was held captive.

"Her feet are badly blistered and she has quite a few bruises on her hips, apparently from falling while being dragged through the woods. She was less hysterical than I would have expected," Lorentz said.

Military Cross Winner Dies At Age 87

Major R. Thorton Osborne, who won the Military Cross in the First World War, died in a private hospital today at the age of 87.

He won the Military Cross in 1915 for bravery in France while serving with the Royal Field Artillery. Subsequently he was mentioned in despatches by Field Marshal Douglas Haig and the citation was signed by Winston Churchill, then secretary of state for war.

Remarkably, Major Osborne was never wounded.

"I ran too fast for them," he used to say.

Formerly of Vancouver and Duncan, Major Osborne was Vancouver manager of Maple Leaf Flour Mills. An enthusiastic golfer, he was a member of Shaunghessy and Capilano golf clubs before coming to Victoria.

Major Osborne is survived by the widow, Evelyn, at home at 360 Douglas Street; a daughter, Mrs. Rhuna Arlett, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Ted Pulford, formerly Jill Arlett.

There will be a private family funeral Friday.

Retaining Wall, Hydro Pole Hit

In fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after his car hit a retaining wall Tuesday is Sawarn Singh Mann, 40, of 736 Kings.

Mr. Mann sustained head and leg injuries when the car he was driving failed to make a turn on Highway 1-A's Four Mile Hill and crashed into a retaining wall, and took out a hydro pole at about 9 p.m.

Colwood RCMP said approximately $600 damage was done to Mann's car.

Food Prices Clamp Studied

LONDON (CP)—A cabinet emergency committee today prepared to consider demands for an official clamp on rising food prices resulting from Britain's merchant seamen's strike, now in its third day.

Some 10,000 crew members have left 300 British ships immobilized in ports around the nation with the tie-up growing hourly.

To safeguard food supplies the government took its first crisis measure in the strike by banning, from Saturday, the export of meat and non-pedigree livestock.

The 65,000-member National Union of Seamen is striking for an immediate reduction in the present work week from 56 hours to 40 hours for the same pay, a demand that the shipowners contend would amount to a pay increase of 17 per cent. The shipowners have offered a reduction over two years to a 40-hour week, which they say would amount to a 13-per-cent increase.

A British able seaman earns, including overtime and other payments, an average of £20 ($60) a week. Basic pay is £14 ($42).

Prime Minister Wilson, who wants to keep his government's prices - and - incomes policy intact, has urged the seamen to accept an immediate three-per-cent increase and full inquiry into pay and working conditions.

COMMITTEE MEETS

The cabinet committee watching economic effects of the strike met several times Tuesday as Agriculture Minister Fred Peart told traders the government will act if the current increase in meat, vegetable and fruit prices becomes rampant.

Government ministers were chiefly concerned about the sudden jump in prices of such daily purchases as New Zealand lamb, Argentine beef, and South African and Australian apples.

The government appealed to traders to keep prices reasonable, saying that present stocks in the country are ample.

The price of sterling dipped on world money markets Tuesday and the Bank of England intervened with purchases for the second day to bolster the pound.

A danger of the strike spreading from the seamen to dock workers developed in the Port of London.

The port authorities expect the government to call in the Royal Navy soon to start moving the strikebound vessels.

But the movement of two ships from berth to berth already has been challenged by Jack Dash, unofficial dockers' leader, and the local seamen's strike committee.

If the ships are moved the dockers are expected to refuse to unload cargoes from incoming ships which need the berths.

Dockyard Men Seek Pay Adjustment

A union spokesman said today efforts will be continued to get prevailing construction and maintenance rates of pay for dockyard maintenance men.

William Isbister, business agent for Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, was commenting on statements by Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) in the Commons.

Mr. Winch said men working side by side earned varying rates of pay.

Mr. Isbister said maintenance men at Work Point and Comox get the same rate of pay as the outside civilian construction rate.

But the maintenance men at dockyard get the prevailing shipyard rate although they are involved in the maintenance of buildings and not ships.

This resulted in a disparity of 85 cents an hour between the construction wiremen's rate of $4.05 hourly and the shipyard rate of $3.20.

"The only place they don't get the prevailing construction rate is at the two dockyards in Esquimalt and Halifax," he said.

Crews from dockyard were required to go to Comox and work with people from Chilliwack who got the higher construction rate.

TRYING FOR YEARS

Mr. Isbister said his union has been trying for years to rectify the situation. Last week, the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council met dockyard officials on the matter.

Mr. Winch told the Commons he was informed men at Esquimalt intend to take action "within 30 days."

But Mr. Isbister said no kind of work stoppage is contemplated.

"We do not intend to create any problem in this regard," he said. "It is our intention to continue to pursue this matter to try and have an unfair situation corrected."

There was no official comment from the dockyard itself.

Eastern Workers Threaten Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — About 5,000 civilian employees of the defence department in the Halifax area will go on strike at the end of June unless they are promised wage parity with West Coast workers, Michael Forrestall (PC-Halifax) predicted in the Commons Tuesday night.

Their action would halt the work of the armed services on the East Coast, he said.

Wage scales for skilled tradesmen at HMC Dockyard, the centre for modification, refit and overhaul of navy vessels, average 75 cents an hour less than rates in the Victoria area, he said.

The 2,400 men there and as many more in other defence department establishments nearby are setting a firm strike deadline, Mr. Forrestall said.

AIR CHARTER PASSENGERS

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Pacific Steamships announced today it has made arrangements for Empress of England passengers whose departure to Canada was delayed by the British seamen's strike.

A total of 479 passengers will be flown to Canada on three charter flights Friday and Saturday from London, Manchester and Prestwick, Scotland, a spokesman reported. Some other travellers decided to wait until they could make the journey by sea.

Teachers Feted At Willows, Lampson Schools

Three long-service teachers were honored in receptions at Greater Victoria schools Tuesday by former pupils, parents and fellow teachers.

At Willows elementary the spotlight was on Miss Nessie Wallace and Mrs. Goldie Keene, who between them have taught for a total of 69 years.

Miss Wallace taught in Victoria for almost 39 years, Mrs. Keene had been at Willows since 1960 but had a long teaching career before then, including six years as primary school consultant in the Alberni Valley.

In the limelight at Lampson Street elementary was Alex Hutchinson, who has spent a total of 55 years there, 10 as a student and 45 as a teacher. He was given a plaque by Reeve Ray Bryant and a wallet containing $225 by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Mayors' Meet Set

MONTREAL (CP) — The Federation of Mayors and Municipalities announced Tuesday that its 29th annual meeting, this year, will be staged in Vancouver June 6-10. Among scheduled guest speakers are B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Dr. J. J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

Force Dwindles

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver police force, hit recently with a wave of resignations, is 46 men under strength.

'Socred Defeat' If Vote Called

Opposistion Leader Robert Strachan today said lengthy speaking tours in northern B.C. and the interior this month have convinced him the voters would defeat the Social Credit government if it called a snap election.

"The people don't think there's any need for an election and I rather think they would vote against the government just because of an election if it was called," he said in an interview.

"They seem to be of the opinion that the government is getting arrogant again."

Mr. Strachan indicated he is betting there will be no election because he is packed and ready to take off Sunday with his wife on a charter-flight excursion to Europe.

STRACHAN
. . . reports on trip

He will visit London, Paris and the Glasgow he left 35 years ago as a 17-year-old emigrant to Canada's farms, before returning June 19. NDP MLAs Alex MacDonald and Toyn Gargrave also are booked for the trip.

Mr. Strachan said everywhere he went on his post-session speaking tours people asked him when the election would be called or alternatively why is there going to be an election.

His answers: "I never try to predict the action of an unpredictable premier and an unstable government and, two, there is no reason for an election except the premier's ego provokes a continual demand for the plaudits of the people."

Mr. Strachan said the third most prevalent question put to him was why Premier Bennett did not take his advice a year ago May 7 to call a government-labor-management conference on spiralling construction costs.

"I said the competition for skilled labor would lead to inflation and I wanted assigned priorities and a whole variety of things that could have been done a year ago.

"All I got was a snide remark from Peterson that was just trying to hold up progress."

(This year the premier and all cabinet ministers have been emphasizing the need for restraint in construction prices and the government is reviewing about $20 million worth of its projects to see if they should be suspended or cut back.)

HOME GARDEN

Patios Give Scope To Creative Types

By HILDA BEASTALL

The use of a plant in what appears as an unorthodox position, sometimes creates an air of refreshing charm.

Hilda

To be acceptable, it must have suitability, otherwise the effect would be inharmonious.

Patios and other flat outdoor living areas are new to the present generation of active gardeners, and the range of plants adaptable for these conditions is much wider today than 50 years ago.

And, we like to think we are more venturesome.

Basically, there are two kinds of outdoor living areas, one predominantly sunny, the other mostly shady.

The use of hollow building-tile, and the splendid idea of low brick planters as boundaries to patios renders the maintenance of these small areas fairly simple. Their height makes weeding and cultivation easy, and the plantings can be changed each year if the whim occurs.

In a predominantly sunny position, with shade perhaps from late afternoon, an assortment of little sedums, saxifrages, and sempervivums would add plenty of interest to raised walls or raised pockets in any position around a sitting-out place.

These are low-growing, almost succulent-type plants with great variety of leaf shape and colors from grey and green to violet-brown and rusty-red.

Flowers are not lacking either. When established for a year or so, flower stems will rise from some of the plants to around 10 inches. The flowers are pink, white or yellow, and when growing near one's chair, they may be inspected and enjoyed at close quarters far more easily than when growing at normal ground level.

Another thought for hot sunny patio beds or pockets in walls of building blocks is a collection of half doxen different kinds of thymes.

Apart from the culinary thyme which is shrub-like, there are a number which creep flat or hang in curtains over rocks.

Headaches End When Patient 'Set Free'

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Alvarez

A man comes in to tell me that at the age of 15 he began to have terrible sick headaches which became worse at the age of 20, and ever since have been coming at frequent intervals, sometimes every day. This story tells me immediately that he must be a very nervous and troubled man, because men rarely suffer serious symptoms when they have a migrainous inheritance. Men and women probably inherit migraine equally. The women can suffer from nausea, vomiting and prostration, while all the men usually get is a scotoma — a 20-minute long spell of fussy vision. I inherited migraine from my mother, but in 60 years I have never had either nausea or a headache only scotomas.

Hence, when a man comes with severe and frequent spells of migraine, I ask, and usually I find, that he inherited migraine from one parent, and great nervousness from a psychotic or alcoholic or epileptic other parent.

Sometimes the man with severe migraine tells me of spells of mild depression; or he confesses that he works under great strain, and then his wife may tell me that he is an unreasonable and almost constant worrier, who is almost always tense. Perhaps he is much too fussy about many details of life. Things have to be "just so," or he gets upset.

Occasionally, I learn that the man inherited the management of his father's big business, and the burden of this is much too heavy for him; or he, who wanted to be an artist or a writer, dislikes the work he has to do.

Sometimes I find a highly migrainous college student who has broken down in his junior or senior year. If I can get him to talk, usually he confesses that he has lost interest in his studies, or he has run into studies such as mathematics that are too hard for him; or if he is a seminary student, he may confess that he has lost his faith, so that he no longer wants to be a "man of God." Or he may have found out that he does not want to be the lawyer or physician that his father much wants him to be. Then I talk to the parents and ask them to set their son free to choose what he wants to do in life.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Eileen Fishel, age 11, of Des Moines, Iowa, for her question:

What causes eclipses of the moon?

If you travel around the world to the right spot at the right time, you can see at least two eclipses of the moon every year. During certain years you may catch up with three, four or even five lunar eclipses. Some will cast shadows on only part of the moon and some will be total eclipses.

During a lunar eclipse, a rusty, brown shadow creeps across part or all of the full moon. This shadow belongs to the earth and the eclipse depends upon angles and triangles created out in space. Our big, round globe casts a shadow about 900,000 miles long. It tapers into space in a long cone from the night side of the earth which is turned away from the sun. We do not notice it unless it falls on some object out in space.

Every month the moon orbits around the earth at an average distance of 235,000 miles. Every month it passes around the side opposite from the sun where the earth's shadow points out into space. We should get a lunar eclipse every month—but we do not. We get only two to five lunar eclipses a year, and in most of them the earth's shadow falls on only part of the moon.

This is because orbits tend to wobble. Instead of traveling on a flat, level path, the orbit of the moon tips up and down. Sometimes it is nearer and sometimes farther from the earth. The changeable angles and distances usually enable the moon to dodge around the earth without passing through its shadow. Some months it passes above and some months below the shadowy triangle.

Passes Through Shadow

But once in a while the moon's orbit cuts right through the shadow of the earth and we get a lunar eclipse. This must occur when the moon is on the side of the earth opposite the sun. The side of the moon facing us then is bathed in sunshine and a lunar eclipse can occur only at full moon.

The moon travels its orbit at about 2,000 miles an hour and gradually we can watch it move into the shadow of the earth. Slowly the shadowy finger creeps over the golden face of the full moon, changing it to dusky grey or bronze. The angle of the orbit may cause the shadow to fall on only part of the moon and we see a partial eclipse. But sometimes the entire moon must pass through the shadowy triangle and the full moon may be totally eclipsed for more than an hour. Then, as the moon orbits on its way, the shadow is left behind and we see it inching back from the bright lunar landscape.

The encroaching shadow of the earth bites in a curved path across the surface of the moon. Its edge also is curved as it recedes from the opposite edge of the moon. These curves should tell us something about the shape of the earth. They are part of a huge circle and in order to cast a circular shadow, an object must be round. During a lunar eclipse, the earth's creeping shadow gives us proof that our globe is round.

Classic Play Just Too Much For Young Group

DEATH OF A SALESMAN

The ever-recurring problem of choice of play reared its horned head on the third night of the Dominion Drama Festival finals Tuesday at McPherson Playhouse.

It's a problem that faces every would-be festival entrant at sometime — whether to go for broke as it were and risk all on a gerat play that may stretch the group capacities to breaking point but which will provide a worthwhile challenge, or settle for something simpler and more within the scope.

The University of New Brunswick Drama Society chose to bring on its 3,000-mile trek a play which adjudicator Marius Goring called a classic of the American Theatre. He said it is "typical of the dark era in which it was written."

Death of a Salesman, produced exactly as conceived and designed by Miller, "would be impossible to mount on this stage tonight," Mr. Goring said.

"They couldn't have chosen a more difficult play to do," he remarked, adding that plays should be selected on the basis of the actors available.

As far as it was possible for 20-year-old David Attis to play the 50-year-old salesman, Willy Loman, he had done an excellent job, Mr. Goring felt.

Still, it was better that university students should find something less removed from their own experience, he said.

GOOD SCENE

Scheme of the complex set (it shows several rooms in the Loman house including an upper storey) was very good, the adjudicator noted.

He criticized some details, particularly the wrong use of the backdrop.

Director Alvin Shaw used projections on the backdrop but not the right kind, Mr. Goring said.

"We should have had towering, angular shapes . . . never open blue sky."

The lighting was excellent but sound did not come up to the same level.

"I find it difficult to understand how a director who so sensitively uses lighting should be so insensitive about sources of sound," Mr. Goring remarked.

BEYOND THE RANGE

Kate Lewis as the mother played sympathetically but the scope of the part was beyond her range. In the characters of the two boys, the adjudicator did not find sufficient differentiation.

Other members of the cast were considered adequate and William Fenton won a special mention for his handling of a particular scene with Willy.

Mr. Goring concluded with congratulations to everyone on the team for a courageous attempt.

Tonight the theatre of French Canada will be represented by Montreal's Le Mouvement Contemporain which presents Genet's Les Bonnes.

A cast of three is involved in a story of two maids, who, in their mistress's absence become involved in a frightening, grotesque game of mistress and servant.

Tennessee Williams' Glass Menagerie, the entry of Lakeside Theatre Productions, Ottawa, is Thursday evening's presentation.

MYSTERY KILLINGS IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) —The bodies of seven men—six shot to death and one strangled—have been found in Brazil's lowlands in the last five days. What appeared to be handcuff marks on the wrists of some of the bodies added to the mystery.

Damage Minor In Four-Car City Collision

Douglas Street was the scene of a post rush-hour four-car chain traffic collision Tuesday.

Shortly after 6 p.m. a car driven south on Douglas by Florence Anatooskin, 9270 Lochside Drive, collided with the rear of the car of Anthony Konopski of Sidney which was stopped for a light.

The Konopski car in turn collided with the rear of a car driven by Robert Dye, 836 Elrick, which smacked into the rear of a car driven by Andrew Steel, 880 Craigflower.

Police said no more than slight damage was done to any of the four cars involved.

Blonde Blues Singer Feature of Music Hall

A "Weekend of Soul," featuring a throaty, blonde blues singer from the United States, is lined up for holiday celebrations this weekend at Jon York's Music Hall.

Carol Hedin, an American singer who has appeared at San Francisco's hungry i, and the Ice House, will perform at the Music Hall, located below the Century Inn, Pandora and Government.

In reviews, Miss Hedin has been described as having "an elegant appearance, a tongue in cheek humor and a husky, deep-throated voice."

Sharing the bill with her in nightly shows at the Music Hall Friday, Saturday and probably Sunday will be folksinger John Martin Booker.

A number of unscheduled guest artists usually appear informally at the Music Hall.

OOMPAH of these two double B basses played by visiting Princeton, B.C., school band members Lance Marsel, 14 (left), and Randy McLean, 15, is enough to make a flautist faint, and Marilyn Johnson, 14, winces realistically. Marilyn is secretary-treasurer of Esquimalt Junior Secondary School band which with Colquitz School band members is co-host for Princeton group's Victoria visit. Young mainland musicians, 47 strong, return home by bus Tuesday after competing in Abbotsford International Band Festival, then playing guest concerts at Esquimalt and Colquitz schools. Esquimalt group was returning hospitality offered when they visited Princeton on band trip last week.

AT INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

Band Plays to New Honors

The band of Colquitz Junior Secondary School harmonized its way to new honors in a mainland music contest last week.

Competing with older and more experienced musicians in the Abbotsford International Band Festival, the Colquitz group came away with a first in their division and won the festival's Clayburn-Harbison trophy.

But it wasn't just a simple "first" — the 54-member Colquitz band set a record as the only junior secondary band ever to win the trophy, and did it all in competition with senior secondary bands.

WELL-BALANCED

The Colquitz group also earned remarks like "well-balanced" and "very good soloists" from the adjudicators, when they played against bands from the northwestern U.S. and throughout B.C.

For band instructor Emile Michaux it was continuation of success. Groups he has instructed have placed first in local music festivals for the past five years.

The Abbotsford festival, the third largest band contest in Canada, drew 29 bands this year.

Colquitz youngsters combined the festival with a five-day mainland tour, which included Hope, Princeton and Manning Park.

At Princeton they were joined by the local secondary school band which also competed at Abbotsford, then came to Victoria to perform Monday at Colquitz and today at Esquimalt Junior Secondary.

WORKED HARD

Band members at Colquitz work hard for their honors, says the group's business manager, teacher Jack Dayton.

All Grade eight, nine and 10 students, most of them practice at noon and after school.

To finance the mainland trip they raised some of the money themselves by sponsoring a car wash, bottle drive and Christmas card sale.

"They really enjoy it," he said, and put a "fantastic" amount of effort into the project.

Part of their success may result from the fact that Colquitz students are particularly music-minded — one in four students at the school take part in choral or instrumental groups.

The school's choir has also recently returned from a trip to Portland, Ore.

The Colquitz band numbers 32 boys and 22 girls.

U.S. BANDS ENTERTAIN PATIENTS

Three high school bands from Washington state will provide unofficial concerts for hospital shut-ins who will miss the Victoria Day parade next Monday.

Everett High School Band will play at Veterans' Hospital Saturday at 3:30 p.m., Bellingham High School at 10:30 a.m. Sunday and Mount Vernon High at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Also on Sunday, Ballard Girls Drill Team will perform for children at Queen Alexandra Solarium at 10 a.m.

Drug Profiteering?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S. senate witness suggested Monday that a Dutch cartel, abetted by two U.S. government agencies, was able to buy stockpiled quinine for 20 cents an ounce which is now priced at $2 because of a need for the malaria drug in Viet Nam.

CASE COSTS $67.41; GOVERNMENTS GET $52.65

You're Gulping a Lot of Tax Money in That Shot

That's an appropriate toast for anyone putting down a slug of hard stuff.

Charles R. Bronfman, president of the House of Seagrams Ltd. told reporters Tuesday that the current price for a case of 12 bottles of popular rye is $67.41 over the LCB counter.

But if it wasn't for federal and provincial taxes, the price would be $14.76.

In a press conference, Mr. Bronfman also commented on the potency of liquor in Canada. During the Second World War "as a move toward moderation," distributors and the federal and provincial governments pegged the joy factor of booze at 30-under-proof. This is the equivalent of 80 American proof.

In the U.S. whisky varies from 80 to 100 proof and Canadian whisky sold there also falls within that range.

Cost of increasing the potency here would be small. But the regulation remains.

"We didn't want a proof battle," said Mr. Bronfman.

He does not see a return to the 40-ounce bottle in Canada because of a lack of shelf space with so many brands and sizes competing today.

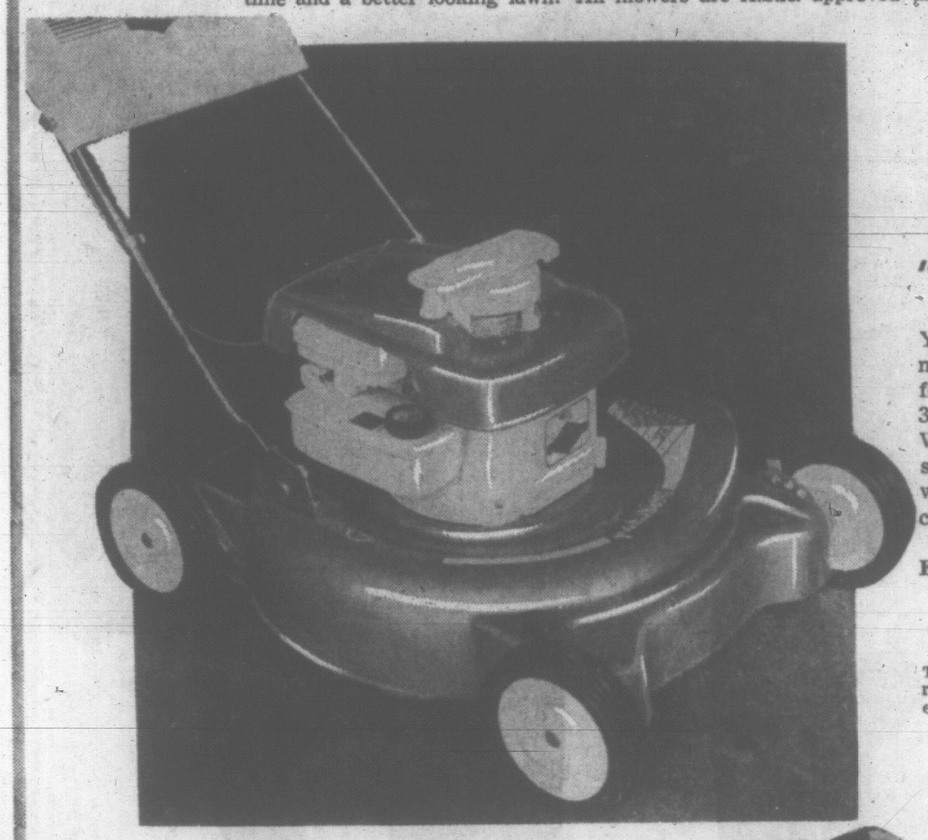

And Mr. Bronfman does not favor whisky advertising on television, even if it were permitted.

"We don't want people on TV saying what a drink would do for you. That would only encourage a drinking problem with minors." He said advertising in newspapers and magazines caters to a more controlled audience.

BONNER TAKES OVER

Labor Chiefs To Be Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner has taken over the contempt proceedings in the Lenkurt Electric Co. dispute and will issue summonses against certain labor figures, it was announced in court here today.

George L. Murray, representing the attorney-general, told Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins that the attorney-general had decided to intervene in the contempt actions because of the great public importance.

Murray said that the attorney-general made his decision after he (Murray) had conveyed a message from the judge following Tuesday's hearing in which Mr. Justice Aikins said that contempt proceedings must be initiated and that the matter was of great public importance.

Murray said after the hearing that the number of persons to be proceeded against had not been decided but he told the judge that he proposed to issue show cause summonses — orders for certain persons to appear and show why they should not be cited for contempt.

WILL BE ARRESTS

Murray said he would proceed by summons rather than by writs of attachment, which would mean the arrests of the individuals concerned.

But he said he reserved the right to proceed by attachment if anyone should ignore the show cause summonses.

In court Tuesday Murray named six labor leaders and 69 other persons against whom he said there was evidence of disobedience of two court orders.

The orders were injunctions restraining any persons from picketing, obstructing or creating a nuisance at the Lenkurt plant in Burnaby, scene of two days of violent demonstrations.

The injunctions named as defendants, the B.C. Federation of Labor, Vancouver and District Labor Council and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC) the union leaders who appeared to be guilty of contempt were International Woodworkers of America Vancouver local vice-president Tom Clarke; IBEW business agent Arthur O'Keeffe and his assistant Tom Constable; Charles P. Neale, Vancouver and District Labor Council, secretary; William Stewart of the Marine Workers' and Boilermakers Union; and William Wells, business agent of the Retail Food and Drug Clerks Union.

He also named another person, a Brian Johnstone, as a man who handed out scurrilous pamphlets saying the courts were allied with management and scabs.

FIRST TV PICTURES OF EARTH

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Russian communications satellite has taken the first television pictures of the earth and successfully transmitted them back to ground stations, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

Tass said the pictures were taken by Russia's Molniya (Lightning) I in orbit around the earth at altitudes ranging from 18,600 to 24,800 miles. Molniya I, the third Soviet communications satellite to be orbited by the Russians, was launched April 25.

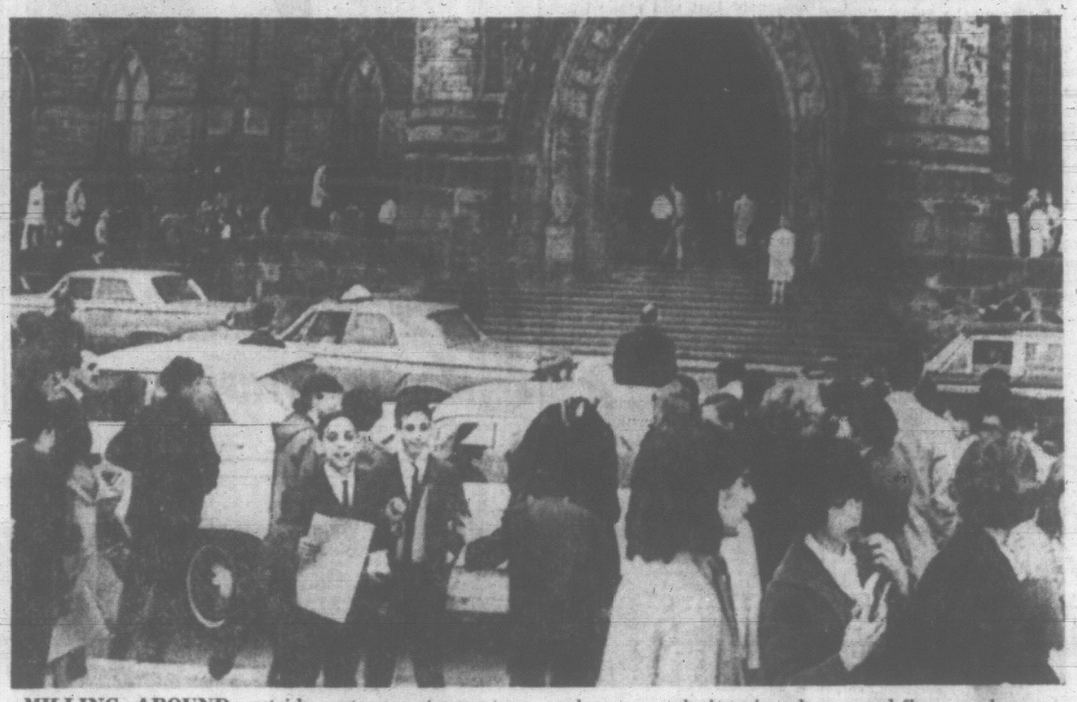

Bennett Silent On Plan

The B.C. government continued mum today on its reaction to Tuesday's announcement that Ottawa will institute a national medicare plan next year regardless of how many provinces agree to it.

Health Minister Eric Martin declined comment because: "The premier will have the first opportunity to make any announcement on this. It is an important policy issue and it will be up to him."

But requests for a comment from Premier Bennett this morning were fruitless. He was said to be tied up with work.

B.C. is among several provinces that have not committed themselves to participate or "opt out" of a national medicare scheme in which the federal government proposes to pay half the cost.

'THANK GOD . . . I'M SAFE'

Farm Boy Shoots Killer; Terrified Victim Unharmed

SHADE GAP, Pa. (UPI) — Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, kidnapped and held in chains for seven terrifying days by a long-sought deranged sniper who turned killer, was rescued unharmed today. The kidnapper was shot to death by a 15-year-old farm boy.

"Thank God . . . thank God . . . I'm safe . . . I'm safe," the pretty, blue-eyed, brown-haired high school junior cried over and over as she ran into the arms of a reporter who pushed her to the ground to avoid being hit by bullets.

The kidnapper, William D. Hollenbaugh, 44, was shot through the neck. State police said he was hit by the farm boy Larry Rubeck, who fired a .22 calibre rifle through a closed window of his home at nearby Fort Littleton. State police Cpl. Grant H. Mixell also was firing outside the house.

DEPUTY WOUNDED

A short while before he was killed, Hollenbaugh shot and critically wounded a deputy sheriff.

The dramatic events outside the Rubeck home took place only a few minutes after a heavily armed force of 675 men began an assault on nearby twin-peaked Tuscarora Mountain where the kidnapper was trapped with the girl Tuesday night.

Almost unbelievably, the wily, crazed kidnapper — who killed FBI agent Terry Anderson from ambush on the mountain Tuesday — slipped through the large posse, which had maintained an all-night vigil.

At about 9 a.m., PDT today the kidnapper surprised deputy sheriff Francis Sharpe at a roadblock. He forced Sharpe at gunpoint into the driver's seat of the deputy's car, got in beside him and made Peggy Ann lie on the floor in the rear. He then ordered Sharpe to drive to the Rubeck home.

Explosion Near Office of PM

OTTAWA (CP)—A blast ripped through a third-floor washroom in Parliament's Centre Block today, killing an unidentified man who may have brought an explosive device into the building.

The explosion came minutes after the House of Commons started its afternoon sitting. It blew out the window of the washroom next to the office of External Affairs Minister Martin and only yards down the corridor from the office of Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin were both in the Commons chamber at the time.

Arnold Peters, NDP member for Timiskaming, said he was told the dead man had been attempting unsuccessfully for several days to see the prime minister.

"They think he was going to bomb the (Commons) chamber," Mr. Peters said.

Two doctor MPs were among the first persons allowed into the washroom minutes after the blast shattered the calm of the Commons sitting.

Both Dr. Hugh Horner (PC—Jasper-Edson) and Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) confirmed the death of the man, described as being about 60 years old.

Dr. Horner told a reporter the blast smelled as though it was caused by black gunpowder or dynamite. He said it appeared the victim may have been holding the device when it went off.

Main damage to the victim was in the arms, legs and chest, he said.

"He's not a very pretty sight," said a young RCMP constable emerging from the wrecked washroom.

Sitting in Public Gallery

The blast blew the window out of the room and was reported to have ripped a piece of marble off the wall.

Rene Soulieres, 30, a messenger on the parliamentary staff, told a reporter he had directed a man to the washroom shortly before the blast. The man had been sitting in the public gallery one row behind the press gallery at the north end of the Commons.

Mr. Soulieres said the man had asked, in English, whether his seat could be saved while he went to the washroom. The man was directed through a corridor behind the Senate, Speaker's and government galleries to a washroom at the south end of the third floor.

He was wearing a topcoat, the messenger said.

Minutes later the blast came.

Files of visitors awaiting entrance to the galleries, crowded with school children and other spectators, were in the hallway. Many were sitting in the gallery the man had left.

Reporters, visitors and Commons protective staff rushed to the scene as dense smoke spread rapidly at the west end of the third floor.

The protective staff struggled frantically to cordon off the blast area.

The floor of the Commons and the galleries buzzed with talk and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux was obliged to call the House to order to allow the speakers to be heard.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons at 3:05 p.m. it appeared "a bomb had exploded in a washroom." He suggested an immediate adjournment until 4 p.m. and the House agreed.

The third-floor hallways were crowded with spectators waiting to get into the Commons galleries when the explosion occurred. No one outside the heavy wooden door of the washroom was injured.

Members of the Commons protective staff quickly cordoned off the crowds. Some ran for flashlights to help pierce the dense smoke around the washroom and to investigate inside.

Dr. Horner said the victim of the explosion was dead when he entered the washroom. He said the main force of the blast had caught the man in the chest, arms and legs.

He said the man was "pretty well mangled" in the chest, arms and legs.

"He apparently blew himself up with a home-made bomb," said Dr. Horner.

The man had apparently held

PROTEST RELEASE OF DOCUMENT

Dief, Fulton Quit Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker today withdrew from the Munsinger inquiry, charging that it is an instrument of political assassination.

Mr. Diefenbaker announced his boycott just prior to the inquiry's mid - morning hearing, and explained his reasons at noon before a crowded press conference in his Commons office

He said publication by the inquiry of a "handy document" on the Gerda Munsinger affair violated fundamental rights.

He called the statement "a sordid, libellous document" and "a McCarthy smear." The statement was obviously intended to destroy his reputation and was not in evidence. Many points in it were contradicted by the evidence.

Mr. Diefenbaker was joined in his boycott by Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister.

The Opposition leader said he cannot understand the conduct of the inquiry commissioner, Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

Counsel Attacked

He also criticized commission counsel John O'Brien, a Montreal lawyer.

From the day Mr. O'Brien had been named commission counsel, he had boasted publicly in Montreal of "what he was going to do with a former prime minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that when the Conservatives were in office Mr. O'Brien was counsel for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada when the firm applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for a rate increase.

The cabinet had taken strong objection to the basis for the application.

'Nursed Resentment'

"He (O'Brien) apparently nursed his resentment and now he has stated over and over again that he was going to get even."

Mr. Diefenbaker said this boast was made widely but the Opposition leader declined to name his sources.

Asked to comment on Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that Mr. O'Brien was out to get him, the commission council said:

"I have never said it and I have no reason to get him. Apart from that I'm not very interested."

The Conservative leader said the statement prepared and released by commission counsel was based on hearsay and "could not have been issued except with the purpose of creating a derogatory climate."

It was Mr. Justice Spence who called it a "handy document."

Asked whether he plans any legal action, Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

"That is a good question. I will consult my counsel about that."

Mr. Diefenbaker took exception to two allegations in particular in the inquiry document.

The first allegation was by Mrs. Munsinger, who claimed to have met Mr. Diefenbaker when he was prime minister and that he had told her she was doing a great thing for Canada.

"The publication of this sordid, libellous statement clearly revealed what the commission was set up to do," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He recalled that Mrs. Munsinger herself said in a CBC interview last spring that she had never met him.

Flat Denial

The second allegation that Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned specifically was an unattributed allegation that political interference was attempted to have the police withdraw cheque-passing charges against Mrs. Munsinger in February of 1961.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied this allegation flatly.

He said the inquiry was told by RCMP witnesses that the RCMP requested the withdrawal of the charges "without reference to any minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker took up most of the press conference reading a prepared statement and cut off questions from about 30 reporters after 15 minutes.

He said he and Mr. Fulton were withdrawing from the inquiry because of a succession of incidents culminating in the publication of the summary of the RCMP Munsinger file a week ago.

'Assassination'

"The purpose for which the commission was set up was political assassination of opponents," he said.

Even common criminals were not libelled in statements that were outside of the evidence.

Mr Fulton, who sat in at the press conference, said the correct procedure would have been to admit the RCMP file as evidence and question witnesses under oath about allegations contained in it.

He said his counsel at the inquiry repeatedly opposed the publication of a summary of the RCMP file.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton issued a joint statement on their withdrawal and when the hearing began their lawyer, C. F. H. Carson, advised Mr. Justice Spence of the decision, Mr. Carson and his colleagues left the inquiry room.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson, who had ordered the inquiry, said the Liberal leader had no comment on the surprise move. The boycott was announced in a prepared statement.

Mr. Fulton later issued a statement criticizing point by point the manner in which the Munsinger inquiry has been conducted

He said he has no apologies to make for his handling of the Munsinger affair when he was justice minister.

His statement recalled that he had objected from the outset to the terms of reference of the inquiry, to secret sessions held without notice to the persons involved, to his difficulty in getting access to exhibits and official files, and to the publication of parts of a secret RCMP file.

"Our counsel had to undertake a virtual blasting operation before we were finally shown all the relevant police files.

Not Seen Before

"When we finally got them, they were found to contain documents sugesting important divergencies from the case as it was then being developed by commission counsel."

Mr. Fulton said when he testified May 9 he was confronted with an alleged memorandum

SHE HAS 'ANOTHER LOVE'

Newlyweds on Right Track

By DESMOND BILL

Frederique Collin got married a week ago and spent her honeymoon on a train coming to Victoria.

But she didn't mind. The train was bringing her to the Dominion Drama Festival to appear in tonight's production of a French play.

And Miss Collin has le feu sacree, 'the holy fire' that seems to burn in many young Quebecers these days.

MORE SERIOUS

The French appear more serious than the other performers about their appearance in the DDF. To Miss Collin, honeymooning on a train, with the rest of the cast, is a small price to pay for the experience.

The French entry is Les Bonnes by Jean Genet. Genet has a vogue in modern theatre despite, or perhaps in part because of, his reputation as a homosexual, pimp and male prostitute.

The play, like its author, has some scandalous aspects. Miss Collin says she hopes "people in Victoria will not be too much shocked by it."

HOMOSEXUAL THEME

It has an underlying homosexual theme, although it is concealed in the way the action revolves around three women. The play is difficult, admits Miss Collins, but it is the sort of avant-garde work her group wants to present.

"We wouldn't dream of putting on Moliere, or any one like that. We are interested only in what is modern."

The performers, in fact, are called Le Mouvement Contemporain and they are deeply involved in the cultural renaissance that parallels Quebec's political ferment. The youngest is 19 and the oldest 26.

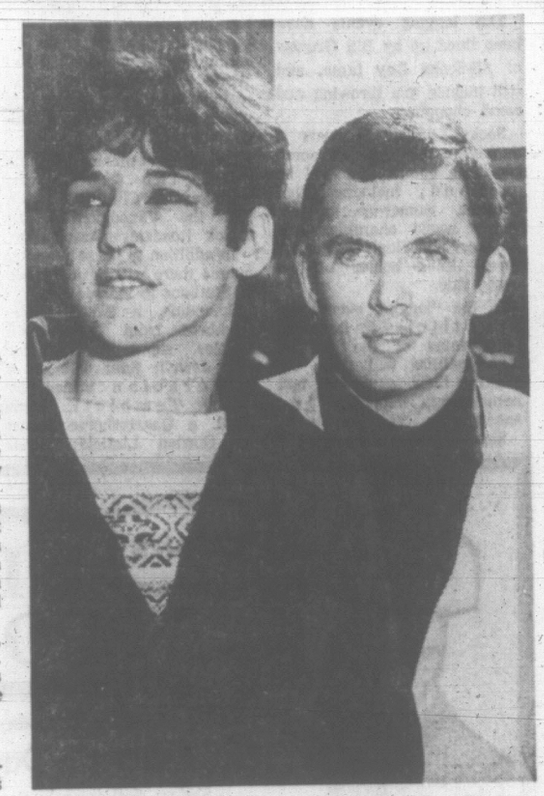

They operate a small theatre in Montreal where five nights a week they put on plays. Some hold a job during the day but they are all semi-professional and most, like Miss Collin, hope to make full-time careers as actors and actresses.

They get no pay. Says Miss Collin, in her un-idiomatic but expressive English, "They work only for the heart. They have le feu sacree. I don't know why I want so much to be an actress. For me, I think, I couldn't be anything else."

She will audition for CBC-TV on her return to Montreal. A win at the festival would give her a springboard to the career she wants.

Does a Montreal actress think at all about Quebec politics: about the place of French-Canada in Confederation?

Says Miss Collin: "I have some ideas but I won't talk about them. I leave politics to other people. I think it is important to concentrate on doing one thing well. And where I want to do well is in the theatre, not in politics."

SHE'S IN LOVE—with this man, and with the stage. Frederique Collin married Hubert Schommer a week ago. But her other love forced them to spend their honeymoon on a train crossing Canada to bring her to the Dominion Drama Festival. She will appear tonight in the presentation of Genet's play, Les Bonnes, at the McPherson Playhouse.

Murder Charge Laid

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Wesley Norman Chatwell, 37, was charged in magistrate's court here Tuesday with capital murder in the beating death of Jones Gothard Winka, a 67-year-old trapper. RCMP arrested Chatwell 45 minutes after the Chief Lake trapper was found beaten behind a hotel in this north central city a week ago. Winka's wallet, containing $130 was missing.

CONCESSIONS OR BLOCKADE

Gibraltar Can't Win In Talks With Spain

By TERENCE PRITTIE
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON—Talks began today between the British and Spanish governments on Gibraltar.

As the day drew closer the concern and alarm of the Gibraltarians mounted. For, as most of them see it, the talks may make no progress — in which case the damaging "little blockade" of the Rock by Spain will go on and perhaps be intensified — or the talks may alternately, entail unwelcome concessions to Spain.

A great many Gibraltarians fear that concessions will open the way to fresh Spanish demands of which the most logical would be the annexation of the Rock. The Gibraltarians (more than 20,000 of them) almost to a man wish to remain British. They reject Spain's claim to territorial sovereignty.

In dealing with the Gibraltar problem the British government has already made three separate blunders.

ROCK CONTROL

The first was to start on the process of giving self-government to Gibraltar. This was contrary to the 1713 Treaty of Utrecht, which originally gave Britain control of the Rock.

The second was to refuse to open talks with Spain, as recommended by the trusteeship committee of the United Nations General Assembly, and then to reverse that decision after months of diplomatic inactivity.

The third was to continue to invoke the Treaty of Utrecht, instead of the Gibraltarians' right of self-determination, as the basis for refusing Spain's claim to sovereignty. Britain has already infringed the treaty, by building an airfield on ground which the treaty laid down should be "neutral" and unoccupied.

In addition, the British government has adopted a vaguely hostile attitude toward Spain, while at the same time badly wanting Spain to waive her 250-year-old claim to Gibraltar. It is this attitude toward Spain, more than anything else, which is bringing Spanish Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella to London.

Vancouver Youth Gang Copies Nazis

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five members of the Huns, a gang whose members wear jackets with Nazi emblems, were remanded to Friday when they appeared in juvenile court Tuesday charged with indecent assault on two teen-age girls.

The boys, believed responsible for a rash of attacks on houses in the east end of the city, were arrested Sunday after a complaint by the mother of one of the girls.

One of the five juveniles faces two additional counts of having carnal knowledge of a female and another has been charged with possession of liquor.

Police confiscated jackets belonging to the youths, who are between 14 and 16 years old. One jacket bore the insigna of the Nazi SS armband. Other jackets had the Maltese cross painted on them.

Police said the gang is responsible for the attack on an east-end home, where furniture, walls and doors were damaged after a meeting of the gang.

Rites Set On Friday For Priest

Monignor Wilbert McKenzie, a former Roman Catholic priest in Kelowna, died Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital at the age of 78.

Burial will follow at Royal Oak Cemetery.
